Seven Safes Hit

Safecrackers hit two more safes in Sedalia Friday night, bringing the total to seven in the past four days. The dial combinations were knocked off two safes at Roseland Meats, Inc., 2506 West Main, early Saturday morning.

Police reported the building was checked at 2 a.m. and everything checked out all right. At 3:25 a.m. officers discovered that a door to the building had been opened and upon investigation found two safes damaged but unopened. Officers said the dials had been knocked off the safes, apparently with a hammer. Nothing was reported missing.

A five-foot storage safe was "peeled" at the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. plant on West Broadway Tuesday night, however the only item of value in the safe, a roll of stamps worth $30, was left in the safe.

Safecrackers successfully gained entrance to safes at both Tullis-Hall Dairy and the MFA Central Cooperative on Clinton Road Wednesday night. Attempts were made to open another safe at eash establishment, but both failed.

The arrival of an employee at Tullis-Hall apparently scared the thieves away before they gained entry to the second safe or got the money from the first out of a metal box.

The loss from the MFA theft has not been determined.

Police are working on the assumption that all of the thefts are connected and that it is a group from out of town.

Mrs. Ed Friedly, 1100 Wilkerson, signs a petition calling for humane treatment of American prisoners of war in North Vietnam. Manning the booth, which was set up in front of Flower's, are Mrs. James Kalthoff, left, of 1814 West 11th, and Mrs. Robert Rudisill, 1628 West Fifth, who took care of Mrs. Friedly's daughter, Ginger. Several booths were set up over the city. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Pow Petition Reactions Vary

Reaction Saturday to signing petitions to appeal to the North Vietnamese government to abide by rules of the Geneva Convention with regard to American prisoners of war ranged from "Of course I'll sign, I just hope it will do some good," to "I don't want to get involved."

Four booths were set up over the city and volunteers, from the Jaycee Wives and other organizations, offered pens and pencils for interested persons to sign as they rushed through weekend shopping.

Two booths were downtown, one in front of C.W. Flower's and another at the Conner-Wagoner Dress Shop, with one each at the State Fair and Thompson Hills Shopping Centers.

In the shopping centers, for some reason, volunteers manning the booths found less cooperation, and occasional hostility. "When you say 'Vietnam,' people just automatically think you are trying to do something unpatriotic," one young booth attendant said.

Many persons didn't know what the Geneva Convention rules concerning prisoners of war were, and as one volunteer patiently explained that it would mean the release of names of prisoners, free exchange of mail and adequate living facilities, more signed.

Mrs. John Mueller, 916 West Third, organizer of the petition drive, said that over 1,500 signatures had been obtained. She is the wife of an Air Force major stationed in South Korea.

Mrs. Mueller said she was very pleased with the results of the drive which "turned out better than she had anticipated."

U.S. Men Hit By Mistake

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen engaged in a firefight with two enemy soldiers near the Cambodian border were mistakenly hit by a rocket burst from one of their own supporting helicopters Saturday and 14 of them were wounded.

The fight broke off after the accident and it was not known what happened to the two enemy soldiers. The U.S. Command said the incident is under investigation.

The action occurred 95 miles northeast of Saigon. The helicopter gunship was summoned into the fight by ground troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, according to field reports.

The number of Americans involved was not disclosed but according to the field dispatches there were probably 150 U.S. troops in the action.

Details of the fight itself were lacking.

At the same time, the U.S. Command reported the loss of three American helicopters in other actions.

One was shot down Thursday in southern Laos but its two crewmen were not hurt and were later rescued.

The crew of a light observation helicopter shot down 19 miles north of An Khe on the central coastal plain Friday also was rescued, but the crash touched off a five-hour battle in which 39 Viet Cong were reported slain and six Americans wounded. The crewmen were not hurt.

The third U.S. helicopter was shot down near a Mekong Delta battle, 40 miles southwest of Saigon, in which South Vietnamese forces claimed killing 25 enemy while losing one man killed. One of the helicopter crewmen was killed and another wounded.

U.S. air calvarymen, who moved out of Cambodia two weeks ago after two months of cleaning out enemy base areas, reported killing 24 North Vietnamese while searching for hidden munitions stockpiles in War Zone D, 48 miles northeast of Saigon. One American was killed.

Only light action was reported from Cambodia, including a brief attack against government positions in the Siem Reap-Angkor region, 155 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. It was regarded as another probing action by enemy forces which, Cambodian intelligence believes, are preparing for large-scale assaults in the region soon.

Phnom Penh's highway to the sea—and its only deep water port at Kompong Som — was reported reopened to heavy traffic, including large fuel trucks resupplying the capital. The road, Highway 4, had been closed to large vehicles after Viet Cong sappers damaged a bridge earlier this week.

In another development, Cambodia's queen mother, Sisowath Kossamak Nearireath left the royal palace in Phnom Penh on Friday night to take up residence in a small house that had been a museum for her son, ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Say Nixon's Spending Charge Is Unfounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats Saturday dismissed as "totally erroneous and unfounded" President Nixon's charge of excessive congressional spending.

Instead of raising the budget, the Senate Democratic Policy Committee said, Congress will make massive reductions in administration spending requests.

But the Democrats also said Congress may well decide to shift spending priorities and concentrate on health, education, environmental and poverty programs, while trimming such items as military and foreign aid appropriations.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Congress actually reduced by a total of $8.3 billion the appropriations envisioned in President Nixon's initial budget.

"It is anticipated that Congress will make similarly large reductions as it examines the spending requests it now has under consideration from President Nixon," the policy committee declared in a unanimously approved rebuttal to the White House.

The President complained a week ago of "a persistent and growing tendency on Capitol Hill to approve increases in expenditures without providing the revenue to pay the costs."

Nixon said "unless the

U.S. Proposes Limit On Nuclear Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has proposed to the Soviet Union that the two superpowers limit their strategic nuclear missiles to about the number they have now, or perhaps less.

The U.S. offer would place an over-all numerical ceiling on each nation's intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs), submarine-fired missiles and long-range bombers, with some flexibility for each side in deciding how to mix its weapons within the limit.

Under the missile ceiling, there would also be a limitation on size of missiles, aimed at preventing further Soviet deployment of huge SS9 rockets.

And the two powers would hold their antiballistic missile (ABM) systems to approximately what the Soviets now have. The Russian ABM now deployed is said to consist mainly of 64 launchers around Moscow.

These features of the U.S. proposal became known Saturday following its presentation to the Soviets at the Vienna strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) Friday. At White House briefings for key congressmen, Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security affairs adviser, is said to have portrayed the administration's program to push ahead with the U.S. ABM as an important bargaining chip in the effort to reach an agreement with the Soviets at Vienna.

This drew a protest from Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a leading opponent of the administration's ABM plan.

With the Senate now weighing a $1.3-billion proposal to expand Safeguard to four sites, Fulbright described Kissinger's argument as an effort to lay blame on the Senate if it does not approve the ABM expansion and the proposed deal with the Soviets doesn't work out.

Thus the U.S. proposal is rated as an initial, though important, step having a chance of Soviet acceptance because it would keep the two powers at their present rough strategic parity, could be verified by outside means such as seeing-eye satellites, and would retain for each its war-deterring nuclear strikeback power.

The U.S. proposal at this point

NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco met with Israel's ambassador to Washington Saturday as the United States sought to persuade Israel to accept the U.S. plan for starting Mideast peace discussions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A security-censored report on the Safeguard antimissile system says the full Phase II program would provide protection against a limited Red Chinese missile attack and some defense of U.S. Minuteman missiles from a Russian blow.

Two Men Charged In Recent Thefts

Police Chief William Miller reported Saturday that two men have been taken into custody in connection with several recent thefts at local laundro-mats.

Charles David Hopkins and Isaac Ellis Warren, both of Sedalia, have been charged in a state complaint with stealing over $50 in connection with an incident that occurred July 4 at Kenney's Laundry Mat, 910 Thompson Blvd.

According to police, a cigarette machine and contents valued at $125 were taken.

The arrest of the two men followed several alleged thefts. They were:

July 2, when someone took the cigarette vending machine and contents, valued at about $190, from Kenny's Laundry Mat, 2809 East 12th.

July 23, when a locked storeroom door at Kenny's Laundry Mat, 910 Thompson Blvd., was kicked in and $69 worth of merchandise was taken, police said.

A large quantity of this merchandise was later recovered by police. The same night Kenney's Laundry Mat on 12th Street was hit, a candy vending machine and contents valued at $250 were taken from 910 Thompson.

Sedalia police reported that a cigarette machine and a candy machine had been found in Flat Creek, near Highway C, Saturday while another cigarette machine was found in Muddy Creek, south of LaMonte, by Sedalia Police.

Last Thursday night, someone broke into the Black and White Market in Cole Camp and carried away $300 in merchandise, Miller said.

Says Egyptians, Israelis Thinking Negotiation

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Douglas-Home says both the Egyptians and Israelis are starting to think of negotiations as their best course. He says the North Atlantic Treaty Organization must take account of new Soviet influence south of Europe and possibly consider protection of trade routes around southern Africa.

He sees Vietnamization as a beginning toward a reduction of hostilities in Indochina.

The British foreign secretary gave these and other views in the round-the-table discussion with Paul Miller, president of The Associated Press and chairman of the Gannett Newspapers, and Arthur L. Gavshon, the AP's diplomatic correspondent in London.

It was the first interview he has granted to newsmen since resuming his old post as foreign secretary in the new Conservative party government of Prime Minister Edward Health. The blue-green colored room, where the discussion took place, has been used by a succession of foreign secretaries in the Foreign Office since 1862.

Douglas-Home said the most important matter facing him was the Middle East crisis where he thought he detected "signs both the Egyptians and Israelis are . . . just beginning to think . . . a negotiated settlement might be better than a continuing war."

But he cautioned that "one must not be too optimistic" and said prejudices on the two sides are difficult to overcome.

He added that there was a "slightly more optimistic feeling" in four power talks because the Russians "have been talking the same language" as the other participants.

Nevertheless, he saw Soviet arms shipments to Libya as part of a regular pattern now, illustrating Soviet expansionism in the area.

On Indochina Douglas-Home said President Nixon himself has recognized that he has chosen "a second-best alternative" by beginning phased withdrawals of American troops alongside the process of Vietnamization. The best solution would have been a negotiated settlement to leave the South Vietnamese free from all outside forces and free to settle their own future. He hoped North Vietnam would not make it

Legislature To Hear Toll Road Arguments

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The coming week should see a spirited artillery exchange between the forces for and against the proposed toll road plan that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has pushed.

Until a week ago little was being said about the proposal. At intervals some agency or organization would declare its support or opposition generally without much fanfare.

But now the two sides seem to have lined up their troops and are preparing to battle it out with broadsides of advertisements and public statements.

Hearnes has said he has been for toll roads all along, even back in 1953 when he was a young legislator from southeastern Missouri and the plan was rejected by the General Assembly.

As governor, he got the 1967 Legislature to pass a toll road law and then the roof fell in.

Egypt Accepts Peace Plan, Israeli Leaders Suspicious

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli political leaders cast a suspicious eye Saturday at Egypt's acceptance of the U.S. Middle East peace plan, but they urged their own government to give its approval, too.

The reaction came as the coalition Cabinet of Prime Minister Golda Meir to meet Sunday to consider the situation in light of Egypt's acceptance of the American plan. It calls for a cease-fire of at least 90 days by forces of Israel, Egypt and Jordan and for indirect Arab-Israeli peace talks through a U.N. mediator.

Israeli legislators cautioned the government to avoid letting itself become politically isolated, but they advised the regime to take time in framing a response to Washington's proposal.

Representatives from the ranks of the hawks and doves gave their views in a series of radio interviews. Both elements agreed in general that the plan should be accepted, despite Israeli fears that the limited cease-fire it calls for would give Egypt time to bolster its position along the Suez Canal zone.

Avraham Offer, a member of the dove group in Israel's parliament, said the cease-fire would be accepted, on condition that proper international supervision could be activated to prevent an Arab arms build-up along the waterway.

Shmuel Tamir, a parliamentary hawk, agreed that Israel should go along, provided that the Russians move their troops and military advisers out of Egypt.

Israel Galili, an adviser to Mrs. Meir, told a meeting of Israel's Labor party that Egypt's acceptance of the Washington plan was "an attempt to prevent Israel from getting the arms necessary for its defense."

As a result, he said, Israel was "now obliged to study its own options in a very balanced and clear-eyed manner" to stop what he called a Soviet-Egyptian attempt to prevent Israel from getting needed weapons from the United States

The former chief of Israeli military intelligence said Egypt's acceptance of the U.S. plan is a "political smokescreen" to cloud "active military preparations for crossing the Suez Canal with possible Russian cover and support."

Retired Brig. Gen. Haim Herzog, now a commentator for the state radio, said "perhaps the most characteristic point of the situation" was that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser acted to halt American arms supplies to Israel and "at the same time announced that the flow of arms from the Soviet Union to Egypt continues unabated."

India Calls For Atomic Energy, Space Programs

NEW DELHI (AP) — The chairman of India's Atomic Energy Commission called Saturday for a massive 10-year, $1.82-billion combined atomic energy and space program to help India overcome its poverty.

"It is my firm belief that the problems of poverty and regional imbalances in our country cannot be effectively tackled without it (atomic research)," Dr. Vikram A. Sarabhai told a parliamentary committee.

Sarabhai and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi made clear to the parliamentarians there would be no change in India's long-standing policy of developing atomic energy only for peaceful purposes.

The biggest portion of Sarabhai's proposed budget is for atomic energy, which he urged the expenditure of $1.6 billion.

"Nuclear power is today essential for economically supplying energy in large parts of the country, and is moreover the only major supply on which we will need to fall back in perhaps less than 50 years time," he asserted.

He proposed expenditure of $220 million on space research to provide for missile tracking radars, a launcher rocket system capable of putting a 176-pound satellite into orbit by 1974, and fabrication of communication satellites by 1975 capable of providing high quality telecommunication service.

Sarabhai acknowledged that his proposals might be controversial.

"But," he said, "10 or 20 years from now, when the population of India would be somewhere between 750 million and a billion, it can hardly be controversial that we could need a very strong base of science and technology, of industry and agriculture, not only for our economic well being but for our national integration and for ensuring our security in the world."

Big Job Ahead

Members of the group that took over Ellis Island, N.Y., in the New York City harbor July 20, relax Saturday after working on cleaning up the buildings and grounds here. They plan to turn the island into a drug rehabilitation center and they have set up a chlorine powder packing operation under a federal contract. (UPI)

Children Neglected In Car Safety Area

By PETER WEAVER

"Small children and infants have been the most neglected people in the whole field of automobile safety." So says the Public Health Service.

And for good reason. Listen to these grim statistics: Some 2,300 children, aged 5 and under, are expected to be killed this year while riding in automobiles. More than 70,000 others will be seriously injured.

These figures are particularly appalling because more than 90 per cent of the fate-marked children could be spared if they were properly restrained with a safety harness or protective seating device.

You just cannot allow toddlers to bounce around in a moving car. As a matter of fact, the American Academy of Pediatrics says the very first ride a baby takes — home from the hospital — should be in a strong, web-covered car bed that is tightly secured by car seat belts. In crashes or panic stops, children become human missiles.

There are a number of good, protective harnesses and seats for children. Unfortunately, because auto dealers and stores don't make much money on them, they're almost hidden from view. You have to dig them out of reluctant salesmen, or out of catalogs.

General Motors has an Infant Carrier for babies not yet able to sit up unattended. It costs around $10 and gives excellent protection through its molded plastic, padded couch which looks like an astronaut's seat. Crash tests made at the University of Michigan indicated this seat gives protection against front, rear and side impact situations.

GM also has a safety seat for children weighing up to 30 pounds. It sells for $9 standard or $19 deluxe (no safer, just a little more comfortable). According to the Michigan tests, this seat gives good front-end crash protection but not from the rear unless some kind of adequate padding can be put behind the child's head to avoid whiplash.

Sears sells a harness for around $8 which got good ratings. The harness, made by Rose Manufacturing Co., is also sold through other stores under the name Gerry Design. It's listed in the Sears catalog under automobile accessories (6401 and 6402).

Ford has a device called Tot Guard which serves as a crash shield for children weighing up to 50 pounds. It sells for $21 and fits over the child with the car's seat belt serving as the anchor. According to the Michigan tests, this shield gives excellent protection against front and rear crashes but, like many other devices (GM seat, Sears harness), it doesn't give much protection against impact from the side.

Pediatricians give good ratings to harnesses sold by American Safety Equipment and J. C. Penney ($6, catalog no. A 987-2078C). The Michigan testers also gave some good ratings to devices made by American Motors, Vogt (Voplex harness), Volvo and Broderna Ottosson (Klippan seat). The last two, testers said, will even give good lateral impact protection if car seat belts can be used as an auxiliary support.

Seats which hook on and are aimed primarily at entertaining the child are not rated acceptable by safety engineers. They aren't anchored to the frame of the car. As of Jan. 1, 1970, this type of device will not qualify for certification under federal safety standards. Standards already exist for harnesses. If a harness complies with the government's standards, it should be so stated on the box or harness label.

Standards are being drawn up for car beds. Meanwhile, the GM "carrier" or a regular car bed, securely strapped down with seat belts, will serve. It needs some kind of sturdy webbing over the top and should remain in the car for convenience sake.

Regular car seat belts are OK for children who weigh more than 50 pounds, but they should not ride up over the abdomen. For children over 55-inches tall, a shoulder strap can be used. Never hold children in your arms. Never put two in one seat belt and don't let them stand up — even in harness. Even though inconvenient, the rear seat is by far the safest spot for strapped-in toddlers.

Condemns Cereal Products

Robert B. Choate, a civilian engineer who has worked on a number of government nutrition projects, told the Senate Consumers Subcommittee this week that most brands of dry cereal provide little nutrition and many of the least nutritious brands cost the most and are advertised heavily on children's TV shows. Miller Takes Issue With Statements By Kit Bond

Kenny Miller, authorized agent for the Missouri Motor Vehicle Registration office here, has taken issue with a statement by Christopher "Kit" Bond which accused the state of having "apparently given up on auditing fee license offices."

Bond, Republican candidate for state auditor, made his statement at a meeting of the Republicans For Improvement Club at the Holiday Inn Thursday.

In his statement, Miller said, "I feel it my duty, in defense of myself and other authorized fee agents of Missouri, to take issue with Mr. Kit Bond in his recent statement to newspapers and radio concerning the auditing of privately operated offices where motor vehicle licenses are sold.

"I feel that Mr. Bond is misinforming the people in his recent statements.

"I have operated this office for five years and my office has been audited ten times at the direction of...State Auditor Haskell Homan.

"I think it most unfair for Mr. Bond to insinuate that dishonesty exists in all of the 151 fee offices because two or three in the state when audited come up short of funds....the 151 fee offices he has so severely criticized are held by honest, hard working public servants.

"I resent his criticism of good honest operators in public offices in an effort to further the success of his campaign," Miller concluded.

Consult Doctor Not Sister-in-law

Dear Ann Landers: Our eight-year-old child missed 44 days of school last semester because of sore throats and colds. The pediatrician suggested we have her tonsils removed. My sister-in-law told my husband that removing tonsils is old fashioned and good doctors don't do it anymore. It burns me up that he thinks her word is better than a pediatrician's.

Today the child has another sore throat and is in bed with a fever. I told my husband I want to discuss a tonsilectomy. He said his sister knows what she is talking about — and that doctors sometimes suggest surgery because of the money. I think it is rotten of my sister-in-law to make this kind of trouble in our family. Are tonsilectomies out of date?—Saginaw Argument

Dear Sag: Thirty years ago tonsilectomies were routine. There are fewer tonsilectomies today because drugs have been discovered to control many infections formerly associated with tonsils. But in some instances tonsilectomies still are indicated.

Unless your sister-in-law is a physician I suggest that your husband not accept her diagnosis. A second physician should be consulted if your husband does not have confidence in the pediatrician.

Dear Ann Landers: Frequently you print letters from retired folks. Perhaps you'd like to know how retirement looks to someone who lives in Miami and has had an opportunity to observe at close range.

Retired men are all members of the "Honeydew Club." It's "Honey do this — honey do that. Honey, drive me to the beauty parlor. Honey, take out the garbage."

While at the garbage, Mr. Retired meets another member of the Honeydew Club who sold his company to a conglomerate last year for $15,000,000.

And, of course, there's the daily ritual of driving to the supermarket — where he again encounters the millionaire from the garbage. He is measuring the holes in the doughnuts. His final purchase will be the six doughnuts with the smallest holes. It's wonderful, the things a person can do when he has the time.

So tell your readers to retire in Florida, Ann. The weather is wonderful and people live longer down here. It sure beats freezing to death up North so the grandchildren can inherit a load of dough and be bums. — Herb

Dear Herb: Thanks for the day-brightener. Is there much gin rummy and TV down there?

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in your reply to the woman who wanted to know if alcohol helped or hindered the male's ability to perform sexually. Your answer was right Ann, but Shakespeare said it better.

Act II, Scene III Macbeth

Porter: Faith, sir, we were carousing till the second cock; and drink, sir, is a great provoker of three things.

Macbeth: And lechery?

Porter: Lechery, sir, it provokes and unprovokes. It provokes the desire but it takes away the performance.

Too much drink persuades him and disheartens him.—W. C. Buff in K.C.

Dear Buff: Shakespeare said everything better. Thanks for the research.

No Reason Is Offered For Shooting Outbreak

ATLANTA (AP) — A man who had been standing for several minutes in the driveway of a midtown parking garage suddenly pulled a pistol and began firing—for no apparent reason, police said.

Six persons were wounded, none seriously, and dozens of late-night strollers and night-club patrons were sent diving for cover about midnight Friday.

One man was grazed on the head; the others suffered bullet wounds in the arms and hands.

Minutes after the shooting, police arrested Harry Mitchell Camp, 29, of suburban Riverdale and charged him with six counts of aggravated assault and with carrying a pistol without a license.

Police said that when they arrested Camp eight blocks from the scene in the nearly deserted Union Station he was holding a pistol with six spent cartridges in it.

Police said they could establish no motive for the shootings. "as far as we can tell," said one detective, "he just started blazing away."

All of those shot were either waiting for parking garage attendants to bring their cars or were passing by on the sidewalk.

A number of persons witnessed the shootings. Mrs. Hardy Cowen of Tucker, Ga., said the man began firing for no apparent reason. She said he fired indiscriminately, pausing between each shot.

"My husband was getting our car out when I noticed the man standing there," she said. "He was staring at me and it made me uneasy because I thought he might start something."

"Then a girl walked up," she said. "At first I thought it was firecrackers going off but then I knew better."

Mrs. Cowen, an attractive platinum blonde, said she and the girl ducked.

"The man moved across the driveway with the pistol out," she recounted, "and he started shooting again. I saw people groaning and falling. The shots went bang-bang-bang and people were on the concrete. There could have been more. Blood was everywhere.

Another witness said the gunman tucked the pistol into his belt and bolted down Fairlie Street, which borders the front of the multilevel parking garage.

"He ran right by me," he said. "I didn't know what he had done so I didn't try to grab him. I could have easily."

Several passersby rushed to the wounded and attempted to use handkerchiefs to stem the bleeding until ambulances arrived. The concrete driveway was spotted with blood.

Guaranteed Dryness

—even if you perspire freely.

Why does Nina stress guaranteed dryness? Because millions of women have failed to find anything that keeps them really dry. Because they have found promises of "extra dryness" and such phrases to fall disappointingly short of real dryness.

Especially, women who perspire freely.

So Nina Anti-Perspirant is guaranteed. Because it really works. It contains far more anti-wetness agent than it is possible—chemically possible — to put in an aerosol spray can. Any aerosol can!

And for women who perspire moderately, Nina Anti-Perspirant is so effective, many find they need use it only every third or fourth day, regardless of bathing, and still enjoy luxurious, confident dryness.

With all this, Nina Anti-Perspirant is entirely safe for normal skin and clothing. It is certified safe for fabrics by The American Institute of Laundering. And fully effective as a deodorant, too.

And for good measure, Nina Anti-Perspirant—liquid or cream—is guaranteed. If you are not entirely satisfied, return the unused portion to your retailer. He is authorized to refund full cash price.

Trying To Clear The Air

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)— A youthful member of the President's Commission on Campus Disorder came to Lawrence Saturday, hoping to initiate some dialogue which might clear the air in this university city divided by racial and cultural differences.

Joseph Rhodes, a 22-year-old black junior fellow at Harvard University, came at the invitation of a group formed here called Coordinating Committee for Biracial Investigation.

"Talking and listening sometimes can do a lot to calm things," Rhodes said in explaining his mission.

Besides the dialogue in Lawrence, the Kansas Board of Regents scheduled a special meeting for Sunday afternoon in Topeka to discuss the University of Kansas' involvement in recent events in Lawrence.

The Black Student Union, a recognized campus organization, was linked to the purchase of guns and ammunition in Kansas City, Mo., recently. A check drawn on an account of the BSU was used to buy the arms.

While a regents' investigation has failed to find any evidence of state funds being involved in the special BSU account, some state figures have said the state is involved because an official campus organization is involved.

Rhodes said he came to Lawrence not as an official member of the President's commission, headed by former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, but as an individual attempting to get the various factions talking to one another.

"There are many elements involved that are of interest to the national commission," said Rhodes, who was appointed to the Scranton commission just last month.

Among those meeting with him were City Manager Buford Watson Jr., Police Chief Richard Stanwix, City Human Relations Commissioner Vernell Stearns, City Commissioner Jim Black, Francis Heller, vice chancellor of the university; William Balfour, dean of students; Bill Ebert, president of the university student body; George Kimball, one of the key figures in the hippy-type colony on Oread Avenue, and two faculty members.

Also attending the sessions were Cynthia Turner, Leonard Harrison and Horace Bond, representing the black community; Dolph Simons, editor of the Lawrence Journal-World; Floyd Horowitz of the American Civil Liberties Union and Tom Heart, spokesman for a citizens group pledged to support law enforcement.

While the group talked, city officials informed Gov. Robert Docking of their desire to begin a phased withdrawal of the 25 highway patrolmen sent into Lawrence last Tuesday when the governor declared a state of emergency.

The patrol troopers will begin leaving a few at a time at 6 a.m. Sunday—to be recalled on quick notice if any new trouble develops — while the state of emergency will remain in effect until 6 a.m. Wednesday, the governor's office said.

The restrictions on sale of gasoline and firearms will remain in effect as long as the state of emergency is in effect.

Docking had no plans to return to Lawrence, where he went last Tuesday evening for an on-the-spot check. The governor was to be in Overland Park Saturday night, and Kingman Sunday. He was briefed twice Saturday by Col. William Albott, superintendent of the highway patrol who has remained in Lawrence.

Investigations into the shooting incident last Monday night on Oread Avenue near the university campus continued with a heavy volume of interviews and reports piling up for County Atty. Young and Coroner Dr. James S. Reed to consider before calling a coroner's inquest into the death of Nick Rice.

Rice, 18-year-old university sophomore-to-be this fall, died of a shot in the head when police and the "street people" of Oread Avenue clashed. Another student, Merton Olds, 25, Topeka, was wounded in the leg the same night.

Also continuing was an investigation launched by the black community, which called the coroner's inquest into the death of Rick Dowdell "ludicrous" and said it plans a "trial" of its own to decide the cause of Dowdell's death to its satisfaction.

Dowdell, 19, a black from the city's near east side, was shot by a policeman July 16 after a police chase. Officers said Dowdell was armed, but a girl with him at the time, Miss Franki Cole, disputed this in a public statement she issued after not testifying at the inquest. She declined to waive her right to invoke the Fifth Amendment and Young refused to question her.

Young has indicated it will take some time to study all the reports before deciding on an inquest in the Rice death.

A grass fire at Ohio and Henry was extinguished by Sedalia firemen at 10:20 a.m. Thursday.

The cause of the fire was undetermined. No damage was reported.

thus does not cover such items as multiwarhead missiles, missile testing, medium-range missiles in Europe, radar, research and development or other quality improvements, informants said.

The numbers ceiling proposed in the U.S. plan is said to be around 2,200. This would cover the 1,054 U.S. Minuteman ICBMs, its 656 Polaris undersea missiles and around 500 B52 long-range bombers.

The Soviets are reported to have about 1,250 ICBMs including 300 SS9s, plus a couple hundred each of submarine missiles and strategic bombers.

Thinking

more difficult to continue American withdrawals.

The foreign secretary said he expects Red China to play a major role in the development of Asia. He thought it incorrect to talk of Indochina "becoming a Chinese sphere of influence." Successive British governments have favored seating Peking in the United Nations. The British now "are ready to do anything in our power to cooperate with China" in the search for an Indochinese peace.

Here is a partial text of the interview:

Q. You have accepted the concept of preserving the balance of power between Israel and its Arab neighbors. Has the Soviet Union upset that balance through its manpower and sophisticated weapons involvement in the United Arab Republic?

A. The increased Soviet commitment to the air defense of the U.A.R. has certainly introduced a new factor.

Q. How do you feel about reports of additional Russian arms shipments to Libya?

A. Well, it's part of a pattern, isn't it? If you take Libya, the U.A.R. and Somalia you'll find additional Russian aid going into the whole of the area. This is a fact of life: Undoubtedly the Soviet Union is expanding in the direction of the Middle East, the Persian Gulf and in the Mediterranean sea—and this is something of which the NATO alliance must take account.

Q. Are you more hopeful about prospects in the Middle East?

A. There are signs both the Egyptians and the Israelis are beginning to think, just beginning to think, in terms that a negotiated settlement might be better than a continuing war—I don't think anyone can go further than that at the moment...

Q. Do you see a softening in the Soviet position?

A. Well they have been talking the same language, I think, as the rest in the four-power talks ... as to how you can get a peace and also the guarantees that are necessary to keep the peace ... and so there's a slightly more optimistic feeling there.

Post Office Policing

The Post Office Department inspects and supervises all post offices with its own investigators. Violations of postal laws are prosecuted by the Justice Department, notably in cases of mail frauds.

Arguments

In October of that year a suit was filed to clear the law so the roadbuilding bonds could be sold. It went to the Missouri Supreme Court and that court knocked the law out as unconstitutional in July 1968.

Hearnes didn't quit. He asked the 1969 legislature to start the ball rolling on a proposed constitutional amendment—the one coming to a public vote Aug. 4—that would permit the use of public highway funds if necessary to pay off toll road bonds.

As an alternative, he suggested that the Constitution be changed to permit the Highway Commission to issue bonds for financing free public roads— to build in 10 years public highways that under normal procedures would take 20 years.

The House liked that idea better and passed it 98-31, meanwhile holding up a toll road plan. But the Senate was working on its own toll road proposal and the influence of the administration could be seen as it sailed through the Senate and House. The bond proposal that had looked so good in the House was locked up in the Senate Roads and Highways Committee and suffocated there.

Some of the organizations that now are actively backing the toll road plan were originally in favor of the bond plan for public highways. But when that plan died and only the toll road proposal was available they switched.

Most of the groups backing toll roads now have a direct interest in its passage, organizations like the Missouri Good Roads and Streets Association, Missouri Automobile Dealers, and Associated General Contractors.

The opposition is coming from such organizations as the Missouri Automobile Association, the Farm Bureau Federation and the Missouri Farmers Association.

Hearnes said he believes the automobile club got former Gov. John M. Dalton to come out publicly against it. He said he wasn't surprised at Dalton's public position because he and Dalton never have agreed on any public policy.

The St. Joseph News-Poress in an editorial July 21 quoted from a letter it said was mailed by John R. Hahn, executive director of the Missouri Oil Jobbers Association, to members of the organization. It asked for contributions, to be mailed directly to Hearnes, in behalf of a newly organized "Missourians for Progress" group that is backing the toll road proposition.

"'I would appreciate it if you mentioned that you are an oil jobber member because that will help all of us on other legislation next year,' Mr. Hahn stated in the letter," the editorial said.

"Missourians for Progress" was avowedly organized to provide "a modest advertising campaign in behalf of Amendment 2, the toll road amendment," the organization's first public announcement said.

"We are a broadly based organization, representative of the diverse interests which support the toll road program as the only way to go now for significant new highway construction," Hahn said in that announcement.

Nixon

The Democratic response:

"It is clear that on balance, Congress will again reduce the total sum requested by the administration for spending. It will do so in an effort to bring this nation out of the economic crisis in which it finds itself."

The dispute between a Republican President and a Democratic Congress is certain to echo into the campaign for the Nov. 3 elections, but Mansfield said GOP members have helped shape the record of the Senate and House.

Thefts

market has been recovered. A third man apprehended by local authorities and suspected in the case has been turned over to the Benton County sheriff, Miller said.

Hopkins and Warren were taken into custody Saturday moringin and charged in a state complaint signed by Prosecuting Attorney Henry Keeler. Both men are being held in the Pettis County jail in lieu of $2,500 bond each.

Nixon Consults Aides Before Budget Meetings

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, opening a 10-day stay at the Western White House, conferred with aides Saturday in advance of formal meetings early this week on the 1972 budgets for defense and domestic programs.

The pace was leisurely, but the White House has passed the word there will be plenty of work for the President during his stay on the West Coast.

Furthermore, a previously announced trip to Mexico apparently won't turn into what the President called his first vacation in five years. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler now is projecting it as an official and comparatively brief, visit of perhaps three or four days.

Nixon brought to California only part of his domestic team when he arrived late Friday from Washington. He had stopped along the way in Fargo, N.D., to meet with five plains state governors and in Salt Lake City with the hierarchy of the Mormon Church.

But on Monday there will be a general meeting to size up its economic outlook in preparation for sessions Tuesday for early stages of planning the 1972 defense budget and a similar meeting Wednesday on the domestic budget.

Ziegler said there is special aspect of the Monday session relating to reorganization of the Defense Department with a view to more efficient operations. Ziegler said it would be "a little blatant to say that yes, the White House is going to reorganize the Department of Defense," but that it was a matter of working with the secretary in the interests of greater departmental efficiency.

All of this will tie in with a report to be released Tuesday from a blue-ribbon commission set up by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird to examine departmental activities and suggest ways of improving them. The commission is under the chairmanship of Gilbert Fitzhugh, Metropolican Life Insurance Co. executive.

Laird arrives here Monday, along with Undersecretary David Packard and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's top aide for national security affairs. However, neither Laird nor Packard was listed for the Tuesday session on the defense budget.

Nixon is confronted with an out-of-balance budget for the 1970 fiscal year that ended the first of this month and for the 1971 year started then.

Congress has been getting periodic presidential beratings for those financial facts, and threats of vetos for bills to spend more than he has asked.

Police Working On Death

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)—Police say they are working without clues and any apparent motive in the death of a telephone company executive, slain by a bomb planted under the driver's seat of his car.

Phillip J. Lucier, 49, president of the Continental Telephone Co of Clayton, a St. Louis suburb, died when his car blew up as he turned on the ignition after a luncheon appointment Friday.

St. Louis County police pieced together fragments of the bomb. They said it had a three-foot-long detonating wire attached to a windshield wiper fuse slot in Lucier's car.

Maj. Harold Johnson of the Clayton police called the bombing "a very professional job."

The St. Louis Area Major Case Squad entered the investigation, headed by Capt. Nicholas Valenti of the St. Louis police. He said no leads or motive had developed.

Question
What does a funeral cost?

Answer
Children have a riddle, "How long is a piece of string?" Asking what a funeral costs is certainly not a riddle but it requires an understanding of terms. Quite often a funeral does not cost the survivors anything from their own funds. Burial benefits from the Veterans Administration or Social Security or workmen's Compensation or some phase of a state welfare program may be utilized to defray the cost. Frequently people make a pre-need deposit with us for their funeral service and, when this is done, there is no cost to the survivors.

In those instances where there are no funeral benefits, people who ask this question are vitally concerned with what their cost after death will be or what they will be called upon to pay for someone else. Since we recognize our moral responsibility to serve all people we will always have funeral services within the financial means of everyone.

Appearing in First Film in 27 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Mae West, appearing in her first film in 27 years, saunters onto the screen in white jacket and slacks, wide-brimmed hat over her long blonde hair, a scarf trailing from her diamond-studded hand.

Portraying a men-only talent agent, she sashays past a waiting group of muscular clients and into her office, where she murmurs offhandedly to her male secretary: "Mmmmm. Got a mob of men out there. I'm a little tired today; better send one of 'em home."

It's the kind of pregnant line that Mae West, with that wicked wink in her voice, that daring double in every entendre, has been delivering for more than six decades of stage and screen life.

As she celebrates her 77th birthday Aug. 17, the Brooklyn-born cinema queen of the sexual innuendo still draws the bulk of the applause, still lures a vast audience of old and new fans, and can still convince a film studio she deserves top billing, a $350,000 salary and the right to write her own material in a film in which she has a relatively small part.

Diamond Lil lives.

Mae West is that myth; she has become the character she created. Once a parody of sex morality, she is now a parody of Mae West, a hip-swinging, lip-loose lady of the sex-inviting innuendo.

"Come on up and see me sometime," she teased Cary Grant in "She Done Him Wrong" back in 1933. "Come on up ..... I'll tell your fortune."

"Goodness had nothing to do with it, dearie," she purrs to the hatcheck girl who remarked, "Goodness, what beautiful diamonds," in "Night After Night," her first film.

"When I'm good, I'm very, very good," she drawled in "I'm No Angel." "But when I'm bad, I'm better."

It was never what Mae West said as much as how she said it. The promising pause before the line, while she "worked" her eyes, pursed her lips, jutted her hip.

Good-humored vulgarity; honest sexuality. That's Mae West on screen.

I came on up to see Mae West in the figurative flesh when she was in New York for the premiere of "Myra Breckinridge," a film which neither she nor the critics were reluctant to pan.

There was no smoking in the room; she neither smokes nor drinks. Her diet consists mainly of fresh fruits and vegetables: "It's the best thing for you."

Regally vain, she wouldn't answer questions while a photographer took her picture, lest he get a less-than-flattering shot. She kept a hand mirror close by to check the lighting on her face and worried about a full-length pose because she wasn't wearing her girdle.

She sought sycophantic advice from her bodyguard, who instructed, as she posed, "Dear, a step toward the right. That's it ... Dear, a little forward now to get out of the shadow. Good."

"Good?" she exclaimed. "I have to look great!"

When she stood and preened, she was La Grande Dame, Diamond Lil returned with all her vitality. When she sat and talked, she was less animated, but candid and reflective, happy to talk about her favorite subject—Mae West.

She spoke of her new-found fans, the youths who came by her via the late TV movies. "They've been waiting for me for a long time," she allowed. "The young people; they're great. They like my style."

Many of them weren't even born when she made her last film, "The Heat's On," in 1943. It was a movie Miss West wasn't very happy with and it influenced her return to the stage, in "Diamond Lil" and "Catherine Was Great," and touring with a muscle-man act for three years. She also did a TV show and a rock 'n' roll album.

She said she turned down film offers during that period. "I was offered 'Dolly,' but I didn't want to be Dolly. I'm a Diamond Lil."

But she accepted "Myra Breckinridge" because "I was about ready to do my own story, but it needed another month of preparation. The producer said he wouldn't do the film without me—he figured on me for the boxoffice. I wrote my own dialogue. I wrote more, but it didn't get in because of the director. He didn't have enough experience. They were behind schedule and when they hit $5 million, they stopped it. They figured they had enough of me as is .... I think the public wanted more of me ....

"I wouldn't play Myra, though .... It's not for any star."

The film itself, about a sex change, is barred to 17-year-olds and younger of its X rating. That fits the West career, which is studded with censorship hassles.

Adolph Zukor, film pioneer and former head of the Paramount studios which produced most of Miss West's films, once said at least one state and many communities opposed a part of every film she made for the company.

When she wrote her first play, "Sex," in 1927—with the encouragement of her mother—it was closed by police censors and she was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Jones Has Digging Knack

NEW YORK (AP) — Shirley Jones has always had the knack for digging into a role, but in her first television series she's having a little trouble with the clutch.

The clutch is attached to an old, psychedelic-hued school bus that Shirley drives in her upcoming ABC series, "The Partridge Family."

"It's got a stickshift and I learned to drive on automatic," she said. "It's the clutch problem."

The bus is used to transport her TV family to singing engagements, where Shirley, as the mother joins in. "It's me and the five children," she said. If you think that sounds like the Cowsills you're absolutely right.

The singing role brings Shirley full circle back to the time she arrived in New York with $250 in her pocket after a stint at the Pittsburgh Playhouse. "I started in musical comedy," she said. "I was a nurse in 'South Pacific,' then I was in 'Me and Juliet' and after that the movie version of 'Oklahoma!'"

"Carousel" came after that and Shirley was beginning to worry that people thought of her whenever they saw gingham. The role that changed that was that of the prostitute in "Elmer Gantry," which won her an Oscar.

In "Music Man" she was back to prim librarian, but in "Happy Ending" she was a mistress to three men and in the forthcoming "Cheyenne Social Club" she's a madam. Shirley, dressed in a beige suit and wearing a knit tam on hair the color of ripe Oklahoma wheat, laughed and said, "Before 'Gantry' no one ever thought of me for anything else but musicals.

"Now people forget I was a singer and I've had people ask me who sang for me in 'Oklahoma!' That's a compliment because it means I've established myself as an actress."

It was on a good-will tour abroad with "Oklahoma!" that she met her husband, musical comedy star Jack Cassidy. "We had our courtship in Paris and Rome. We were married at the Cambridge Drama Festival while we were doing 'The Beggar's Opera.'

"I have three boys of my own and a stepson"—she smiled and displayed her dimples—"so playing a mother isn't anything new for me."

In "The Partridge Family" her stepson, 16-year-old David Cassidy, plays the oldest son. David, Shirley and the other girl are the only ones in the group actually singing. The others, plus the instruments, are dubbed.

Peace Could Send Market Soaring

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made it plain this past week that any real indication of peace in Vietnam or settlement to the Mideast crisis could send it soaring.

It was supposed to have been a week of consolidation of recent strong gains, but the market rallied three times in two days on reports that potentially could lead to easing of tensions in the two world trouble spots.

"It illustrated how this market would take any favorable indication of an end to the Vietnam War," John J. Smith of Fahnestock & Co. said of Wednesday upsurge. "It was a great demonstration of how it's thirsting for peace in Vietnam."

For the week, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 4.86 at 730.22. The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .4 on the week to 244.0, while the New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks was ahead .13 at 42.28 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock average was up .13 at 77.82.

The American Stock Exchange price-change index gained .13 on the week, finishing at 20.32.

Of the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 936 advanced and 663 declined. New yearly lows were touched by 78 issues and highs by 24.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange rose to 56.1 million shares from 49.7 million shares the previous week.

Of the 20 most active issues on the Big Board, 10 declined, eight advanced and two were unchanged.

The five most-active issues on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Goodyear, off 1 at 24⅞; Plessey, unchanged at 2¾; International Telephone & Telegraph, off ⅜ at 46⅝; Occidental Petroleum, up 1¾ at 15½; and Texaco, up 1⅜ at 30⅛.

The five most-active issues on the American Exchange were: Equity Funding, off ½ at 21⅞; Saxon Industries, up 1 at 18¼; Milgo Electronic, up 2 at 21⅜; Digital Equipment, off 1½ at 52⅜; and Deltona, up 1⅝ at 18⅛.

In the bond market, the rally continued for another week, with most areas showing advances from 7 to 11 per cent.

At the end of the week, government bonds were slightly higher. Short-term Treasury bills also were slightly lower. Municipal bonds continued their advance.

Dickens' character, Mr. Wilkins Micawber, is said to be a portrayal of his father and Mrs. Micawber to represent his mother.

Soviet Tests Are Detected

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The Uppsala Seismological Institute reported today that it has recorded two Soviet underground nuclear tests during the past four days near Semispalatinsk in Siberia, some 300 miles from the border of Sinkiang province, northwest China.

Prof. Marcus Baath, head of the institute, said the first blast occurred at 8:03 p.m. EDT Monday and the second at 8:57 p.m. EDT Thursday. The first explosion had a magnitude of 6.1 on the Richter scale—a rather strong intensity—and the second had a magnitude of 5.6.

Dr. Maddox Honored at Dinner

Dr. Albert R. Maddox, well known Sedalia physician, was the guest of honor at a testimonial banquet sponsored by the Queen City chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star at the Coffee Pot Cafe Thursday night.

Dr. Maddox, one of Sedalia's leading physicians and a specialist in pediatrics, has served Sedalia residents since 1927.

Master of ceremonies at the dinner was John W. Spencer, Jr., and Harry Browder was the guest speaker.

Browder, in referring to the testimonial dinner, said, "I cannot think of a more fitting occasion for any citizen who has served humanity faithfully, neither can I think of one of our citizens of Sedalia who is more deserving."

Continuing, Browder addressed his remarks to "Maddox: the Man, the Mason and the Myth." Browder then traced Maddox's contributions in these areas, concluding that "he has become a living legend in his own time."

Other brief tributes were given in assorted areas by various persons as follows: church, Ralph E. Lee; neighbor, The Rev. C. G. Nelson, Jr.; civic, Oscar Lawson and Mrs. Helen Fields; N.A.A.C.P., Mrs. Elnora Green; medical, Dr. T. J. Hopkins; school and nursery, Mrs. Dorothy Kitchen, and Masonic, William Cason.

Dr. Maddox is a native of Kansas and comes from a family of physicians, teachers, technicians and businessmen. He received degrees from the University of Kansas and Howard University in Washington, D.C. He served his internship at Kansas City General Hospital.

Married to the former Miss Olive Cox, he has a daughter and a grand-daughter, who live in San Francisco. For two years he served as superintendent of Hospital No. 2 in Sedalia.

A civic leader in Sedalia for many years, Dr. Maddox holds memberships in Centennial Lodge No. 59, the V.F.W., American Legion, Pettis County Medical Association, Chamber of Commece, Human Rights Commission, the N.A.A.C.P., the Pan Missouri Medical Society, the O.E.S., the Northside Citizens Association and the Home Owners Association.

Tunnel Is Opened Under Paris Arch

PARIS (AP) — The city opened a tunnel under the Arc de Triomphe today, a measure it hopes will reduce the traffic jams that traditionally clog the area called L'Etoile.

Traffic in the tunnel runs in only one direction, from the Champs Elysees to the Avenue de la Grande Armee. Eventually, a second tunnel is to be built running in the other direction, but the city has said it does not have the money to start construction now.

Outcasts Take Over Island

NEW YORK (AP) — Ellis Island, where since 1954 the weeds have flourished around the old brick buildings that once were the gateway to America for millions of immigrants, today is home for some 60 squatters.

All of them black and many of them ex-convicts and former drug addicts, they took over the island and are refurbishing it with plans to make it into a rehabilitation center for 2,500 persons.

The squatters said they arrived by 30-foot skiff Monday. They were not spotted until Friday, however, when a passing helicopter pilot saw them. By then, they had cleared some of the weeds and set up a factory to make cleaning powder.

The squatters, who plan to stay only a few days, issued a statement declaring they will leave as soon as they demonstrate "the capacity of society's forgotten drug addicts, multigenerational welfare recipients and former prison inmates to create a self-supporting, productive, rehabilitative community."

Federal authorities who control the island—which became part of the Statue of Liberty National Monument in 1965, but for which no rehabilitation money has been appropriated—appeared to be quietly looking the other way.

Travelers Can Bank on American Express

PARIS (AP) — It may be the bank with the longest-haired customers in Europe.

The American Express office in Paris, in fact, is more than just a bank and a travel office. It is home away from home for tens of thousands of Americans crisscrossing Europe—including the mass of uncombed kids who hang around only to pick up mail and meet friends. Generally they have no money to spend. They clog up the offices and give the place the appearance of a bus station in Berkeley. American Express officials tolerate them because it regards them as the customers of the future.

"Our image does pose a problem," admits William Riddle, the Paris bank manager. "Our customers coming to the second floor bank wonder why all the kids congregate downstairs. Sometimes it's good for business, sometimes it's bad."

George Segal, the French manager of the Travel Department, has little patience with the hippie crowd that hangs around his busy counters.

"We aren't a philanthropic institution," Segal fays firmly. "Sometimes these kids are broke and beg from our clients. One Canadian girl kept asking our clients, 'Do you have a dollar to spare? I'm broke.' They actually gave her a few francs!"

Most of these indigent, would-be customers congregate down in the basement, which contains several shopping counters, a small American drugstore corner and the highly popular mail desk.

Many of them are hoping for money from home. Some wait for friends or potential friends. A few check the bulletin board for help wanted ads and cheap rooms to rent.

Henrietta Merquiol, who has been behind the mail desk for over 18 years, says the younger generation has not changed as much as you would think since 1951.

"The young people don't always dress in an attractive way," she has noticed, "but they are almost always polite and well brought-up, quite sedate and poised for their age."

Not long ago, an American Express official visited the downstairs rest room and discovered writing on the walls and a pot party in process. Further investigation revealed that many young tourists were trying to use the mail desk as a drug pickup.

Now, all letters must come through the mails or—if delivered by hand—must be brought to the desk open for inspection. Rest rooms can only be opened by a floorwalker's key.

Still, the atmosphere is not repressive or even conservative. The man mainly responsible for this understanding attitude is Bill Simmons, a good-humored man with sandy hair and blue eyes. He is administrative manager of the Paris office, one of only four U.S. citizens employed at the Paris office.

"It's true that we are a financial institution, not a charitable institution," Riddle agrees, "but we do what we can. Those we can't help, we refer to the welfare department of the American Embassy or to the American Aid Society. No one starves in Paris for want of a few francs."

Often American Express is the only address parents have, so it is the first place an anxious parent will turn to for help.

Even a request to find a missing person is regarded as routine in the American Express office. Chief Inspector Rex Smith, a former C.I.D. man, says: "We practically run an unofficial missing persons bureau here."

Finding missing people is only a small part of the job. The Paris office has so many customers during the busy season that there often are long lines of people waiting to be helped. Many of them are on their first trip abroad; some are experienced globetrotters.

Ken Morgan, 23, has been in Paris a couple of years, since he left Stanford, Mont.

"I come about three times a week," he explains, "to get my mail and to meet old friends. Right now I'm waiting for money. Some of my friends are going to send me money."

Three tired tourists are less explicit.

Pot? They just shrug their shoulders and grin. Above all, the young people seem grateful to be left alone by part of the Establishment, and they are pleased the American Express doesn't try to throw them out.

Bill Simmons explains why: "Some of our clients of tomorrow may be a little wild today, but if we are too severe on our side of the generation gap now, they'll remember it in 20 years. So we're as understanding as we can be, without allowing pot."

People with arguments or a language barrier are sent up to be soothed by Simmons. It's a challenging job.

"I still remember the day a young girl came into my office with a broken iron and asked me to fix it. Using a letter opener, I unscrewed the plug and put it back together properly. When I had finished, she thanked me and turned to leave.

"Of course, I couldn't resist asking her why she had brought her iron to my office.

Chez American Express

The American Express office in Paris is more than just a bank and a travel office used by sedate, middle-aged tourists. It's also a favorite haunt of American hippies, who congregate there to pick up mail and meet friends. The hairy hordes "don't always dress in an attractive way, but they are almost always polite and well-brought-up," says the mail desk clerk. (AP)

See Quick Results In Drug Crackdown

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. customs commissioner has announced that 760 narcotics seizures valued at $4 million and 658 arrests have been made in the first six weeks of a stepped-up nationwide program to curb drug smuggling.

Myles J. Ambrose said Friday the program to stem the growing tide of illicit narcotics from abroad stems from expansion of a Customs Bureau campaign begun last year by direction of the President.

Hospital Corpsman Third Class Floyd J. Turner has arrived here to spend a 30-day leave with his mother., Mrs. Nadine Turner, 1614 Liberty Park Blvd. Turner had spent a year on duty with the Navy in Vietnam. At the end of his leave he will be stationed at Great Lakes Ill.

World News Capsule

LONDON (AP) — Tightened security measures including a bullet-proof screen are under consideration on demand of members of Parliament because of Thursday's gas-bombing incident in the House of Commons.

Scotland yard's chief trouble-shooter was assigned Friday to figure out means of increasing security. He is John Gerard, a deputy assistant commissioner who has handled security at demonstrations and state ceremonies.

A 26-year-old Irish construction worker, James Anthony Roche, was ordered held for a hearing July 31 on charges stemming from the incident.

Burned carpeting had been replaced by the time the legislators reassembled for a short session Friday before adjourning for the summer, but the acrid smell of the tear and nerve gas lingered.

Laborite William Hamilton said he planned to ask Prime Minister Edward Heath to assign a senior security expert to investigate the situation.

"One has to face the problem of marring the traditional freedom that this House and its visitors enjoy and the security necessary to safeguard the lives of politicians and statesmen," Hamilton said.

He and other members said the bullet-proof shield could be topped with a wire-mesh screen to prevent the House's 175,000 visitors a year from tossing objects into the chamber.

Dissent Survives in South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Political opposition survives in South Vietnam despite the government's methods of squelching certain of its critics.

More than 80,000 persons accused of political offenses are said to be in custody. Still, anti-government demonstrations are held in the streets of Saigon, and newspapers criticize the government for its handling of domestic and foreign affairs.

Instead of being intimidated by President Nguyen Van Thieu's warnings of a crackdown, dissident students appear to be gaining strength. The frequent seizure of newspaper editions critical of the government has served to popularize the dailies that are confiscated most often.

The widespread and articulate dissent is limited, however, by the opposition's fragmented nature and because the government does not tolerate all protests.

About 30,000 political prisoners are classified as "Communist criminals," meaning arrest for Viet Cong activities not directly associated with war action. Many of these are people rounded up by the U.S.-supported Phoenix program designed to eliminate the "Viet Cong infrastructure," leaders and political cadre of the National Liberation Front.

Some claim they were simply near the scene of a battle, picked up afterward by American or government troops and convicted by a military field court of aiding the enemy.

The government seeks to classify them as criminals, not political prisoners.

A larger group of prisoners—said by the South Vietnamese Senate to number about 50,000—consists of persons banished from their provinces without trial under the An Tri decree of 1966.

This law provides that "persons considered dangerous to the national defense and public security may be interned in a prison or designated area or banished from designated areas for a maximum period of two years, which is renewable." Most An Tri detainees are held in government prisons, often segregated from other prisoners. They are not entitled to trial.

The famous Bow Bells are the bells of St. Mary-le-Bow (Bow Church), located almost in the center of London. The church was bombed during World War II; the bells were recast from the old metal and rung again in 1961 for the first time after more than 20 years.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission has announced evidence of another presumed Soviet underground nuclear test.

It was the second this week, the fourth this year and the 41st since the limited test ban treaty of August 1963.

The AEC said Friday the latest presumed test was rated to have an explosive wallop equivalent to between 20,000 and 200,000 tons of TNT. The seismic signals were believed to have originated in an area near the Semipalatinsk nuclear test area.

The limited test ban agreement allows underground tests but prohibits tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under water.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, chairman of the House foreign affairs subcommittee, has forecast new legislation defining the war powers of the president and Congress.

The Wisconsin Democrat, who heads the national security and policy and scientific developments subcommittee, said Friday a "broad consensus exists in the House for legislation which would define more precisely the war powers of the president and Congress."

Zablocki's subcommittee will hear testimony Tuesday from Nicholas Katzenbach, former undersecretary of state who now is a vice president of IBM Corp.

Zablocki said he felt this type of legislation would be more important than present efforts in the Senate to limit the president's powers through an amendment to the foreign military sales bill.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans on the Senate-House Economic Committee say Congress frequently has trouble seeing the growing forest of the federal budget because it's too busy looking at individual trees.

They called on congressional leaders Friday to shape a rational budget policy in terms of revenue and outlay totals and component programs priorities.

The Republicans said the present congressional preoccupation means the executive branch must "thin this forest by pruning someone's favorite trees."

Mayor Needs Tips On Slinging Guns

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP) — The mayor stepped into the street and confronted the gun slinger, a tough-looking hombre in a Mexican cowboy outfit.

The mayor suddenly drew his six shooter and pulled the trigger once, twice. . . Nothing happened. The gun slinger stood still and confident.

"Pull the hammer all the way back, your honor," cried a voice from the crowd.

The mayor turned and smiled in gratitude. "Thank you," he said.

Then he pulled the hammer back and got off two shots. The gun slinger fell to the street.

Egypt Is Said Motivated By Arms Aid to Israelis

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Egyptian acceptance of the U.S. Middle East peace proposals is "an attempt to prevent Israel from getting the arms necessary for its defense," says Israel Galili, a close advisor to Prime Minister Golda Meir.

Galili, a minister without portfolio, said Friday night that Israel "is now obliged to study its own options in a very balanced and clear-eyed manner in order to foil or frustrate this blatant attempt to mislead its friend."

The reference clearly was to the United States, Israel's chief ally and supplier of weapons.

Speaking at a meeting of Mrs. Meir's Labor party, Galili said Arab acceptance "did not mean that the Arabs were finally agreeing to peace. In this latest move there is not one point of agreement to any item that could bring peace nearer."

The prime minister has not issued a public statement on Egypt's acceptance of the plan. High-ranking members of the Israeli government are reluctant to accept the short-term cease-fire that is called for in the plan, saying the Arabs could use the period to fortify their armies.

U.S. Ambassador Walworth Barbour met for an hour and a half Friday with Mrs. Meir, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and some of Mrs. Meir's top political advisors. A government statement said only that "major issues were discussed," but Egypt's acceptance of the U.S. proposals undoubtedly was the main matter discussed.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser said his acceptance of the proposals was a tactic to keep Israel from obtaining additional arms.

He told members of Egypt's only political party Friday that Israle had hoped the Arabs would reject the proposals so that it would have justification for demanding more arms from the United States.

Instead, he said, "we have accepted the proposals in order not to give Israel reasons or motives to demand additional arms."

Nasser, answering questions from the national congress of the Arab Socialist Union, also said the American peace initiative may have been a ploy "to make us bear the responsibility of rejection and thus have more freedom in supplying Israel with more arms. We will wait and see what the Americans will do."

The American peace plan, made public June 19 by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, calls for a temporary Israeli-Egyptian-Jordanian cease-fire of at least 90 days and for indirect Arab-Israeli peace talks through a U.N. mediator.

Nasser said he doubted that the plan would bring a quick peace. Referring to Arab lands occupied by Israel after the June 1967 war, he declared: "I still believe what has been taken by force can only be restored by force."

The Egyptian president said he doubted that the Middle East conflict would evolve into a nuclear showdown, but he stressed his country's close contact with the Soviet Union during recent months. Russia has endorsed the U.S. peace initiative.

Nasser said that during his recent visit to Moscow, he "agreed with the Russians on both political and military plans."

He added that his top aide, Aly Sabri, will begin visiting Moscow every two months "to consult and discuss with the Soviets on the situation politically and militarily."

Asked when a three-month cease-fire called for in the U.S. plan would begin, Nasser replied: "When Israel declares its willingness to implement the resolution in full and without reservations, and when the United Nationsl mediator Gunnar Jarring returns to the area and informs U.N. Secretary-General U Thant on the commitment of all sides to it."

Nasser was referring to a 1967 U.N. Security Council resolution calling for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory occupied in the 1967 war and for Arab recognition of Israeli sovereignty within secure boundaries.

Fighting continued in the Suez Canal region Friday. The Egyptian command reported that 46 Israeli planes raided fortifications and artillery positions for four hours, causing little damage and no casualties.

'Confusion Meter' For Bad Teachers

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A University of Arizona student, Michael Pomeroy, says he has developed an electronic "confusion meter" designed to let students tell a professor they didn't understand his lecture without the embarrassment of raising their hands.

They could covertly press the button on a light-weight transmitter, Pomeroy said, which would register their confusion on a receiver held by the professor.

Dr. Stuart Hoening, an electrical engineering professor who helped Pomeroy, said the device, when in production, would be far cheaper than similar devices now in use and would be portable while present systems are fixed.

Ballet in America Spreading

Ballet Country

Ballet country has been found to be just as much Atlanta, Ga., and Nashville, Tenn., as New York, Chicago or Los Angeles. Regional ballet is flourishing, and these students in the advanced class of the Atlanta School of Ballet may aspire not only to dance with the parent Atlanta Ballet, but also to go on to one of the big metropolitan professional companies. (AP)

By LYDIA JOEL

Ballet in America is getting on its feet far from the metropolitan stages.

Dance talent lives everywhere, and the regional ballet youth movement, now extending coast to coast, is training thousands of involved teen-agers.

Many dancers in professional companies today have trained with regional companies, says Robert Joffrey, director of the company bearing his name.

Joffrey, at the Southeastern Regional Ballet Festival in Nashville, Tenn., described the fast-changing trends resulting from the growth of regional ballet, a development of dance in the community. "So much talk," he said, "of our restless youth. But a more disciplined, hard-working crew than the over-13s in regional ballet doesn't exist. And that's true of their teacher-directors, too."

Four hundred directors and dancers were present at the post-Gala Performance banquet at Nashville's elegant Cumberland Club in late April. On another weekend, in Little Rock, Ark., Southwestern Regional Ballet Association companies performed. In mid-May, dancers of the Pacific Association gathered to dance in San Diego. In late May, Northeastern Association companies from states east of the Mississippi and north of the Mason-Dixon line, including Canada, were guests of the Toronto Regional Ballet.

Dorothy Alexander, founder of the 40-year-old Atlanta Ballet, also founded the regional ballet movement by hosting the first festival, in Atlanta, in 1956. The Northeast organized and made its debut in a Wilkes-Barre, Pa., festival in 1959. The Southwest presented itself in Austin, Tex., in 1963 and the Pacific's premiere was in Sacramento, Calif., in 1966. To date there have been 39 festivals.

Festival guests usually include a sprinkling of international celebrities, such as Elxandra Danilova or Ted Shawn. Also present are elected representatives from all four regions and other board members of the National Association for Regional Ballet, Inc.—NARB. These are a corps of dedicated dance experts who, in a voluntary, advisory capacity, carefully guide the over-all direction of regional ballet while respecting the zealously guarded autonomy of each region.

When the fifth and final area, which is slowly coalescing in the middle states with the help of arts councils in Missouri and Illinois, is defined, it also will be represented.

PRIVATE CAROUSEL

READING, England (AP) — Five-year-old Patrina Williams is queen of the kids in her neighborhood in nearby Tadley She has her own private merry-go-round.

He father, Bill Williams, bought the carousel after it had been unused and neglected for 18 years, rebuilt it and gave it to Patrina. The carousel was built in 1903.

Farm Roundup

Two Per Cent Increase In Calf Crop Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department economists have made a mid-year estimate of the 1970 calf crop showing a two per cent gain from last year's output.

The estimate, based on the number of cows and heifers on farms as of Jan. 1, put the calves to be born this year at 45,955,000 head. The projection covered all types, including dairy as well as beef calves.

Also, officials point out, the July estimate is preliminary and will be revised later on.

Last year, for example, the July estimate for the 1969 calf crop was one per cent larger than 1968 output. Last February, in a revised estimate, the department said 1969 calf production actually was two per cent larger than in 1968.

The projections have important bearings on determining how rapidly the nation's cattle herd is expanding and in the past have played an important role in estimating how the future beef supply is shaping up.

Department economists always hedge their estimates by referring to them as "preliminary" or in other ways to let the public know the figures are not final and can be subject to error.

But occasionally when estimates are off more than expected the statistics can cause concern among consumer groups as well as producers.

Earlier this year, for example, congressional investigators —partly on the basis of preliminary USDA estimates—charged that the U.S. beef industry was not expanding rapidly enough suggested a beef shortage might develop by 1975.

But afte revised calf production estimates were released, along with a larger inventory of cattle, than earlier expected, the longrange projection showed Americans would have more beef by 1975 than investigators had been led to believe during hearings.

Thus, the estimates—whether they are "preliminary" or final —have an impact on long range projections for U.S. meat output in the years ahead.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's surplus stockpile of wheat on July 1 was 880 million bushels, eight per cent more than a year earlier and the most since July 1, 1964, says the Agriculture Department.

The carryover represented old-crop wheat and resulted mainly from bumper harvests the past few years and a cutback in exports.

The four major feed grains—corn, oats, barley and sorghum —totaled 77 million tons on July 1, down three per cent from a year earlier.

Large demand, both domestic and export, for soybeans have drained off the record large 1969 crop and carryover supplies as of July 1 totaled 403 million bushels or 11 per cent less than a year earlier, the Crop Reporting Board said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youngsters who dislike green peas under any circumstances and ornery die-hards who like to mix them with mashed potatoes may have different views on an Agriculture Department outlook report.

According to the experts the country will have 11 per cent fewer green peas for processing this year. The major reason, says the Crop Reporting Board, is that growers have cutback the pea acreage this year.

But in case any pea lovers are worried, the 1970 crop is still expected to total 468,650 tons. No exact count was available.

Speaks to Crowd

Asks 'Pioneer' Spirit

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Exactly a year after welcoming America's moon pioneers back to earth, President Nixon said he would like to see at home the sort of pioneering spirit "that doesn't blame adversity on somebody else but tries to do something about it.

Speaking without notes, Nixon made the remark Friday night before a large—if dissent-studded crowd—in Salt Lake City en route here for a 10-day stay at the Western White House.

Earlier in his transcontinental trip Nixon stopped in Fargo, N.D., to confer on rural problems—especially farm-to-city migration—with five Plains state governors and five upper Middle West mayors.

Republicans are mounting strong challenges against incumbent Democratic senators in both states.

Nixon talked about the pioneering spirit while standing on the steps of the Salt Lake City administrative offices of the Mormon Church, flanked by top leaders of that faith.

Friday was "Pioneer Day" in Utah, a holiday marking the 123rd anniversary of the discovery of the Salt Lake valley by founders of the Church.

While scores of antiwar demonstrators made recurrent efforts to drown him out with "Peace Now!" chants, and others chanted "We want Nixon," the President declared that Pioneer Day had a message for all America:

"It is that kind of spirit ... that sees a great problem but, the greater the problem, puts in greater effort; the kind of spirit that doesn't blame adversity on somebody else, but tries to do something about it himself."

He went on: "And let me remind us all on this day, we in America know that we aren't perfect. We in America know that we have problems. But we also know that we are blessed with the greatest ability that the world has ever seen to solve those problems."

Keep Weapons Off Campus, He Advises

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Yale psychology professor has told a White House panel the way to end killings on American campuses is to take "murderous weapons out of the hands of civil authorities."

Dr. Kenneth Keniston, psychology professor at Yale Medical School, acknowledged students themselves initiated the "insane tactic" of violence. "But if we count bloodied heads, they are students' heads," he said.

Keniston spoke at length Friday before the last in a series of Washington hearings by the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

The commission plans to hold hearings next month in Jackson, Miss., where two students at Jackson State College were killed during a campus disturbance in May.

His testimony contrasted with that of Dr. Edward Teller, nuclear weapons pioneer, who asserted that unabated student protests could weaken national defense and invite a foreign takeover in 20 years.

Teller complained that "indoctrinated" young people "will not take a defense-related job," and threaten to force defense research out of the universities.

Teller, a physics professor at the University of California, advocated use of "armed forces" to prevent students from closing down schools or "converting them into political pressure groups."

But Keniston said lethal weapons were not necessary in controlling student disorder, and pointed to the success of soft-spoken New Haven Police Chief James Ahern, a commission member.

Touching on Teller's testimony, Keniston said it was morally wrong for universities to be engaged in defense research, except in times of declared war.

David A. Keene, a Wisconsin law student who heads the conservative Young Americans for Freedom, pronounced campus violence the result of "administrative failures, faculty timidity or else indifference to responsibility."

Milwaukee Mayor Henry W. Maier recommended a national "campus referendum" on leading issues as a method for students to express their views strongly but without violence.

MEN AND TOYS

CHICAGO (AP) — Marvin Glass, who studied to be a psychologist but wound up designing toys, says men should play with toys regularly to remain nimble and vital in body, mind and heart.

"What's more, they should play with a variety of toys as they did when they were boys, and not confine themselves to just one "hobby" type of toy, such as model railroads or model gasoline airplanes," he said.

"Men should remember how alert, quick and perceptive they were as children," he added.

This Year Could Become Turning Point

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

Mid-year of 1970 brought two major events that could shape much of the fight to save the American environment throughout this decade, and beyond.

One of them, President Nixon's sweeping attempt to coordinate the federal environmental effort, holds the promise of making the fight more effective.

But the other, the discovery of widespread and dangerous mercury poisoning of many American waters, promises that the struggle will be even more difficult than many had feared.

While any benefits to come from the President's proposed reorganization are some time away, making this a potential gain, the mercury pollution is an immediate reality and a major loss on any scorecard of man's antipollution race.

In pulling together a variety of pollution control efforts now scattered throughout government into one new agency, the Environmental Protection Agency, the President hopes to overcome the present system, which he said "often defies effective and concerted action."

One phase of the reorganization plan should please environmentalists—removing from the Atomic Energy Commission the authority for setting radiation exposure standards. Environmentalists have long charged the AEC with a conflict of interest, promoting the use of atomic energy while being responsible for regulating it.

The President also proposes combining air and sea research under a new National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration within the Commerce Department. It is being called "Noah."

Unless Congress objects, the entire plan goes into effect in 60 days from the July 9 announcement. Observers expect controversy over the AEC proposal.

The discovery of significant amounts of mercury in waters of at least 17 states takes on even more importance because it appears most people did not suspect the problem even existed. Just how widespread, how serious, and what damage to human health may already have occurred, is unknown. And what of all the other chemicals in the environment?

Mercury, the liquid inside ordinary thermometers, is a heavy metal that is poisonous to humans. It finds its way to water, federal officials say, in waste from industry, from paper, chlorine, sodium and plastics operations.

It can cause progressive brain damage, blindness, kidney damage, death. It can persist in water for 100 years, experts say. Industrial pollution experts previously believed that mercury did not dissolve in water, but sank harmlessly to the bottom of rivers and lakes.

—The government's effort to ban lead from gasoline is in trouble in Washington and the 1970 cars on the road have failed to meet exhaust reduction standards.

—If everybody stopped polluting Lake Erie today it would take at least 12 years for the lake to regenerate naturally.

—The Seminole and Miccosukee Indians have leased exploration rights to 100,000 acres of their land in the heart of the Florida Everglades to major oil companies, posing a new threat to the ecology of the Everglades.

—Further, Florida faces pollution problems of "catastrophic proportions" in the 1970s, according to a state report. Plans for coping with the problem are termed "grossly inadequate and ineffective."

Of the positive steps taken, many, like the President's reorganization plan, require time before they can produce results.

But as an indication of the changing times and attitudes, there is the new policy of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers —a group often considered as "an enemy of the people" by conservationists because of the engineers' preoccupation with construction.

Lt. Gen. F. J. Clarke, chief of the Army engineers, unveiled the policy statement in Washington, committing the corps to "give full consideration to environmental values along with economic, social and technical factors" in projects such as dam building.

Also on the plus side of the environmental scorecard, some beginnings are being made on recycling materials rather than junking them.

—Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., for example, is building a pilot plant in Akron, Ohio, for converting used tires into usable materials. If it works, Firestone says it will set up 10 plants around the country.

—The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has awarded a $364,000 grant to the National Association of Secondary Material Industries, Inc., to do a study of possible uses of solid wastes. It will focus on scrap copper, aluminum, lead, zinc, nickel alloys and stainless steel, precious metals, paper stock and textiles.

Wired to Car

Phillip J. Lucier, president of the Continental Telephone Corp., was killed Friday when a homemade explosive device demolished his car. Lucier, 49, was killed instantly as he turned on the ignition of his car, parked outside the Pierre Laclede Building in suburban Clayton, Mo.

Examination of the demolished car showed that someone had strung a wire from the ignition to under the front seat, where an explosive device was apparently connected. Authorities have been unable to provide a motive for the slaying.

Rock Festivals Big, Except on Profits

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock music festivals attract great publicity, top performers, and huge crowds. The only thing they have trouble generating, apparently, is a profit.

In fact, many promoters say rock festivals are a dying phenomenon—one of the early casualties among the offspring of the Age of Aquarius.

"Anybody who puts on a large festival next year is out of his bird," says Don Friedman, who helped promote such a show recently on Randall's Island in New York. The festivals turned into a disaster with red ink running all over the ledger books.

Working against the commercial success of rock festivals: 1. Strong opposition by local communities; 2. unweildy production costs and 3. widespread gate crashing.

When promoters saw how the Woodstock Rock Festival last summer drew an estimated crowd of 300,000 "they began thinking, wow, this is where we really can score," said Mike Lange, one of the Woodstock's producers.

These would-be millionaires were apparently not deterred by the fact that Woodstock's backers lost $1.2 million in the affair and, despite motion picture and other rights, have yet to recoup their losses.

Of the 48 major festivals known to have been scheduled since Woodstock, only 18 were ever actually held, said John Morthland, assistant editor of the rock music weekly, Rolling Stone.

"The major reason is political," he said. "The day after a festival is announced, the city council and police come up with some emergency ordinance that makes it impossible to hold it."

Another reason so many festivals collapse, Morthland said, is because "some people try to put it on as a straight business venture. They don't realize it's a very special field with problems all its own."

The Atlanta International Pop Festival held in Byron, Ga. over the July 4th weekend illustrates many of these problems.

The tight money market, combined with general banker skepticism, made it difficult to raise the front capital, explained Richard Bryan, one of the festival's sponsors.

After some searching, the group found a New Orleans music producer, Stephen Kapelow, who agreed to put up $250,000 in cash.

Expenditures came to double that amount, Bryan said. But the remaining money was drawn from advance ticket sales.

Next to entertainment—which costs about $200,000—the largest expense involved developing the festival site, Bryan said.

"Renting the land cost $30,000. Another $70,000 was spent building stages, laying water lines, preparing sanitation facilities, and making other improvements," he said.

Some $50,000 was spent on promotion and medical supplies and preparations cost nearly $10,000, he said.

For those who couldn't pay, a free stage was set up outside the concert area.

Nevertheless, the demand for free admission to the main event was overwhelming, and rather than resort to violence, the producers decided to throw open the gates.

An estimated 200,000 persons attended the festival.

The festival did make a small profit, which may later be augmented with earnings from a percentage of the record and motion picture rights, Kapelow said. He said he couldn't give a specific figure on profits at the present time.

Death Toll Is 10

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The death toll in a July 11 head-on collision of two cars on an approach to the Golden Gate Bridge has climbed to 10.

John Simer, 19, of San Francisco died Friday in a hospital of injuries he suffered in the crash.

He was one of nine persons riding in a car en route to a rock festival in San Rafael. Six other persons in that car were killed, as were three people in a second car.

Seek Motive in Bomb Death

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)—Police still seek a motive in the slaying of Phillip J. Lucier, 49, president of the Continental Telephone Co., the third largest telephone firm in the nation.

Lucier, father of 11, was killed Friday when a bomb, under the driver's seat of his car, exploded as he turned on the ignition.

James L. Robb and James V. Napier, vice presidents of the firm, missed a similar fate as they waited for Lucier to back out of a parking space after a luncheon appointment.

"It must be a crackpot," said Robb, in charge of operations for the company, adding Lucier had "no personal enemies."

Robb said he and Napier, who is in charge of operations for the firm, had waited for Lucier to get into the car, turn on the air conditioner and back out of the parking space.

The blast shredded the car's front seat, blew a hole in the floor. Robb said Lucier must have died instantly.

He said Continental had no labor problems and Lucier never mentioned any threats or feats. "The company has made a lot of people wealthy by buying them out," Robb said.

Police Maj. Herbert Johnston said a parking attendant had been about 40 feet from the auto the hour it was parked while the executives had lunch.

"It was a very professional job," Johnston said.

Lucier, a St. Louis resident, began as president of the firm based in Clayton in 1961. He acquired more than 600 independent telephone companies in the United States and several foreign countries.

Continental, with assets of $26 million in 1961, now has assets of $1 billion.

Lucier was described by a business associate as a "fast and energetic man," who was "never in town long enough to make any enemies."

Lucier spent much time with his family and was active on the boards of trustees of Fontbonne College and St. Louis University. Recently he became involved in a campaign to rehabilitate racially integrated neighborboods.

'THEY' SAY NOBODY BEATS BILL RANDALL

My Name Is
William M. Hannay

I am a Democrat and I don't believe it.

Twelve years is a long time to be in Congress—long enough for Mr. Randall to have forgotten why he is there. In the past 12 years he has voted for more than $740 billion in military expenditures. Yet, during the same period, Congress has appropriated less than $107 billion for our nation's education, health and manpower needs.

Where is our sense of priorities?

Ignorance destroys democracy. Disease ruins good minds. Poverty and unemployment breed crime.

Doesn't my opponent care?

Increased Federal funding for education could relieve the heavy burden now borne by local home owners and improve our schools. Yet, my opponent remains silent.

Anti-poverty programs could provide the job training and educational opportunities to bring America's 32 million poor back into the mainstream of our society. Yet, my opponent voted to cut off badly needed funds.

The 18-year-old vote could give millions of American youth a voice in the political processes which affect their lives. Yet, my opponent voted against this crucial measure.

I believe that it's time for a change.

There's no generation gap between you and me. I care about all the problems facing America—like crime and drugs and pollution and health care and housing. And they won't go away because we pretend they can't reach us in the 4th District. They already have, and somebody better care.

I know what it costs you for groceries. It costs me, too, and it hurts. But did you know that farm income has decreased by one billion dollars since 1948? Let's find out who is causing the inflation.

I have served in Vietnam as a military correspondent, in Kansas City as a reporter, and in Washington as a Congressional aide. Maybe I can't solve all the problems, but together we can try.

Wm M. Hannay

If you care about your country . . . if your care is measured by more than a flag on your antenna . . . elect William M. Hannay to Congress.

On August 4th...

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

In Combination With The Sunday Morning Capital

Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday, July 26, 1970—Section B

G. I. Josephines Wear Uniform of Their Country Proudly

FT. MCCLELLAN, Ala. (AP) — The glassy shine on the black pumps reflects the hem of the pale blue skirt, starched as stiff as an open umbrella. The little cap is angled jauntily on hair teased into puffy wings. The blue eyeshadow and pink iridescent lipstick are on just so.

It is 5:45 a.m. Army time.

"Atten-HOOT!"

Twenty-four pairs of shiny shoes clatter for a fraction of a second and are still. Three straight lines, eight girls in a row.

"Parade Hu-REST!"

Legs apart, hands quickly fold in back. From a distant corner a record scratches and skips into the first notes of reveille.

It is 5:46 a.m., and the girls love it.

"I don't know, but I've been told,

WACs sing. They sing on their way to class, they sing in their barracks, they sing on the way to the mess hall, they sing on the drill field, they sing while doing KP.

"We sing so we won't cry," says one WAC, jokingly.

"We sing so we won't fall asleep," says another.

For many of the 650 WACs in training here, the daily routine —which ended at 9 one recent night—started at 3 a.m., hours before the official wakeup. They have been up ironing uniforms that may have wilted in the damp night air, spit-shining their shoes and checking on the bathrooms once again to see if dust has settled on the tiles during the night.

Ditty bags, looking something like men's shaving kits but holding lipstick, pen, paper and cigarettes, are slung over their arms as they march into the mess hall.

They load their metal trays—"My God, no dishes," one new trainee exclaims — with eggs, bacon, rolls and fruit, and the girls circle counterclockwise to their tables.

"You're going the wrong way private," a stocky sergeant intones. "You go back and get some eggs."

"I joined the Army to take orders," says Jerri Sperry, 21, from Cody, Wyo.

But other girls have different expectations from the Army.

Pretty Mary Fernandez of San Antonio, Tex., with blonde streaks down the center of her brown hair, says, "My father served and so did my four cousins. I've always wanted to be in the Army."

Wanda Harper, 19, from Mobile, Ala., voices an oft-heard patriotic sentiment, "If a guy can give his life for his country, then we should be able to give three years to help."

When The C.O. Speaks — You Listen

A WAC recruit bites her lip as her Commanding Officer, Lt. Col. Mary Ruth Williams, visits informally at her mess hall table at Ft. McClellan, Ala. Basic training for a WAC is eight weeks and is designed to transform even the most awkward civilian into the Army's version of a lady. (AP)

Petite Diane Kirby from Marion, Ind., says she joined the Army to learn a skill. "My boy friend wasn't too happy about it, but then he said he'll go wherever the Army sends me."

And for some, there was really nothing better to do. "The Army is keeping me out of trouble," admitted Olivia Blanchard, from Arkansas.

After breakfast it's off to class, marching and singing.

"You can tell a girl in the Army,

"You can tell her by her walk, walk, walk."

The eight-week training course includes 350 hours of classes designed to transform the most awkward civilian into the Army's version of a lady, who says "Yes, ma'am" and "No, ma'am" and snaps to attention at the sight of bars or stripes.

In class, the girls sit erect at desks that bear witness to the WAC trainees of yesteryear, desks with careful pencillings and scratchings: "Echo 3 is the best," ... "Ken—sexx," ... "Alpha is No. 1," ... "Larry Vietnam."

The class is Personal Standards and Social Concepts for second-week troops, and the lieutenant in charge is having difficulty keeping her wig on this morning.

"One day we'll give you a pass, and you'll go out to civilization. I want to show you how to carry your purse and your gloves." She adjusts her hair. "Yes, private?"

"Well, it looks better to carry them with the cuffs out. It's more ethical this way."

Platoon sergeants come in all shapes and sizes, all temperaments.

"We like them strict, believe me," said Polly Robinson, 19, from Chicago. "Some may look mean, but deep down inside they're really nice, and they care about you. It's like when your parents are strict you may hate them, but then you realize they're right and you love them."

But a sergeant doesn't need charm. She has the "gig"—demerit.

"You know what I got 10 gigs for this morning? A hair on my insignia," said Ruth Pool, from Karsabit, Mo.

"The sergeant was right. I should have know better than to comb my hair after putting my uniform on."

The insignia—a gold U.S. on the right lapel and a gas-relief of Pallas Athena on the left-is very important to the recruits. Athena, goddess of war, victory and homaking? is the symbol of the Corps.

On the first day of basic training, the recruits pin the insignia on each other. It is a solemn moment.

Although WACS are essentially trained for clerical, medical or administrative positions, some WACs think women should fight.

"If they need us to fight for our country, I'd go. I really would," says Mary Pelkey, 23, from Wilmington, N.Y.

And the girls get a taste of combat on their field trip, which comes at the fifth week.

The WACs have to run through a gas chamber, take off their masks in an atmosphere of nonlethal gas, blurt out their name, rank and serial number, replace the mask and run out.

WAC officers estimate that about 10 per cent will fail to complete the course successfully.

Classes go on through the afternoon and include such subjects as Achievements and Traditions of the Army, Character Guidance, Military Customs and Courtesies, and Maintenance, Supply Economy and Cost Consciousness. Drill and Ceremonies takes up 39 hours of the recruits' training, and for most of the WACs, drills are the waltz of this finishing school. They love it.

Sergeant shouts. "Never seen a man before?"

Men. They're called 'trees' around here. Where the men are is tree territory. "But gee, I haven't seen too many of them," sighed one trainee.

If the girls are extra good, at the end of their fourth week in training they are given a half-day pass to go into town or to visit the service club on base. There they sit in self-conscious little groups, starched to perfection, gloves with the cuffs out, and tap the toes of their shiny, sensible oxfords to rock 'n' roll, music. There are no alcoholic beverages allowed and absolutely no handholding.

But some prefer to stay around the base and putter around their barracks. It gets to be a lot like home.

The girls run around the room in housecoats, bras and slips, smoking and polishing their shoes. And they iron and iron, as much as eight times a day, and some go through 16 cans of spray starch during basic.

"You feel so cruddy if your uniform has a wrinkle somewhere," says one WAC in shorts and sandals.

"Trainee, trainee don't be blue.

"Your PSG was a trainee too. Sound off ..."

A sergeant enters and rubs her hand along a window sill. "DIRT!" She checks the chain to a bathtub stopper. "And here! ... And HERE!", she exults as she reaches behind the toilet.

The Passing Colors

Note 60 Years

Celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary recently were Mr. and Mrs. Verda E. Wilcoxon, 229 North Harding. A reception honored the couple at the home of their son, Carl Wilcoxon, and Mrs. Wilcoxon, Kansas City. One of the guests at the reception was Ben F. Lakin, who was an attendant at the ceremony. The couple has lived in Sedalia for the past 54 years. Mr. Wilcoxon retired in 1948 from a position with the Missouri Pacific railroad. Mrs. Carl Wilcoxon is the former Miss Elizabeth Wahrenbrock of Sedalia.

Honesty Is Still The Best Policy

Honesty, one of man's greatest virtues, is all too often overlooked. However recently a Sedalia woman was delighted to find that the virtue was not entirely non-existent.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Shireman Jr., 1113 East Broadway, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Shireman Sr., Houstonia, were on their vacation recently and while traveling through Iowa, stopped at a roadside park. It was a short stop, "we weren't there 15 minutes," and then they traveled on north to Minnesota and about 45 minutes later Mrs. Shireman Jr., discovered she had left her purse at the park.

"I had laid it on the trunk of the car and must have just gotten in and driven off without it," she said. The purse had about $300 and her checkbook and credit cards. "I never expected to see it again and I was just miserable."

Returning home about three days later, she found a letter from Mrs. Clem Barthel, Albertville, Minn., who had found the purse. Mrs. Barthel, the mother of nine, said they had found the purse shortly after the Shireman's had left and waited for them to return.

"I was really overwhelmed," said Mrs. Shireman, "I didn't realize there was someone like Mrs. Barthel still around."

Mrs. Shireman received her purse this week with the money and papers intact. "I guess I'm awfully lucky," she said, and when asked about traveler's checks, she said, "I think I will have to do something like that."

About Town

The descendants of George B. Page and Susan Mayfield Page met at Liberty park recently for a family reunion. A basket dinner was held at noon and the afternoon was spent visiting and taking pictures.

The oldest person present was Elwood Coile, Kansas City and the youngest was Robert Mark Ruckman, Otterville.

Lady Architect Overcomes Bias

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Petite and pale-haired Nancy Copley looks almost too fragile to lift a brick. But in work clothes and hard hat she appears very much at home on the construction site of the vast medical - geriatric - psychiatric institution here for which she is project architect.

Just 10 years out of Pratt Institute, where she studied both interior design and architecture, she was in charge of developing the working drawings for the $25 million Jewish Institute for Geriatric Care, one of the largest facilities of its kind in the nation designed by a woman.

"I'm not a member of Women's Lib, but I'm very sympathetic to their program," she declares. "I combat discrimination on a personal level, meeting it on a day-to-day basis. Any woman entering the profession has got to be convinced that this is really what she's interested in doing because there are so many obstacles.

"Many architectural firms don't hire women — they don't say so in so many words but they find many ways of getting around the law, like leaving you waiting for an hour when they find out it's a woman applying."

Miss Copley, who studied structural engineering at Columbia University after graduating from Pratt, found interior design much too limiting — "you can do little more than shift around partitions." Consequently she stays as far away from that field as possible.

"It's awfully easy for a female to be labelled and pushed into minor jobs," she explains. "Women architects are competing with the most mediocre male in the office. You have to keep fighting these guys to prevent them from giving you some stupid job."

Fortunately she escaped the rut. After joining a firm with two women among its partners, Miss Copley was asked to plan a new kind of building. The objective was to both house more than 500 residents and provide out-patient services for 2,500 more, and to create a prototype for new concepts of total care, research and teaching in geriatrics.

"There was no reference point for this type of program; everything had to be developed," explains the 5 foot 3 Miss Copley who, upon receiving the assignment three years ago, began an intensive study of changing patterns in geriatric care.

She visited many institutions and found a unique source of ideas in a Communal Planning Conference for the Aged, held in 1967. About 250 outstanding representatives of the country's leading health and welfare organizations had been invited to come "dream out loud" about the best way to meet the physical and human needs of the elderly.

"The main thing is to treat these people as human beings who have their own needs," she continues. "If a person is uprooted from home you want the trauma to be as slight as possible. You don't want the feeling of an institution.

With this goal in mind she developed the "living cluster" arrangement where six patients are in a "family" group: two are in private rooms and four in two double rooms. They share a sitting area which becomes, by means of its large glass panel, a place to view the activity in the corridor outside. Three residents of one unit share a balcony with three in an adjoining unit to broaden their contacts.

Couple Honored With Reception By Children

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clevenger, Sweet Springs, were honored on their 45th wedding anniversary Sunday, by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clevenger, Sweet Springs, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hurd, Knob Noster, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Oelrichs, Mora, Mo., at whose home the celebration was held.

Miss Pearl Staats and Earl Clevenger were united in marriage July 25, 1925. Among the guests were their three attendants, Mr. and Mrs. Clide Staats and Mrs. Cletis Allen.

The serving table was covered with a white linen cloth with pink net bows and pink roses at the corners. The theme of the thee tiered cake was "Hearts and Bells." It was decorated with cascades of pink roses, a double heart design on two tiers, topped with three white bells, and surrounded by greenery and lily of the valley. The cake was flanked by pink candles in crystal candleholders which belonged to Mrs. Clevenger's mother. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Roland Oelrichs and Mrs. Hilmer Hobein. Assisting them at the serving table were Mrs. Harold Clevenger, Mrs. John W. Hurd and Mrs. Eugene Clevenger.

Youths To Tour Texas, Oklahoma

Thirty young people of the New Hope Baptist Church left Thursday for a week long tour of Oklahoma and Texas. The group, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Abney, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reed, the Rev. Marvin T. Nobles, Roger Glidewell, Linn Lewis and Kathi Greer, will make stops in Fort Worth, Dallas, Galveston, Houston, San Antonio, Austin, Waco, and Oklahoma City.

The group is taking a camper bus, owned by John Williams, to camp along with two camper trailers. The bus was remodeled by the students for the trip.

Furry Friend Waits

Miss Libby Mackie, second from right, of Kituue, Zambia, was reunited with her oversized teddy bear which she had gotten as a gift while living in Sedalia as a Foreign exchange student. The bear, too large to be taken home with her, has been living with Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hopkins, 1610 West 13th, Libby's American family. Visiting with her are, left to right, Miss Gay Morris, Capetown, South Africa, Miss Dee Dee Silverman, hostess to the visitors, and far right, Miss Cynthia Hopkins, American sister of Miss Mackie.

Sedalians Host Swedish Teacher

By Ginger Moore
Women's Editor

An ad in a magazine has led to an interesting house guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoskins, 616 West Fifth. Last fall Mrs. Hoskins saw an ad which told of an American Host program which offered American families the opportunity of hosting teachers from foreign countries for either a one or two week period during the summer.

Mrs. Hoskins replied to the ad and after filling out numerous forms was notified that her family would have as their guest, Mrs. Jane Wilke of Saltsjo-Boo, Sweden.

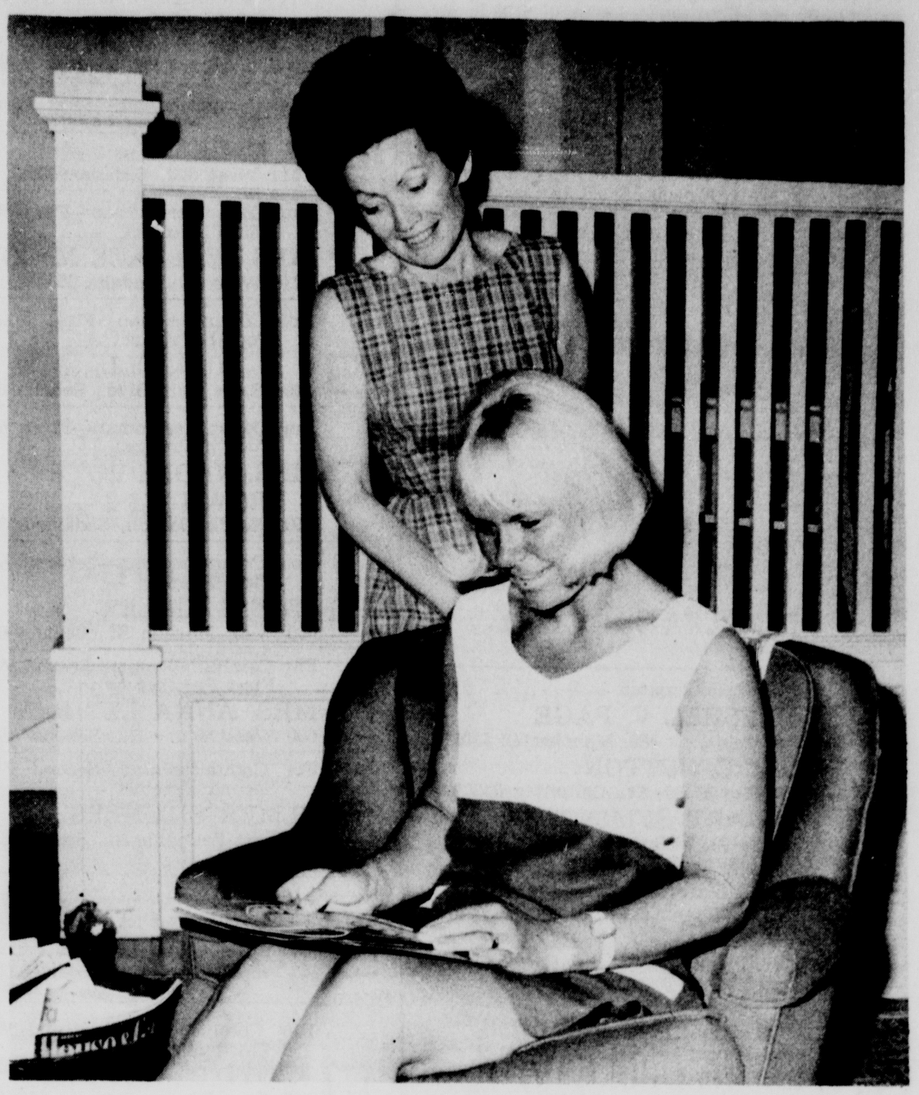
Mrs. Hoskins and Mrs. Wilke corresponded prior to Mrs. Wilke's arrival and felt rather well-acquainted by the time Mrs. Wilke came to Sedalia.

Mrs. Wilke says she has been very impressed with the Americans. "The Americans are very kind, so outgoing and friendly," she said. Mrs. Wilke has spent two weeks, with a family in Wisconsin and will go from here to Columbus, Ind.

Mrs. Wilke, a teacher for 18 years, teaches the first, second and third grades. "In Sweden, we teach the same children, all subjects from reading to gymnastics for three years. We become very close to the children."

When asked about the Swedish attitude towards sex education in the schools, Mrs. Wilke said that it was quite "natural" for parents and children to discuss sex and that before the first year, parents were brought to school to see the books and learn some of the lectures their children would receive. "We try to teach the children that they are loved from the beginning."

Swedish schools use quite a bit of educational television in their classroom. The cost of which is underwritten by the national government.



Reviews Activities

Mrs. Jane Wilke, seated, reviews her recent tours of various Missouri sights with Mrs. Robert Hoskins. Mrs. Wilke, a teacher from Sweden, is a guest in the Hoskins home for a week as part of the American Host Program. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

In her tour of Sedalia and Missouri Mrs. Wilke has seen the Truman Library, the Starlight Theatre and the Lake of the Ozarks. In Sedalia she saw the State Fair Junior College, "I would like to go there as its so friendly and nice."

Mrs. Wilke also visited the Children's Therapy Center where she mentioned that the techniques used are very similar to those at the therapy centers in Sweden.

In comparing Swedish television to American TV, Mrs. Wilke said that she hated seeing the shows interrupted with "buy this thing and that." Swedish television is government owned and operated and therefore has no commercials.

Mrs. Wilke, who is the mother of two children a son, 14 and a daughter 5½, is married to a businessman Ake Wilke. Mr. Wilke has a firm of salesmen who are "rented" to companies for varying lengths of time. This offers a company the opportunity to employ anywhere from 5 to 70 salesmen for any period of time. He has affiliates in Germany, Norway and Denmark.

In Sweden, Mrs. Wilke and her family enjoy sailing and winter sports.

Sweden is beginning to be referred to as "Little America" according to Mrs. Wilke, due to the number of teachers who have come to the U.S. to study and are now teaching in Sweden.

South African Teens Visit U.S.

By Ginger Moore
Women's Editor

Four friendly and enthusiastic teenagers talked animatedly about their activities of the last few years and their plans for this coming year. This probably isn't an unusual situation, but listening to the girls talk with thick British accents and of their trips from South Africa to England and the United States was exciting.

The girls, Cynthia Hopkins, Dee Dee Silverman, Libby Mackie and Gay Morris are all the cute, peppy teenagers we Americans have come to know as typical, but these girls are anything but typical.

The girls first became acquainted when in 1965 Libby came to Sedalia as part of the American Field Service foreign student exchange program. Mr. and Mrs. William Hopkins, 1610 West 13th, were her American family and the exchange eventually became a family affair.

The families became acquainted through letters and during Libby's year here, her family also came for a visit.

Libby's father is an engineer for a mining company and she has a brother who is now attending the Durbin University.

After her year here Libby returned home to attend the University of South Africa at Capetown, where she met Gay, who also is the daughter of an engineer and who has two brothers and one sister.

Last summer Dee Dee and Jill Hopkins paid Libby a return visit by spending the summer in South Africa.

After graduating from the university the girls both moved to London. Libby was a student at Oxford and Gay taught high school and took drama lessons.

This summer the girls, Gay and Libby, decided to come to visit Dee Dee and Jill. After visiting with the Hopkins and Silverman families, the girls, Gay, Libby and Dee Dee, plan to go to Denver, Colo. to meet Jill who is enrolled at the University of Denver in summer school. After a week's visit the girls plan on touring the western states going through Grand Canyon, up through California and on to Canada. They will come back through Yellowstone Park and plan to arrive in Denver three weeks later.

After Jill finishes summer school the girls are taking a camping trip for two weeks.

Gay, on her first trip to the states, finds it "very alive" compared to Europe which she calls a "dear, sweet, sleepy place." She loves the vast space and says that the pollution here is far more serious than in England.

The girls hope to meet some of the youth activists who are involved in the political movements in order to compare them with England. On the subject of drugs, Libby and Gay felt that drugs weren't as much of a problem in Europe as in the U.S. as "it isn't in vogue."

Traveling in the U.S. is "terribly expensive" compared to Europe, the girls say, but through a special plan, foreign visitors are allowed to travel anywhere in the U.S. and as much as they wish for a single fare of $99. This enables many youths to tour more of the country than they might otherwise see.

After their two and a half month stay in the states the girls are returning to Europe for two months to "hitchhike" around the countries there.

Dior Shows Less Leg For Fall

PARIS (AP) — The Christian Dior fall and winter fashion collection, designed by Marc Bohan, today stuck to its time-tested theme of elegance and wearability. Fabulous fabrics and finest furns were used for the effect of pure luxury.

Dior's daytime hemlines are all at mid-calf length.

An important group of coats followed a fitted silhouette flaring out toward the midcalf hemline. The length was dropped to the ankles for evening. The waistlines of these coats were always marked by a fabric or leather belt, or half belt in the back.

Dior's winter colors stress brick, brown, some gray, beige, rust, fuchsia and bottle green. There is much black shown for day in all-black ensembles.

Quotable Women

I told them (pageant officials) I would put my beliefs above the pageant."—Katherine Huppe, after resigning her title as Miss Montana, citing restrictions on what she can say and do about politics.

"The jewelry just looked better in the nude. We tried it with tights and with a bikini. Then we tried it with nothing and it looked great. So I said okay."—Marisa Berenson, Vogue magazine's first full-length nude model, in an interview.

Mayor Proclaims Twirling Week

National Baton Twirling Week has been proclaimed by Mayor Jerry Jones as July 26 to August 1. The proclamation cites twirling as a movement which has affected the lives of millions of American girls and boys and has been instrumental in building the confidence and character of the young people. It also mentions the important part twirling plays in children's hospitals as a unique and effective method of physical therapy.

Local twirlers taught by Mrs. James Kalthoff, will participate in the Green Ridge Centennial parade as their part of the nation-wide observance of national twirling week. The group of thirty, known as the K-Belles, will be sponsored by the Sedalia Chapter of American Business Women's Association.

Mrs. Kalthoff and her daughter, Kassandra were recently named to the Who's Who in Baton Twirling, published by the Drum Major Magazine.

A history of baton twirling from ceremonial Siamese tribal dances to the present day colorful art is given in the book.

Mrs. Kalthoff and her daughter recently returned from a National Baton Twirling Association camp at Monett, Mo., where they took classes from some of the national champions and outstanding teachers.

Industrial Unions

Industrial unions, sometimes called vertical unions, include all workers in the industry, regardless of the particular kind of work they might do. The United Mine Workers is an example of an industrial union.

"Spic and Span"

"Spic" is short for "spike" and "span" originally meant a "chip." So a "spic and span" new ship — the way the phrase was first used —was one in which all the hardware and boards were brand new.

Local Talent To Appear At Arrow Rock Festival

A two-day music festival at the Jane Freman Music Center at Arrow Rock has drawn interest from several Sedalians who have auditioned before the festival's producer, Jay Turley, ahead of the scheduled formal audition date of Monday. The festival will be held at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the center.

Amateurs as well as long-time pros will be featured in a music production, which will range from operatic arias to folk songs to a finale with the entire ensemble — individual performers as well as the music center chorus singing a special arrangement of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Mrs. Jack Gray, 506 South Park, whose family has starred in high school and college presentations, will accompany her son, Steve, and daughter, Nancy (Mrs. Fred Nuzum), 219 Gentry, in harmony and on the piano. Her son, Dan, will harmonize with Steve and accompany him on guitar in several numbers.

The family will also perform as a group, and will join the music center chorus in the finale.

Pre-auditioned and scheduled to appear both nights are folk singers from Sedalia, Julie and Tim. Julie Anielak, lives with her grandmother, Mrs. Myrtle Anielak, 651 East 13th. She will be accompanied by Tim Proctor, 717 West Sixth, on guitar.

Rehearsals for the festival will begin at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

On the bill also will be Helen Webber, Marshall, whose professional name is "Torchy," and who has appeared at Sedalia clubs and conventions for years as a barrelhouse and blues-type singer.

Marine Armory Weapons Taken

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif (AP) — Three or four persons broke into a Marine Corps armory here late Friday night, clubbed a sentry unconscious and made off with nine rifles, a grenade launcher and a .45-caliber pistol, a military spokesman said.

Lt. Col. Ed Schultze said Marine shore patrolmen and FBI agents immediately began a barracks-to-barracks search for the men and weapons. The rifles were M16s. All cars leaving the base were also stopped and searched, he said.

Schultze said the intruders were believed to be Marines.

FBI 'Plot' Recounted On Stand

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Two men say they set off a bomb at a former Mafia kingpin's home at the instigation of an FBI agent who wanted to start a Mafia war in Tucson.

Judge William Frey of Pima County Superior Court told William John Dunbar, 27, and Paul Mills Stevens, 24, he believed only half of their testimony during a mitigation hearing Friday. Then he fined each $286.

The pair had confessed to reduced charges of bombing the home of former Mafia kingping Joseph "Joe Bananas" Bonanno, July 22, 1968.

"I can see how you were taken in and led down the promised path by Hale," Frey said as he handed down his decision.

Both men said David Hale, then an FBI agent who since has resigned, masterminded both the Bonanno bombing and an explosion which rocked the Grace Ranch property of Mafia figure Pete Licavoli a day earlier.

"Hale wanted everybody to believe there was a torpedo man or bomber in town—enough to start the Mafia feuding," Dunbar told the court.

Dunbar said he, along with Stevens and Walker Prideaux, 50, a Tucson businessman, were induced by Hale to bomb the homes.

In later testimony, Hale and Prideaux both refused to answer questions about the case on grounds of self-incrimination.

Stevens and Dunbar originally were charged with "depositing or exploding an explosive with intent to injure persons or property." Those charges carry a maximum sentence of life in prison in Arizona.

TB Testing Serum Arrives in Peru

MIAMI (AP) — A Miami-based Dominican nun who begged help for Peruvian earthquake victims got it Friday when 38,000 units of tuberculosis testing serum arrived in Lima.

Sister Mary Kenneth wrote friends she was afraid a tuberculosis epidemic could sweep Peru because homeless persons were still living in caves and makeshift shelters after earthquakes in June.

She turned to Miami for help.

The Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services rushed the serum to Miami. Braniff International flew it to Lima.

If the serum tests show evidence that a tuberculosis outbreak has occurred among the refugees, Florida is "prepared to follow through with a supply of oral serum found effective against tuberculosis in its primary stages," said Mrs. Arthur Baise, program director of the Miami-Dade Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Attorney General's Vehicle Is Taken

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Someone has stolen the official state car of state Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

Gone, along with the car, are his top coat, his jogging shirt, shoes and shorts and the sign that says "Attorney General Official Business."

Kelley reported the car was stolen sometime Friday morning while he was staying overnight at a motel in suburban Southfield, outside Detroit.

"I had it locked anyway," he said. "I still have the keys. But maybe they didn't get such a bargain. I put more than 71,000 miles on that car since it was issued to me in April of 1969."

Airlifts Are Used In Britain

LONDON (AP) — British traders are switching to an airlift to beat the nationwide dock strike, airport operators reported today.

Scores of charter planes have been hired to bring in meat from Northern Ireland, grapes from Cyprus and tomatoes from the Channel Islands.

Others are being called in from passenger work and converted to freighters to ship abroad high-value exports.

One air charter broker said: "You name it, it is going by air. They're hiring anything that can fly."

Around 47,000 dockers are on strike for an increase in wages averaging $84 a week. Port employers say the formula proposed by the unions would mean an increase of 40 per cent, way above the 7 per cent they have offered.

The strike is 10 days old and the dockers showed no sign of yielding to government pleas that perishable food cargoes at least should be allowed to come through.

More than 46,000 tons of food cargoes, mainly meat and fruit were lying on the docks.

Three Deaths By Shooting In KC Area

KANSAS CITY (AP)— There were three shooting deaths overnight in the Kansas City area.

Police say Samuel Hall, 42, was shot in the head following a dispute in a Kansas City apartment. Several persons are being questioned.

A shotgun blast killed Fred Mickeau as he walked along a street near his home. (at 2328 Forest). Police say they have a man in custody.

In Kansas City, Kan., neighbors summoned police to a residence where they found the body of Harry Cockerham, 30, who had been shot several times.

Artist, City Debate Just What Is Art

HERMOSA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — City officials are pondering a prominent esthetic problem: Is the aluminum can tree in Dick Goad's front yard art or rubbish?

Goad lovingly mounted more than 1,000 beer and soft drink cans in radiating clusters on the points of a cactus-like plant. The critics' reaction was mixed.

"We were cited by a Fire Department rescue and salvage unit for dumping refuse on private property," Goad complained to the City Council. The Fire Department told him to get rid of it by Aug. 1.

It's not junk or refuse at all, Goad insisted: "We think we should be receiving a beautification award."

Councilman Ben Valentine agreed. "I've even brought friends by to see it," he said. "It's really terrific!" At night Goad illuminates the shiny, flip-top tree with blue lights.

The council delayed a decision on the matter this week and ordered the city manager to investigate.

Smog Puts Dealer Out of Business

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Abe Sherman, who has run a downtown newsstand here for 50 years, says he's closing his kiosk because of the smog. The 72-year-old newsdealer said the air downtown was so foul "you can taste it."

A Berserk Man Takes Five Lives

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cleve Van Metcalf, 34, enraged during an argument with his wife, stabbed her to death and wounded a daughter who tried to intervene, police said. Then, they said, he ran around the corner, shot three relatives to death and wounded an infant before killing himself.

Officers said Metcalf picked up the knife during a Friday morning argument with his wife Jonnie, 28, and stabbed her. When 13-year-old daughter Mary Ann tried to pull them apart, officers said, she was stabbed repeatedly in the back, arm and thigh.

At that point, police said, Metcalf picked up a pistol, ran to a nearby residence, and shot to death his wife's sister, Mattie Wilson, 22, and Linda Walker, 14, his niece.

As he ran from the house to another sister-in-law's house just behind, officers said, a security guard at a nearby plant called to him to halt. He didn't; the security guard fired, but missed. Metcalf went inside the second house, shooting Peerline Lee Wilson, 22, another sister of his wife, and wounding Valissa Hardy, 10-months, in the hip.

Then he returned to Mattie Wilson's home, police said, and turned the gun on himself.

Gasoline Tax Rebates Sent Out in Kansas

TOPEKA (AP) — More than $10 million has been mailed to cities and counties as their share in gasoline tax revenue for the first quarter of fiscal 1971, assistant state treasurer Carl B. Johnson said Friday.

Checks for $5,877,378 were sent to the 105 counties and cities received $4,433,811 for a total of $10,311,189. Cities will share in some of the money which went to counties, Johnson said.

The distribution is the first under the new formula approved by the 1970 legislature and includes part of the one-cent gasoline tax which went into effect July 1.

The distribution included: Wichita $705,867, Kansas City $423,901, Topeka $340,243, Overland Park $187,144, and Hutchinson $102,564 among the cities; and Sedgwick $734,454, Johnson $379,258, Wyandotte $371,868, and Shawnee $294,070 among the counties.

Timing Is Off When Bandits Try Robbery

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Three men wearing ski masks watched the wrong clock and were 30 seconds too late to rob the tellers in the Rosedale State Bank Friday, but they took about $3,000 from the installment loan section, police said.

Clarence Casey, bank president, said the main door was locked at 2 p.m. just before the bandits appeared.

"They were probably going by the clock we have outside the bank," Casey said. "That one is about a minute slower than the one inside which we go by."

The men, foiled by the lock, walked to a side door and entered the loan department. They forced six employes to lie on the floor before fleeing in a 1965 model car.

Was It the James Gang?

Periodically the James boys and their gang forays into Central Missouri have been publicized during this century. Fiction and fact have vied for consideration by researchers delving into the numerous escapades of these men.

We recall years ago an old timer, Asbury Goodknight, the memory of whom will persist among those of us who listened to his account of early life in this area. He used to climb the steps to visit with us in the old Democrat building on West Fourth street. He always claimed that when he was a boy he was persuaded by several men to hold their horses while they performed what became historic as the Otterville train robbery.

Stories persist to this day that the James boys did not perpetrate the Otterville train robbery. Their image was such, however, that when any robbery was committed they usually were blamed for it. Jesse and Frank were occasional Sedalia visitors and were friends of Major John Edwards, editor of the Democrat in the late '70s. He was one of the defenders of the "persecuted" brothers.

Another incident is retold which had its locale in Houstonia. Before his death G. U. Bauman, who as a boy lived in that Pettis county community in the 1880's, recorded for posterity an exciting experience there, as follows:

"In the year 1880 my father and I were running a feed and grist mill in Houstonia. I was 14 years old and ran the engine. My father did the grinding. Our mill was situated near the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks.

"One day I looked out the engine room window and there sitting beside a pile of railroad ties were four big, tough-looking men who were examining some big, shiny pistols. I thought nothing of this as at that time many men carried guns. But to have some fun I called my father and told him to come and see the James gang.

"My father was always ready for a joke and he said: 'Well, I declare, it IS the James gang.' But like me he didn't really believe it was.

"It happened to be noon just then and I blew the whistle and we shut down the mill and went to dinner. My father, to have some fun, told the banker and all the merchants that they had better lock up and go home as the James gang was in town and were going to raid the bank and stores.

"They sent a scout to see if this was true. The scout reported that it was. This caused quite some excitement and the bank and all the stores closed instantly and the banker and merchants went home. This was lots of fun for father and me.

"Now I must tell you that a woman with some children lived near the edge of town on a farm. She had a teen-age son. He didn't like to plow and said he was going to join the James gang. But we always laughed at him and told him they wouldn't have him as he was too lazy to make a good train robber.

"But when we went to start the mill after dinner that gang was still there and this boy was there talking to them. Soon a freight train came and they boarded an empty box car and left town.

"About two days after that the newspapers brought the news that a Chicago and Alton passenger train had been robbed near Glendale, Mo. And it gave the names of the robbers — Frank and Jesse James, and I think Dick Liddell, and Clell Miller, and it said they had a new recruit, a boy from Houstonia, Mo. The article said: 'He was young in years and old in iniquity.' That described the boy exactly. And it proved that the gang I saw was really the James gang. It wasn't a joke. Maybe we prevented a raid on Houstonia by warning the citizens who closed the bank and stores!"

"Scram, Man, Can't You See We're Busy!"

On a Summer Day

By the little creek
Was a hollow log
And up on top
Sat Ferdy Frog
He didn't move
He would only blink.
He had hopped up on
The log to think.
And Timmy Turtle
Moved on slow.
He really had
No place to go.
The big old spider
Gold and black
Moved to one side
And then moved back—
With silken threads
A web she spun
Of rainbow colors
In the sun.
'Twas lazy summer—
Hot and still.
Not even now
A bird would trill.
No little creatures
Raced around
And those that could Went underground.
Not even an ant
Or a tempting fly
As Ferdy sat there
Wandered by.
And if a fly
Had come — I think,
He wouldn't move,
He would only blink—
Then Ferdy stirred
There on his log
Because along
Came a great big dog.
He mosied on
His long red tongue
Way out of
His panting mouth hung
And into the creek
To cool off a bit
He went and took
A big drink of it—
But suddenly
Gave an awful wail—
A crawdad
Had caught him by the tail—
Out he raced
Running here and yon
With the crawdad
Stubbornly hanging on.
Well, Ferdy Frog,
Who was half asleep
Off his log
Gave a great big leap—
The turtle pulled
In his head and ran
As fast as a Poor little turtle can.
The spider stopped weaving
And looked about—
And all of the creatures
Through weeds peeped out.
The bluejay squawked
So all could hear
That there was
Some kind of danger near.
All at once the summer day
Filled with noise
The dog went squealing
To the boys
He had come with
And a lad
Parted him
From that old crawdad.
The excitement died,
All quieted down
And the boys and the dog
Went back to town.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Military-Industrial Lobby at Work

WASHINGTON — At the close of World War II, the son of a Polish pants presser badgered his superiors in the Navy for funds to build an atomic submarine. He argued that deep-diving, nuclear-powered subs, able to hide under the Arctic ice pack and to fire missiles from under the sea, could deter enemies from attacking the U.S.

Jack Anderson

Hyman Rickover, then an abrasive captain, had to go over the heads of the admirals to Congress. As a mark of naval esteem, he was given a reconditioned ladies' room for an office. It was literally in the ladies' toilet that the world's first atomic submarine was designed.

He learned from his submarine building that defense contractors often overcharged the government and used deceptive bookkeeping to hide their padded profits from the taxpayers. So the waspish Rickover began campaigning in the 1960s to compel defense contractors to keep books that would enable government auditors to spot the overcharges.

Once again, he overcame bureaucratic resistance, red tape and political pressure. He gained the backing of the Comptroller General and the White House. Earlier this month the Senate voted to let the Comptroller General and a blue-ribbon board set a uniform accounting system for defense contractors. The Rickover measure passed by an impressive 69-to-1 vote.

But alarmed defense contractors have now rolled out the powerful lobbying juggernaut of the military industrial complex.

House Banking Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., received eight telegrams on the same day, written in almost the same language, from eight different firms.

Just as the admirals had whispered against Rickover, the defense contractors also sank to personal abuse. At a hearing on Capitol Hill, Max Lehrer, a spokesman for the Electronic Industries Association, called Rickover "misguided," "ill-advised" and obsessed.

Parker-Hannifin Corporation, a $200-million contractor with 36 different plants, sprayed out a letter to Congressmen attacking Rickover and urging defeat of the bill.

Ling-Temco-Vought, another giant contractor, also began working the back rooms of Congress. The company, a power in Texas, put the pressure on Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., the only Texan on the House Banking Committee. But Gonzalez refused to kowtow.

The showdown came on July 16 behind closed doors. Rep. Robert Stephens, Jr., D-Ga., opened the secret proceedings by offering a motion to cut the heart out of the Rickover measure.

The majority, presumably aware of the traditional largesse of defense contractors at election time, voted 23-to-12 against Rickover. The effect will be to continue $2 billion in excess profits which the defense contractors have been pocketing each year.

The Congressmen voted behind closed doors, of course, to hide their actions from the voters back home. This column, however, can identify the Congressmen who voted to line the pockets of the defense contractors at the taxpayers' expense. They are:

—Pilot Shanghaied—

The Air Force has shanghaied a helicopter pilot off to Vietnam despite evidence that he should have been discharged almost a year ago.

The pilot, Capt. Charles W. Hoilman, graduated from the Air Force Academy in 1964. His service should have expired in September, 1969, at the latest.

Hoilman swears he gave notice of his intent to resign in March, 1966, but was told he would have to wait to give notice officially until 12 months before his separation date.

In September, 1967, when he was assigned to a helicopter school, he told the Air Force clearly he wanted out. In fact, his squadron commander, Lt. Col. Berry A. Segraves, certified: "I was aware he intended to get out of the service at the end of his present active duty service commitment."

But through a bureaucratic foul-up, the Air Force obligated him to another four years because of the helicopter schooling. Col. Segraves swears Hoilman was unaware the schooling meant four more years.

Still the Air Force refused to let Hoilman go, and now has sent him off to Vietnam as a combat pilot. He has turned up 13 other pilots in similar situations who have long since been allowed to go off active duty.

Back from Europe . . .

U.S. Looks Run-down

By BRUCE BIOSSAT, Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Four trips to continental Europe in a short span of years give me some basis for comparisons with life in the United States. Hard as it is to say, this country does not come off very well.

Possibly my judgments would be taken as more profound if I were writing some sort of farewell to Europe after a stay of 5 to 10 years. I really don't think it matters all that much.

What struck me first, on my most recent return, was—with important exceptions—the incredible amount of man-made ugliness in America. Residential housing, mostly in the swollen suburbs, too often has the look of a spreading plague of unimaginatively assembled brick and stone.

Our cities, not least this basically beautiful capital, are despoiled by the litter of the uncaring. No doubt everybody is sick and tired of hearing about the beer can bit. But it is a ringing point with me, since I find half a dozen or more new discards across the street from my house at least several times a week.

Note, by the way, how much is said about the beer can as "litter," and how little of the fact that it lights your way along automobile roadways. There must be one hell of a lot of drinking in cars. We do hear from the safety groups that intoxication plays a large role in accidents. But what about two-handed attention to driving? What is Ralph Nader after, a rolling, crashproof bar and restaurant?

Television gives you another quick hang-up when you get back from abroad. Not that Europeans are not big on it. They surely are. But here we are hammered over the head with the stuff.

Of course you do not have to turn the set on—or even own one. But most Americans do both, for a lot of hours a week. What a flood!

Compelled to listen to the news, tantalized by the thought I might miss something, I found myself driven wild by television's performance in the days after my return. There came Walter Cronkite to boast that his network's Washington affiliate offered 90 straight minutes of news in the evening. Ninety minutes, indeed.

Obviously, you get some hard nuggets of news (a big plane crash at Toronto, etc.) But you can do no less than gag on the endless repetition. Try going at it from evening through the next morning.

And much of the first-hand stuff from across America and around the globe makes only a loose, impressionistic mosaic. You may get your first look ever at a Cambodian hut or an Israeli fire base in the Sinai desert. Day after day, these fragments. Information? Yes, in an intensive, cluttering kind of cascade. Depth of knowledge? Precious little, even adding in the occasional long documentaries with extensive comment.

A man who specializes in using the media, and particularly television, for political purposes told me recently that the "more information people get from the tube about candidates and the political process, the more they are turned off and decline to participate."

He says mistrust is greatly magnified and that does it. I grant him mistrust is encouraged by watching some political doings. But I think there's more involved.

Much of what goes on in politics is either boringly monotonous, or boringly controversial. How many times do you watch a filmed fist-fight in the city council chamber over where the new freeway will go?

We truly have an immensely beautiful country. But, all aside from ravaging it by gouging and polluting, we have moved unsystematically to render large parts of it commonplace. And the great communicator, the Big Eye, is proceeding with uncanny skill to "inform" us and the world as never before—while at the same time removing the juices of variety and freshness from nearly everything by deadening repetition.

Even our young rebels who, by their wild dress, pronounce their withdrawal from this deadening business, in fact contribute to it. For they have managed, with devilish ingenuity, to make differences of attire so infinite that they have made difference itself a kind of smothering conformity.

Until we get those new see-through cards, we will have to struggle along with the inferences we can get from the ones we see in our hand and dummy and from the bidding and early play.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace and another in response to his partner's echo.

The Student ruffed with dummy's jack of trumps. After long thought, he led the five of spades and finessed the nine. West took his 10 spot and, since there was no way for the Student to avoid the loss of a club, he was down one.

The Student noticed a frown of disapproval on the Professor's face and asked what he had done wrong.

"You just threw game out of the window," replied the Professor. "You could be pretty sure that West had started with five hearts and six diamonds, so that he could only hold two black cards. If they were both clubs, you were doomed to lose a trump trick in any event. If one were a club and the other a spade, you would be correct to try a trump finesse. But you could have found out that West held two spades without any risk at all, if you had really wanted to.

"Come to your hand with the ace of hearts and lead a low club. It West follows, you will then take the spade finesse. West won't follow, so you will know enough to just play out high trumps."

"Suppose West ruffs?" asked the Student.

"In that case, he has merely ruffed your losing club."

The rings of the planet Saturn are among the flattest things in nature when their depth is considered in proportion to their width, according to The World Almanac. Diameter of the ring system, including the planet itself, is 170,000 miles but the depth from top to bottom is estimated to be no more than 10 miles. When the rings are presented to the earth edge-on, they seem to disappear.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — One wonders what Prince Charles and Princess Anne talked about on their flight home after their whirlwind visit. They probably slept. Some of the things they really wanted to do were not on the schedule. They were probably bored with museum visits an empty Senate chamber, and meeting aged congressmen.

Tricia Nixon had to explain the baseball game to them in the scorching sun. They left after five innings before the Senators' 4-0 victory against the California Angels.

President Nixon demonstrated his interest in youth by spending an hour and a half talking privately with the 21-year-old Prince. He rarely allows more than an hour to seasoned Heads of State.

The Shakespeare play "The Tempest" currently performed by the National Park Service on the Washington Monument grounds is appropriate because a tempest is raging in government circles. The Federal government is firing 150,000 civil service employees this year.

On a higher level, differences between Secretary of State William Rogers and Henry Kissinger, the President's Adviser on National Security Affairs, seem to be brewing.

Senator J. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) is like the leopard who changes his spots. He is now criticizing the Nixon Administration for being unfair to education in the South.

Attorney General John Mitchell has taken off his hard hat and strong voice and showed a very humane and forgiving nature in his recent New Orleans speech.

YOU CAN MAKE ROOM IN GARAGE FOR CAR

By MR. FIX

In many cases a garage is something you park your car outside of. Instead of being a shelter for the family automobile it is a storehouse, tool shed and workshop. It is the place where bikes, wagons and baby carriages are parked. But not a place for a car.

In warm weather that's O.K., but when cold weather comes, you may find yourself scurrying to find room and squeezing, scratching and damaging everything in sight.

Planned properly, all the storage space you need may be there. It is just a matter of using it correctly.

First determine just how much space you really need for the car. Shove things against the wall or drag them out into the yard until you have room to drive in easily. Open the car doors and make certain they can swing open easily on both sides. Make chalk marks on the floor to note where the boundaries are.

Life will be easier if you can arrange to keep as much off the floor as possible. If your garage has a gable roof there's usable space overhead. A floor or even a partial floor will hold more than you expect. Use 2x6s or 2x8s set 16 inches apart for joists.

Make as many shelves as you can on both side walls. On the back wall of the garage you can put up shelves above the height of the car's hood.

Simple, small shelves for small objects can be made without even allowing them to jut out if the walls of your garage are open, as most of them are. With wood scraps, make small shelves to fit between the studs. They will hold small cans of paint, containers of nails and screws and other small objects.

Hooks right on the wall or mounted on peg board will take care of most garden tools. If there are children around, prevent them from pulling the tools down on their heads by arranging a chain or piece of leather or webbing so that it is secured to the wall with the tool handles behind it.

Nail short pieces of wood to studs at right angles and you have a handy place to hang the garden hose, extension cords and coils of rope. You also can hang up lightweight folding lawn chairs the same way.

With small items off of the floor you will have room to wheel in bikes, power mower and other large items.

Keep a push broom handy so that you can sweep out often. Paint the floor with special concrete paint so that it will be more resistant to staining. Clean up grease spots right away.

Keep debris from blowing in by weatherstripping the bottom of the door. Large rubber gaskets made for this purpose are available. If you have a piece of old garden hose, slit one side of it so that you can fasten it to the bottom of the door by nailing or screwing through the inside of the hose.

White Blows Engine; McCluskey Nabs Win

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Don White, who had built a five-second lead over Roger McCluskey by the 95th lap, found himself pulling into the pits with his 1970 Dodge Charger the following lap with a blown engine and watching McCluskey take the checkered flag in the first-annual Falstaff 100 at the Missouri State Fairgrounds yesterday.

White, who was the United States Auto Club's stock division champion in 1963 and 1967, held the lead in the national championship late model race for 74 laps; those came between the first and 50th laps and the 71st and 95th, when his engine gave way.

A massive 12-car pileup on the first turn of the initial lap delayed the race for approximently 45 minutes.

The accident occurred when Whitey Gerken of Villa Park, Ill. clipped the rear end of Art Pollard's 1969 Camaro, causing Pollard's racer to spin off the inside guard rail. Cars behind Pollard were forced to spin themselves trying to avoid him.

As a result, six cars were forced into the pits, with damaged beyond repair for the day's 100-mile feature event.

The only other crash of consequence came on the seventh lap when Glenn Bradley of Lincoln, Ill. flipped his stocker coming out of the fourth turn.

Bradley was taken to Bothwell Hospital for X-rays, but his injuries were not believed serious.

McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., spent the morning in Indianapolis, Ind. qualifying for today's championship division road race. Following his qualifications runs, he hopped in a plane and flew to Sedalia to run in the USAL stock car race.

Following McCluskey across the finish line was Butch Hartman of South Zanesville, Ohio, in a 1970 Plymouth.

Third and fourth positions went to Chrysler products as well. Third was grabbed by Verlin Eaker of Cedar Rapids, Iowa in a 1970 Dodge Charger, while Sal Tovella, Addison, Ill., behind the wheel of a 1969 Plymouth, finished fourth.

Whitey Gerken was the fifth-place finisher.

Keokuk, Iowa's Don White set the fast time for the starting 30-car field with a clocking of :40.05 and finished seventh behind Larry Berwanger.

Eighth place went to Bay Darnell of Dearfield, Ill. in a 1970 Dodge Super Bee; Raybon Hinkle of Griffith, Ind., grabbed ninth place in a 1969 American Motors Rebel, while Paul Feldner, last year's second-place finisher behind A.J. Foyt, was tenth in the cockpit of a 1969 Dodge Super Bee.

The highlight attraction of the late model show was to be A.J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., the defending champion of the Sedalia track in the United States Auto Club. Foyt, however, was confined to a bed in Indianapolis, suffering from influenze.

Both his entry in the Falstaff 100 and today's national championship division race at Indianapolis had to be withdrawn late Thursday.

Either On Strike Or Locked Out

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League's 1,300 players are on strike or are locked out of training camps depending on the way you look at it.

After eight hours of conferences Saturday, the NFL Players Association and an owners committee still were reported far apart in efforts to reach agreement on a new contract.

Main issue on the table is a pension plan.

The association has said its veteran players will not report to training camps until agreement on the plan and other fringe benefits is reached.

The owners, on the other hand, have closed the doors of of their camps on the same grounds.

Jr Babe Ruth All-Stars Blank Opponents Friday

BULLETIN

The Sedalia Junior Babe Ruth All-Stars were defeated 2-1 Saturday night by the Jefferson City All-Star team.

JEFFERSON CITY — The Sedalia Junior Babe Ruth All-Stars shut out the Mid-Mo team from Linn and Chamois 8-0 Friday night in the Jefferson City District Tournament.

Not marring Perri's superb pitching, the locals amassed a commendable record of six hits and only one error.

Four home runs added insult to injury. Thoroughly tagging the Mid-Mo pitcher were Doug Maple, Dennis Cooper and Peter Kostopolus, who hit two homers.

Runs-batted-in were credited to Doug Maple, one, Ralph Perry, one, Dennis Cooper, two, and Peter Kostopolus, who netted four.

Roger Tynes was given the loss for Mid-Mo and the over-all Mid-Mo team record was zero runs, three hits and five errors.

Sedalia was scheduled to play Jefferson City last night.

Babe Ruth Tourney Queen

Miss Jan Banaka has been chosen queen for the 1970 Babe Ruth Central Sectional Tournament, which will be held in Sedalia's Liberty Park Stadium, July 31-Aug. 4. Miss Banaka is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Banaka of RFD 3, Walnut Hills. She graduated from Smith-Cotton High School this past spring and will be a freshman at the University of Missouri this fall. She will accompany Mr. Carl Walker, president of the local league, in the tournament parade Friday. She will also be in attendance at the ceremonies at Liberty Park for the tournament's opening game at 1:30 p.m. Friday, as well as the 7 p.m. game, when host Sedalia meets the Indiana State Champion.

Rodeo Scores Lowered By Superior Stock

The rough stock of the Running F Rodeo Company, Delaware, Okla., out-scored the tough cowboys at the opening performance of the Seventh Annual Sho-Me Rodeo Thursday night.

There were no qualified rides in the bareback riding or steer wrestling events.

Dub Grant, 1969 I.R.A. Calf Roping Champion, Benton, Ark., took the early lead in the calf roping with a time of 12.0 seconds.

Two outstanding saddle bronc rides were made with I.R.A. Director Tonto George, Holland, Mich., scoring 61 points on "Little Sue" and Gene Maynard, Grove, Okla., scoring 59 points on "B-38."

Rosie Townsley, Miami, Okla., turned in the fastest time in the girls' barrell racing with a smooth 17.7 seconds. Jean Grant, Benton, Ark., had a time of 18.4 seconds and Doll Grant, also of Benton, had a time of 18.7.

Only one qualified bull ride was made Thursday night as Frank Dontahan, Henryetta, Okla., scored 54 points on Running F bull number JE "Son."

The teamwork of rodeo announcer Steve Gatlin, West Memphis, Ark., and rodeo clown Ron DeGonio, Bonne Terre, Mo., was tremendous as they kept the crowd excited all night.

The sheep dogs and monkeys of Ron DeGonia were very amusing and were enjoyed very much by the spectators.

Claims Ample Practice Time

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs, given the green light to bring their veterans into training camp while the impasse continues in the pro football contract dispute, dived into 11th hour preparations Saturday for Friday night's game with the College All-Stars at Chicago's Soldier Field.

Little more than 12 hours after Kansas City received permission to launch drills for the game, the Chiefs' camp on the campus of William Jewell College became a beehive of activity.

The veterans spent Saturday morning unloading their personal affects in their lockers and viewing films showing the 1969 college stars they'll see in action during pro football's 1970 coming-out party.

Coach Hank Stram welcomed his veterans at 3:30 p.m. when training got under way. He said the Chiefs "wouldn't be playing this game against the All Stars if I didn't think we could win it. I assure you that's the case.

"I think we have ample time to get ready. We've trained for other games before with only a week's practice and played good games. The important thing is not if we're ready to play but if we're ready to win. I believe our squad by voting to play in the game has expressed the desire to win."

The Chiefs voted unanimously to play in the annual contest sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities. This will be their first appearance in this game.

After Saturday's initial workout, Stram called another session for Saturday night. He plans two sessions Sunday; three one-hour drills Monday and two a day on Tuesday and Wednesday. The squad will go to Chicago Thursday and work out in Soldier Field Thursday night.

"I think the over-all condition of our squad is the best we've ever had on the first day of veterans' drills," Stram said after the afternoon session.

Every one of the Chiefs' veteran players was on hand Saturday except Ed Lothamer, a second-team defensive tackle with six seasons as a pro, who called Stram a couple of hours before the workout and said he was retiring.

Stram said he would start the same lineup against the All-Stars Friday night that started the Super Bowl game last Jan. 11 when the Chiefs downed the Minnesota Vikings 23-7 for the World Championship.

Olympians Bested By Scott Runners

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Ian Stewart and Ian McCafferty of Scotland ran Olympians Kip Keino and Ron Clarke into the ground Saturday in the 5,000-meters, closing day highlight of the British Commonwealth Games.

Stewart, a 21-year-old gunsmith who lives in England, won the gold medal in 13:22.8—second fastest time in track history. McCafferty took the silver in 13:23.4—the world's third best time.

Kenya's Keino, after a tense week in which his life had been threatened in anonymous letters, battled the Scots into the final straightaway before fading. He won the bronze in 13:27.6 after slowing to a trot.

Ron Clarke, 33-year-old Australian who holds 19 world records, finished fifth and bowed out without ever having won a gold medal either at the Olympics or the Commonwealth Games.

Clarke is the world record-holder at 5,000 meters with a 13:16.6 clocking, set in Stockholm, June 6, 1966. The Australian veteran has announced his retirement, planning to wind up his career in Oslo Aug. 5.

The track and field events ended with Australia winning 10 gold medals, England seven, Kenya, Jamacia and Scotland four each.

Breaks Record With Upset

Scotland's Ian Stewart (316) wins the 5,000 meter Gold Medal race held Saturday at Edinburgh, Scotland, a part of the Commonwealth Games. Stewart's victory was an upset and his time of 13 minutes, 22.8 seconds set a new record for the event. Ian McCafferty (behind Stewart), of Scotland, came in second. (UPI)

Unlikely Tie From Ranks

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — The unlikely combination of Dave Eichelberger and J.C. Goosie, apair of refugees from the rabbit ranks, came out of the pack Saturday and tied ginats Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus for the third-round lead in the $200,000 National Four-Ball Golf Championship.

Eichelberger and Goosie, who had to survive Monday qualifying to get into the field for this team event, carved out an eight-under-par 63-including 29 on the backside—for a 54-hole total of 192.

Nicklaus and Palmer heavily favored with Palmer playing on his home course, the 7,045-yard Laurel Valley Golf Club, also were at 192 after a third-round 64.

Sam Snead and Gardner Dickinson, who were tied with Palmer and Nicklaus for the lead going into the hot, muggy day's round drifted back with a 68 for 196—four strokes off the pace.

Australian Bruce Crampton and former U.S. Open champ Orville Moody forged into third place with a 64 for 194.

Moody, in a slump for several months, snapped out of it with two strings of four consecutive birdies.

Miller Barber and Don January were tied with Snead and Dickinson at 196, the two veterans from Texas taking a 66. Jim Colbert and Dean Refram followed at 197, after a 67, with two other teams at 198. They were the Hill brothers, Mike and Dave, and Bob Lunn and Dave Stockton. Both teams had 65s.

Goosie, a 41-year-old former club pro who returned to the tour only this year, blew a six-foot putt on the 18th that would have given him and his 26-year-old partner sole control of the lead.

Neither has ever won a tour event and they made it into the field only when Goosie sank a 60-foot putt to claim the final qualifying spot on Monday.

Barely Enters, But Wins Tournament

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Jeff Reaume of Ypsilanti, Mich., who barely qualified for the tournament, defeated Daye Newquist of Kansas City, Mo., 4 and 3, Saturday to win the Western Junior Golf Championship.

Playing in a near-torrential rain, both players had difficulty on the sloppy course.

Local Diver Places Third During Meet

Don Simmons, Route 2, Green Ridge, and a member of the Sedalia Divers, Inc. placed among the winners of a competitive diving tournament. Simmons received a trophy for third place for the most fish speared in a skin diving, spearfishing event at Lake Table Rock. Simmons is rated as a sharpshooter (B Class) diver in competition during meets. The Midwest Diving Council event was sponsored by the Jayhawk Divers of Pittsburg, Kan. and was sanctioned by the Under Water Society of Missouri.

Phil Goyette, veteran center for the St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League, won the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy for his clean play last season.

Baseball Roundup

Royals-Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pat Kelly and Cookie Rojas drilled consecutive two-run singles in the seventh inning Saturday, breaking a 4-4 tie and sending the Kansas City Royals to an 8-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Consecutive homers by Rojas, a two-run shot, and Amos Otis, who also homered in the fourth, gave the Royals a 4-3 lead in the sixth.

Ted Uhlaender tied the game at 4-4 for Cleveland with a lead-off homer in the bottom of the sixth.

Cleveland got its other three runs in the first. Duke Sims singled in one, another scored on a fielder's choice and Uhlaender singled in the third.

Cards-Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench blasted a three-run homer and drove in another run with a single as the Cincinnati Reds continued their mastery over the St. Louis Cardinals with a 5-3 victory Saturday night.

Bench's homer came in the first inning and put the Reds ahead to stay en route to their seventh straight victory over the Cardinals. St. Louis also has dropped its last seven games.

The home run was Bench's 30th and it tied him with teammate Tony Perez for the National League lead.

Dodgers-Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Marshall slammed a pinch hit three-run homer in the seventh inning Saturday, powering the New York Mets to a 6-4 victory over Los Angeles.

Marshall's fifth homer came off Jose Pena who relieved starter Alan Foster after Ron Swoboda led off the seventh with a walk and Jerry Grote singled. The Mets added another run in the inning when Ken Singleton doubled home Joe Foy.

Los Angeles had taken a 4-2 lead in the sixth. Bill Grabarkewitz led off with a double and scored on Manny Mota's triple. Mota was thrown out at the plate on an infield hit but the Dodgers got two more runs in the inning on RBI singles by Wes Parker and Bill Russell.

Red Sox—Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mike Hegan slammed a two-run homer and Tommy Harper homered and singled twice, powering the Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

Hegan put Milwaukee ahead to stay in the first inning when he blasted a pitch by lower Mike Nagy into the right field stands, following a single by Harper. Harper hit his 20th home run in the third inning.

Marty Pattin, 6-9 went the distance to pick up the victory, scattering six hits. One of the them, however, was Carl Yastrzemski's 26th home run, a two-run blast into the right field bullpen in the fourth inning.

Twins—Orioles

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Don Buford powered the Baltimore Orioles over the Minnesota Twins 6-5 Saturday with a two-run eighth inning homer.

Buford's shot into the left field seats came after reliever Dick Hall beat out an infield single, his first hit of the year.

Frank Robinson, Ellie Hendricks, Dave Johnson and pinch-hitter Terry Crowley laced sixth inning singles to produce two Oriole runs and tie the score 4-4.

Astros—Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Denis Menke and Bob Watson each drove in three runs and Jimmy Wynn produced two as the Houston Astros trounced Pittsburgh 8-4 Saturday.

Houston built up a 6-0 lead as Menke singled in two runs in the first and one in the fourth, Watson brought in a run with a sacrifice fly in the third and another with a double in fourth and Wynne singled in a run in the fourth.

Women's First

Russie Derigne of Windsor went into the record books this past week at the Windsor Country Club. She was the first woman to shoot a hole-in-one at the Windsor course. Her feat was accomplished on the fourth hole. For the round she carded a 38, including seven pars and two eagles. Women's par on the course is 42. Accompaning her on the round was Pate Douglas also of Windsor. (Windsor Review Photo)

Football Pensions Still Behind National Interest

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football may have have surpassed major league baseball as America's No. 1 spectator sport, but an athlete looking forward to drawing a pension in retirement still appears to be better off swinging a bat than throwing a football.

That conclusion, made from a study of the pension plans of the four major professional team sports, conflicts with an implication made in a position paper sent by the pro football owners earlier in the week to the players during their contract dispute.

A weapon in the dispute, the position paper took up the critical pension issue standing between the owners and the National Football League Players Association and noted that the current offer to the players was larger than the present plan now covering major league baseball players.

That may be so. But major league baseball teams are spending more per player in pension benefits than pro football would with its new offer—and, therefore, according to independent pension experts, guaranteeing greater benefits at retirement.

While economic factors that differ between the two sports may very well prohibit pro football from matching the pension outlay made by each baseball team for its players, it also is a fact that the NFLPA is asking the football owners for a figure almost identical with their bat-swinging colleagues.

Major league baseball currently is contributing $5.45 million a year to a pension and benefit program that also includes non-playing personnel. According to figures in pro football's position paper, $3.9 million of that is earmarked for the players.

The NFL owners have offered the NFLPA $4.5 million a year in pension and benefit funds to cover only players, a figure that is larger than baseball's $3.9 million. But there is one major difference—more players are covered by pro football's pact than baseball's.

With 24 teams each carrying 25 players, baseball's pension program covers some 600 major leaguers while pro football has 26 teams, each responsible for 40-man rosters, or a total of 1,040 players.

The cost per employee to each NFL club then would be about $4,300 to cover each player while, under the existing baseball plan, each player in that sport is covered by a contribution of some $6,600. That same $6,600 a man is approximately what the NFLPA is demanding from the owners—or $6.5 million a year.

While the total figure is not as impressive, the National Hockey League is third in line, followered by the National Basketball Association. NHL teams contribute $770,000, or $3,400 a man. NBA teams pay in $400,000, or $2,000 per roster player.

The NHL plan is unique in that it is the only plan that fully guarantees the amount of money a player will receive when he retires. NHL clubs must contribute enough money—no matter how much it is—to produce $300 a year for each year of a player's service.

Using age 65 as an example, a hockey player who had spent five years in the sport would receive $414 a month. A 10-year player would get $828 and a 15-year player $1,233. For an NBA player, the figures across the board are estimated at $300, $600 and $900.

The NBA figures are based on an estimated growth of four per cent in its plan. Baseball uses a 4½ per cent figure. Independent experts say both figures are the conservative figures most generally used, despite the fact pro football's estimates are based on a six per cent return.

Using 4 ½ per cent as its rate of return, baseball estimates a five-year player at age 65 will collect $773 a month. A 10-year veteran would come in for $1,545 and a 15-year veteran would get about $1,745 a month—or more than $20,000 a year.

Using six per cent as its rate of return, pro football shows significantly higher returns in each category-$1,655 for a five-year player, $3,300 for a 10-year player and $4,995 for a 15-year player. The later figure means almost $60,000 a year.

The higher pro football figures do not, of course, mean the pro football player will get more money at retirement since both plans essentially are supported by the same investment methods and, in the long run, will have similar yields.

More Safety Demanded By Grand Prix Drivers

NEW YORK (AP) — Retired racing great Stirling Moss says present day Grand Prix drivers "are emasculating our sport with safety demands."

The Britisher, who quit driving after a serious accident several years ago, made his comment at Watkins Glen recently after the German Grand Prix was shifted from the famed Nurburgring in West Germany to the Hockenheim Motordrome near Frankfort for safety reasons.

The Grand Prix Drivers Association headed by Swiss pro Jo Siffert had demanded that operators of the 14-mile Nurburgring install more than 10 miles of guard rail. The operators responded that the job couldn't be done in time for the Aug. 2 race.

While conceding that spectators must be protected on all types of courses, Moss maintained that responsibility for safe driving rests with the drivers themselves.

"When I raced and tram (trolly) lines cut diagonally across the road circuit and had to be taken at a 90 degree angle to keep from cutting a tire, we slowed down and crossed them at 90 degrees," the blading former driver said, adding:

"We didn't go to the organizers and demand that the tram lines be taken up.

"In true road racing, when there's a curb on the road you make damn sure you don't hit it. Today, drivers insist that the curb has to go."

Jackie Stewart, the reigning world driving champion, said the Nurburgring "has an insurmountable number of dangerous situations for drivers and spectators; so many, in fact, that a major replanning of the circuit is needed."

Kirby Challenges Little Bear Title

Natureboy Kirby

Danny Little Bear

Boisterous. Natureboy Kirby will get another shot at the Central States wrestling crown here Tuesday night.

The sturdy, 235-pound Indianapolis heavyweight will challenge highly-regarded Danny Little Bear and his vaunted Indian death lock over the best of three falls in a match that will highlight a four-event Convention Hall ring program.

For Kirby, the opportunity is a big one and he is confident he has the heft, power and speed to unseat the champion. Kirby is the only wrestler in the mid-states to score a title victory over Little Bear. That occurred in late spring in St. Joseph, when the Hoosier heavyweight came back to take two straight falls after dropping the opener.

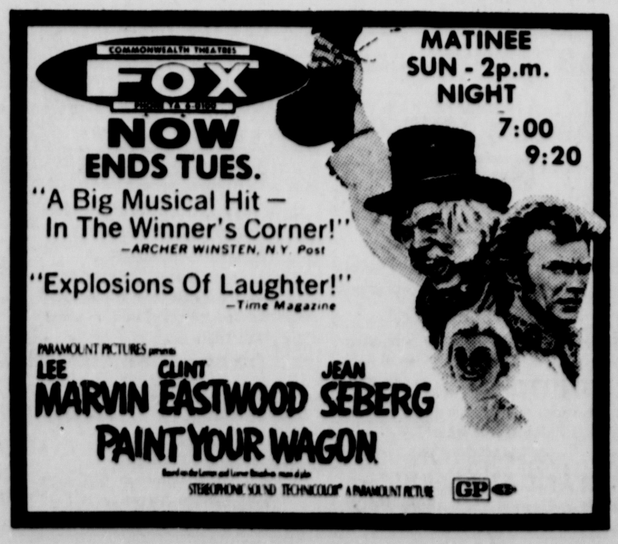
His hold on the championship was shortlived, however, as the Oklahoma Indian came back the following week to regain the belt. He's held it ever since, as he has most of the time since last September.

Little Bear tuned up for this week's pairing by defeating talented Oki Shikina in a power struggle last Tuesday night.

Tag team action also is scheduled on this week's card, with Harley Race and Shikina pooling talents to take on the veteran pair of Pat O'Connor and Bob Geigel.

Geigel, the hard-hitting Amarillo workhorse, and O'Connor, a former world champion, have been in the wrestling wars for more than 20 years and know all of the tricks. Both retain good speed and each has power and experience in his favor.

Also set are matches between Scandor Akbar and the Viking, and Shikina and O'Connor.



Ford's Theater Is Same As on Fatal Day in 1865

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took 24 years and $2.5 million to recreate the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

But Ford's Theatre today looks just like it did in 1865 when John Wilkes Booth, a disgruntled 26-year-old actor from Maryland, slipped into the presidential box and shot Lincoln in the head.

The movement to restore the theater began in 1946 when a bill was introduced in Congress to fix up the run-down playhouse. But no action was taken until 1960 when funds were appropriated for a research and architectural study.

Work began in 1964. But there were snags and delays.

Surveyors found the three-story brick structure was built over quicksand, and had to dig the foundation deeper to insure safety. They stripped the building to a shell, then rebuilt.

Historians were adamant about authenticity. They rejected 50 artists' samples of wallpaper to line the presidential box before accepting one they felt matched the all over crimson leaf and border design. They worked from a swatch donated to the government by a doorkeeper on duty the night Lincoln was shot.

The building opened as a museum in 1968. Lincoln experts acclaimed it a success, a splendid copy of the $100,000 century-old theater. And accurate, they said, even to the suspended gas chandeliers ...

There were three modifications, however: air conditioning was added for comfort, crowd restrictions were imposed to conform with fire codes and cane chairs for the audience were built three inches wider to accommodate today's expanded population.

This week the final touch was added—a 35-minute narration of the tragedy that April 14.

The events of that night in Ford's are recounted in a presentation using only sound and light, no characters. Laughter, footsteps and conversation echo in the playhouse while a spotlight shines on an empty spot where the action occurred.

Hanoi Brags That AA Units Are Effective

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam reported today that thousands of missile units and soldiers in North Vietnam have received official recognition for shooting down hundreds of U.S. planes since June 24, 1965.

Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency did not say what kinds of missiles were used.

An English-language broadcast quoted the Hanoi newspaper Nhan Dan as saying that five years ago Friday, "for the first time the missile service engaged in battle and recorded its first resounding exploit by shooting down at a time a whole flight of three U.S. modern jet aircraft, including the 400th U.S. aircraft downed over North Vietnam."

The broadcast claimed that as of July 4, the United States had lost 3,354 planes over North Vietnam.

Oil Dumping Regulations Are Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter Hickel Friday proposed regulations that would ban the discharge of any harmful quantity of oil, even if mixed with ballast, bilge water or any other substance.

The regulations would implement antipollution legislation passed earlier this year. Under terms of Hickel's proposal, there will be a 30-day period for comment after the regulations are published in the Federal Register. A spokesman for the Interior Department said the regulations should appear within a few days.

The regulations define a harmful quantity as either an amount which violates applicable water quality standards or which causes a "visible film, sheen or discoloration of the surface of the water or the adjoining shoreline."

The ban would apply to all United States navigable waters and its offshore "contiguous zone—the band of water extending from three miles offshore to 12 miles offshore."

'Death Squads' Are Condemned By President

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — President Emilio G. Medici has joined other government judiciary figures in condemning the vigilante groups of off-duty policemen that are accused of executing petty criminals in four Brazilian states.

"All efforts must be made to put an end to these atrocities, because the good name of the Brazilian society is at stake," Medici said Friday in a statement issued jointly with Justice Minister Alfredo Buzaid.

It was the first public acknowledgement by the federal government of the existence of "death squads," allegedly made up of off-duty policemen, that have been blamed for the deaths of 11 small-time criminals in Sao Paulo and three in Rio de Janeiro in the last week.

Indicted For Having Pipe Bomb

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Arnold A. Stead, 23, was indicted Friday by a federal grand jury on a charge of illegally possessing an unregistered bomb.

Stead was arrested June 30 carrying what police said was a homemade pipe bomb. Expelled from the University of Missouri-Kansas City last fall, he has said he is a member of the Weatherman faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

His arraignment was continued Friday after both the government and the defense asked for a mental examination of Stead. He is being held under $25,000 bond.

Stead previously attended Northeast Missouri State College and Central Methodist College briefly. Marine Corps records show he was given a medical discharge after a month's enlistment.

The grand jury also indicted three men in the July 3 holdup of the Community State Bank in Kansas City. They are Robert L. Miser, 20, of Los Angeles; Sam B. Stewart Jr., 17, and Mitchell McHenry, 20, of Kansas City. The loss in the holdup was $15,830.

The grand jury charged James L. Light, 19, an inmate in a federal prison, with helping rob the Latham, Mo., bank of $10,000 last Aug. 20.

East Pakistan Is Hit Hard By Flooding

DACCA (AP) — An estimated 500,000 people have been affected by floods in 11 of East Pakistan's 19 districts, Pakistani news agencies reported today.

Three people drowned Friday in Chittagong as heavy rains and rising rivers swamped the region. Thousands were left without shelter.

On Sandwip Island in the Bay of Bengal, more than 10,000 people have lost their homes but the casualty toll is unknown, since all communications with the mainland have been cut.

A daily stream of refugees has been treking to the safety of higher ground.

In Serganj district, a river embankment washed away threatening the whole town. Major rivers lacing the province are now above danger level. Large scale destruction of the rice crop is also reported.

Man Arrested For a Threat To President

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Secret Service has arrested a 52-year-old man on charges of threatening the life of President Nixon.

John M. Woolf, an itinerant, was taken into custody Friday without resistance at his house trailer in Stockton, Calif., said Tom Hansen, Secret Service chief in San Francisco.

Hansen said agents found a .22-caliber rifle and four boxes of ammunition in Woolf's trailer home.

He said police at Healdsburg, Calif., received a report July 13 that Woolf had made an oral threat against the President's life.

Jack of all trades. Master of one.

You probably know Jack.

In fact, you probably know him to be very good.

But as good as Jack is, if he were to come to work for us, we could teach him a few things.

For example, while he may know a little about a lot of cars, he doesn't know all about our little cars. So first thing, we'd send him to a VW Training School.

There he'd learn our cars inside and out. By taking apart every part and putting it back together, time after time.

He'd also learn how to use our special tools. Not just because they work better, but because they also help him do better work.

He'd even learn that he'd never stop learning. Because later, as we'd make changes, we'd teach him the changes. On our time and at our expense, instead of on your car and at your expense.

Of course, while all this would make Jack a master at fixing VWs, fixing VWs (and only VWs) might not make Jack happy.

But then, that would explain one very important thing: Why Jack isn't with us in the first place.

Summer Pool Fun

Governor Claims Politics In a Meeting With Nixon

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — North Dakota Gov. William L. Guy has accused President Nixon's staff of attempting to turn a nonpolitical meeting with five Midwestern governors into a partisan Republican gathering.

Guy was the only Democrat among the governors who met in Fargo with the President to discuss the problems of rural America.

Republicans denied Guy's allegations Friday.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said later in Salt Lake City, "The impression I got was that everyone who attended . . . thought the meeting was nonpartisan and extremely valuable."

Guy termed the official meeting "excellent" but he said Nixon aides had attempted to block his participation in the visit to Fargo, had slighted Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., by not inviting him and had slighted the governor's wife.

Guy said he was told the White House would handle announcement of the meeting.

"Two hours later," said the four-term governor, "the announcement was made jointly by Congressmen Kleppe and Andrews." Rep. Thomas Kleppe and Mark Andrews are North Dakota Republicans. Kleppe is challenging Burdick for the Senate seat.

Burdick "was treated like an outsider" while the GOP congressmen accompanied the President, Guy told a news conference.

"My wife received her first invitation to the event about 9:30 last night," he said. "She was invited to the style show for Mrs. Nixon but was specifically told not to intrude into any other activities."

Guy also said: "I was at first told that I wouldn't be permitted to greet the President, that Republican party officials would do that. But I overruled the White House aides on that one."

Guy was the first to greet President and Mrs. Nixon as they left Air Force One and Burdick was in the crowd at Fargo's airport.

Dr. Ben Clayburg, North Dakota Republican committeeman, said Guy was "hypercritical because his party doesn't control the presidency.

Say Curbs Won't Hurt Shoe Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Domestic shoe manufacturers are out to convince consumers that a quota on imports of footwear would not send prices skyrocketing in this country.

Their product is in an unwelcome spotlight especially since President Nixon has threatened to veto trade legislation that sets import limits stricter than he has recommended. He has agreed in principle to textile quotas, but the pending bill would set mandatory limits on footwear as well.

The American Footwear Manufacturers Association challenges estimates that the bill would result in a sharp rise in shoe prices, as some consumer groups and retailers contend.

The association estimates that the pending bill still would permit some 167 million pairs to enter the country in 1971, and 176 million pairs in 1972. By comparison, 195 million pairs were imported in 1969.

"Applying the quota formula to 1969, but using the same total consumption and prices for that year, we estimate that the average retail price to consumers would have increased less than one per cent," an association statement said.

A spokesman said the industry operated at only 77.5 per cent of capacity in 1969.

Lyceum's 'Angel Street' Coming

The Arrow Rock Lyceum Summer Repertory Theater will come to Sedalia Tuesday, when it presents "Angel Street" at the Agriculture Building on the State Fairgrounds.

The professional drama troupe's appearance here is sponsored by State Fair Community College, in cooperation with the Sedalia Council on the Arts.

"Angel Street," a Victorian melodrama by Patrick Hamilton, deals with the attempts of a husband to drive his wife mad, as a means of completing a 15-year-old crime. Charles Boyer and Ingrid Bergman starred in the film version, "Gaslight."

The cast is headed by Michael Doyle, a five-year veteran of the Lyceum Theater, who plays Manningham. Other players include Mary Krause, Ken Zimmerman, Eda Fain and Sally Mitchell.

The Arrow Rock Lyceum was founded in 1961, and is the oldest professional repertory theater in the Midwest. It is housed in the Lyceum Theater at historic Arrow Rock.

Also cooperating in the troupe's appearance in Sedalia is the Missouri State Council on the Arts.

Curtain time at the Agriculture Building will be 8 p.m.

Scene From Play

Manningham, his wife and the maid are seen in a scene from "Angel Street," to be presented in the Agriculture Building on the State Fairgrounds at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Co-sponsors of the Lyceum Theater performance are State Fair Community College and the Sedalia Council on the Arts.

Landmark Kansas City Hotel Goes on Block

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—The Town House Hotel, an imposing 250-room, 14-story structure in the heart of Kansas City Kan., will be sold Monday by the U. S. marshal from the steps of the county courthouse.

The public auction was ordered by the U. S. District Court on June 22 to satisfy a first mortgage of $543,349.47 held by Equitable Insurance Co., of Iowa and for back taxes and interest on a second mortgage for $297,500.77 held by a group of Kansas City, Kan. investors.

Equitable brought suit against the present owners—a Washington, D. C., investment group made up of Ned Bord, Alexander Hassan and Robert Zanesville, who purchased the hotel on June 30, 1965. Also named in the suit was the Wyandotte Hotel Co., a locally formed corporation which built and owned the hotel in 1951 and now holds a second mortgage.

Bidding for the closed hotel, whose guests and visitors included Dwight D. Eisenhower during his 1952 presidential campaign, is expected to start near the $1 million figure.

It is the hope of many local residents and businessmen that the property will be bought by a group who will continue to operate it as a hotel. Mention has been made of converting the structure into a nursing center, office building or educational training facility.

When the hotel was built, it was financed heavily through contributions of Kansas City, Kan., individuals and organizations.

It did a thriving business for more than a decade under management of the Schimmel Hotel Corp., of Omaha, and direction of A. L. Low, a Schimmel executive.

In its early days the operators were kept busy with a steady procession of conventions and professional meetings as well as tourist and transient trade.

The original mortgage executed when the hotel opened was $1,250,000, with land, building and equipment listed as security. As business continued to be profitable during its first 10 years, the hotel company was able to reduce its mortgage debt.

The Schimmel Corporation ended its management of the hotel on Sept. 1, 1963.

Starting in 1964 the hotel firm went through a series of adjustments with the holding company permitting it to pay interest at varying periods and at intervals reducing the payment.

On June 30, 1965, the three Washington investors took over obligations of the first mortgage with the Wyandotte Hotel Company to cover its equity in the hotel.

Financial difficulties cropped up in the recent years with a decline in convention and tourist trade. Operators and managers of the hotel complained the decline was due to the proximity of other big hotels and motels in neighboring Kansas City, Mo., and that Kansas liquor laws, which do not permit public sale of liquor by the drink, discouraged booking of conventions.

On Dec. 3, 1969, a suit seeking appointment of a receiver was filed in U. S. District Court here by Equitable Insurance.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

Jesus came to take away sin. In our study of Jesus' mission for the purpose of better understanding God's teaching as it applies to me and to you individually, we have learned that: Jesus came to save, and that should be the influence of every Christian. Jesus came to serve God by serving man and so should we. Jesus' teaching was to cause division of world and himself, and we should be faithful to it even at the cost of family and friends. Jesus came to call sinners to repentance. Therefore, his teaching should be used to cause men to see their sinfulness and lead them to repentence.

Jesus was not only the sacrifice for the sins of the world, but he was manifested to take away sins. He died for us; we should live for him. This is to be the purpose of every Christian. Anyone who fails to make this the sincere purpose of his life and bases his hope on anything less, has a false hope. The person who has truly died to sin, separated himself from sin, how can he continue to live in it? How can he continue in that from which he has separated himself.

"If then you have been raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated on the right hand of God. Set your mind on the things that are above, not on things that are upon earth, for ye died, and your life is hid with Christ in God." Col. 3:1-3.

Study Called Impossible

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The State Government Reorganization Commission heard its staff director, A. C. Sullivan Jr. report Friday that the staff had neither the time nor manpower to make a complete study of the cost of putting all employes in all state departments under the merit system.

The order that the study be made by the commission came from the Legislature last June.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes asked the Legislature to pass bills extending the merit system to the public service commission and the division of liquor control. He also asked the Legislature to make the study on extension of the merit system to other patronage agencies.

The lawmakers declined to switch the patronage jobs in the PSC and Liquor Control to the merit system, requesting instead that the Reorganization, or "Little Hoover," Commission take on the study job.

Sullivan said it would be impossible under present circumstances to put a dollar cost on the change and suggested the commission make some educated guesses and give the Legislature what he called "a horseback estimate."

State Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, said he was convinced the political patronage, or spoils, system must be eliminated and he thought the commission has an obligation to provide the Legislature with some figure, even if it was a guess.

The commission was told that three task forces— on revamping the management authority of the governor, on labor and industrial relations and on state government personnel— should be available for final consideration by October.

A member of the commission, Col. C. R. Stribling of Mexico, said he was worried about the situation of free education and the unstable conditions on many college and university campuses.

He heads Missouri Military Academy at Mexico.

Stribling offered four questions to which, he said, he had no answers, including:

"Is free education a right or a privilege?

"Is education as important as we say it is or are we simply giving lip service to its importance?

"Is it academic freedom they're using (on the nation's campuses) or is it academic license to overthrow the institutions of this country?

"Is this thing the teachers call tenure but another way of putting a premium on inefficiency and inability?"

He said he hoped someone could come up with the answers.

Highway Blow To Missouri, Says Senator

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The recent 20 per cent cutback of Missouri's federal aid to highway funds is "a crippling blow to highway programs, delivered at the height of the construction season," Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo. said Friday.

He said the 1968 Federal Aid to Highways Act expressed the intent of Congress that no part of such appropriated funds should be impounded or withheld by any member of the federal government.

"The (Nixon) administration would do well to examine ways in which it can speed up construction of the long-delayed interstate system rather than ways to slow it down," Symington said in a statement from his St. Louis office.

Australian Trains Following Right Track

EDITOR'S NOTE—Long-distance passenger trains are having their problems in the United States. But in Australia there are no signs of the trains going out of business. In fact, they're building new expresses, perhaps the most modern trains in the world.

By GORDON TAIT
Associated Press Writer

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — At the vast Sydney Central Railway Station, the shining expresses pull out with every sleeping berth taken, making it seem as though the airlines were going out of business.

Long-distance passenger trains may be fading away in other countries, but they are still big business in Australia.

These days the airlines are carrying about four times the number of interstate passengers to and from Sydney as the railways, but there are still 2,000 passengers on these rail expresses every day.

Central Station is a train-watcher's paradise in the evening, with this timetable of departures: 6:30, Brisbane Limited Express; 1:33, Brisbane Express; 6:44, Wollongong; 1:48, Gosford; 7:10, North-West Mail; 8:00, Southern Aurora to Melbourne; 8:00—there are two express outgoing lines—North Coast Mail; 8:10, Spirit of Progress to Melbourne, and so on.

But are the passenger trains making money?

"We don't really expect to make profits from passengers," says the New South Wales Commissioner for Railways, Neal McCusker, the $28,000-a-year head of the system in New South Wales state. "We make money from hauling freight, and have a responsibility to the public to provide comfortable transport and an efficient commuter service at a reasonable cost."

The New South Wales System on a normal day operates 29 air-conditioned, long-distance passenger trains, hundreds of other trains for short hauls and for freight. In a year it carries 233 million commuters and 15 million country and long-distance travelers.

McCusker said passenger services in New South Wales earned only 24 per cent of railway revenue and took 52 per cent of the effort. Freight earned 69 per cent of revenue, with 48 per cent of the effort. There is some revenue from other sources.

Australia's newest trains are two Indian-Pacifics, each of which does a return trip between Sydney and Perth a week. The journey is 2,461 miles each way and takes 65 hours.

On the top trains such as the Indian-Pacific and the Southern Aurora—200 berths—to Melbourne, there are single and twin-bed cabins, each with a toilet. The twins also have a hot shower, and there are showers at the end of each carriage for those who travel in the single berth cabins.

Each train has a dining room, and the Indian-Pacific has a lounge car with taped music and a piano, plus a club car where you can drink anything from coffee to cocktails.

The Indian-Pacific on its run across the Nullabor Plain traverses the longest straight rail line in the world, with one stretch of 297 miles without a curve. The train is fully booked in first class nine months ahead.

But the costs are high. "The Indian-Pacific carries 144 passengers and a needs a crew of 28," says McCusker. "We need only a crew of three for a 2,000-ton freight train."

Still the trains are slow compared with the jets—13 hours to Melbourne compared with 75 minutes; 65 hours to Perth against 5½ hours.

So why do people still keep the trains virtually fully booked? Wander around among the people as they are about to leave on the Southern Aurora for the 13-hour trip to Melbourne—leave 8 p.m. arrive 9 a.m. — and you get some of the answers.

"Planes scare me," says an elderly woman.

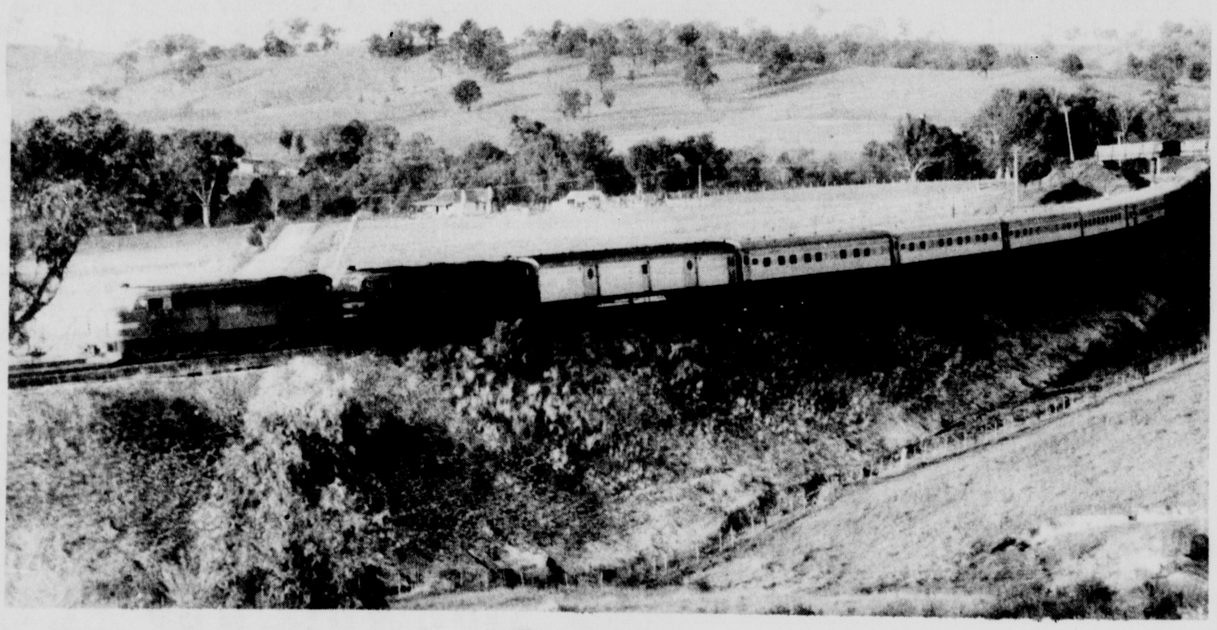
"Trains are so much cheaper," says another woman. The train fare Sydney to Melbourne ranges from $13.55 economy class on the daylight express to $22.18 on the Southern Aurora first class, compared with $26.32 economy and $31.80 first class on the jets.

"With the trains I get away from the phone for 13 lovely hours," says a businessman.

And another puts it like this: "By train I have dinner aboard, read a little, then 10 hours in the cot; then breakfast. And at 9 o'clock in the morning I'm right in the heart of Melbourne."

The airline people say the competition from the railways does not worry them. They assert they could carry more passengers if they had the carrying capacity.

The Australian railways also are building new trains for the short hauls. The most recent train to go into service has air-conditioned, double-decker carriages and runs commuters on the 50-mile electric track between Sydney and Gosford to the north.



Supertrain

Rolling down from Sydney, the Australian capital, bound for Perth, goes the Southern Aurora. Air-conditioned, with 200 berths, it covers the 2,461-mile trip in 65 hours. It's one of the top trains down under, a worthy representative of Australia's thriving railroad system. (AP)

Sen. Stennis Sees a Danger In Budget Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading off a debate expected to last several weeks, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said Friday the nis, D- Miss., said Friday the $19.2 billion military procurement bill can be pared no further without endangering the safety of the nation.

ate Armed Services Committee, gave a broad scale defense of the bill his own committee has already cut $1.3 billion below the House-passed total.

Senate critics of military spending practices are expected to make the Safeguard antiballistic missile their first target. Stennis said the $1.34 billion for Safeguard is necessary in view of the rising military threat from the Soviet Union and the U.S. bargaining position at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—SALT.

The procurement bill, which authorizes Pentagon purchases of major weapons—tanks, planes, bombs, guns, missiles, ships—will also be the occasion for an expected battle over the controversial "end-the-war" amendment sponsored by Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.

Situation 'Shocking'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of Coca-Cola told a Senate subcommittee Friday he was shocked by the deplorable conditions facing migrant farm workers including his firm's own workers in Florida.

J. Paul Austin told subcommittee Chairman Waler F. Mondale, D-Minn., he agreed with most of the conclusions in last week's NBC documentary on migrants. He denied pressuring the television network to include some mention of Coca-Cola's plans to improvewage scales and working conditions of its own employes.

Austin proposed that either Congress or the President create a national alliance of agri-businessmen, similar to the National Alliance of Businessmen which works in partnership with the government to train and hire the disadvantaged in large cities. He said the attention of corporations acting in agriculture should be focused on training and employment with "dignity and with fair wages" of the migrant workers.

Austin also said he hoped Coca-Cola's example in Florida of attempting to make year-around employes of the farm workers would stir other firms to do the same. He said J. Lucian Smith, president of the Foods Division of Coca-Cola, already has discussed such upgrading with other Florida growers.

Austin said he is on the board of a Philadelphia organization headed by the Rev. Leon Sullivan, which first teaches self-respect to the unemployed and then sends them to a skills school. He said he has asked Sullivan to expand the efforts to reach migrant workers and instill in them the same motivation to improve themselves.

Austin told the subcommittee, which is considering the problems of migrant farm workers, that for more than a year Coca-Cola has been examining the problems of the 300 fulltime and 1,000 seasonal workers in its Florida groves in "an effort to develop a program through which he can live and work in human dignity and economic security."

First Televised Session

A session of the president's cabinet was televised for the first time on Oct. 25, 1954. The occasion was prompted by a special report to President Eisenhower and the Cabinet by John Foster Dulles, secretary of state.

Commercials Are Italy's TV Mainstay

The commercials are the most popular program on Italian television.

Everyone from Fred Flintstone to Frank Sinatra has appeared on it, plugging anything from diapers to derricks.

But the commercial "Carosello" segment is not normal television. Instead of just showing opera, mystery, romance or adventure, it shows all of them in the form of commercials.

And instead of switching to another channel, running to the bathroom, or going to the kitchen for a snack, the average Italian—and his children—stay glued to the screen for the 15-minute, 15-year-old program.

The state-owned television network, RAI, estimates that 14.6 million Italians—nearly one-third of the population—tune in for "Carosello" at 9 p.m. between the news and the main feature. It is by far the most popular and the most enduring show ever produced by RAI.

Only World Cup soccer matches or national song festivals draw more viewers. But not day-in, and day-out like "Carosello."

It began 15 years ago, when television was new, and the country's artists shunned TV as a medium.

But "Carosello's" juicy salaries—now anywhere from $1,500 to $5,000 for a day's work-soon lured outstanding film directors, actors and entertainers. The brief program still has more top name stars than you can see for the rest of the evening.

"Carosello," according to the strict ground rules, has a special type of format.

Each of the five nightly spots are limited to around 135 seconds. The sponsor must devote pure song, fantasy, romance which usually lead in to the sales pitch. The product may not be shown nor spoken of until the end.

On one recent spot, Virna Lisi played the dumb blonde who made just the right faux-pas in a series of uncomfortable situations before the announcer told viewers: "With a mouth like that she can say anything-with X brand toothpaste."

"Inspector Rock," the infallible sleuth, is probably "Carosello's" best-known character. His comment, "I never made a mistake," has become an expression as popular in Italy as "sock it to me" was in the United States. The inspector, however, did make one unpardonable error. "I never used Linetti Brillantine," says he, lifting a toupee to reveal a bald head, after solving the last case in 100 seconds flat.

Scripts, music and actors, must be approved by SACIS, the watchdog body of Italian television, which acts on a first-come, first-served basis. There's a long waiting list. Tobacco advertisements have been outlawed since the start. So have many pharmaceuticals.

A woman cannot kiss a man on the show, and excessive violence and eroticism, as well as anything repulsive in man and beast, should be eliminated. Old film material cannot be used.

The competition for the "Carosello" slot is fierce. There are unconfirmed tales of private firms promising funds for political campaigns if their company can get on "Carosello."

A normal contract—at $8,640 a spot—provides for five different spots, one every six days over a 30-day period. Each advertiser must provide a new commercial for each of the five transmissions. The limit to any advertiser is three contracts a year for a total of 15 spots.

The system tends to give the small dollmaker an even chance with the giant automakers. In addition, competing products are never shown on the same "Carosello."

Advertising on Italy's state-run television is not limited to "Carosello." No programs are sponsored, but all commercials are gathered in nine "islands" at different times of the day with commercials about 35 seconds apiece.

One of the main reasons for the soft-sell on advertising is that Italian television derives a smaller revenue from ads than from the license fees every Italian TV-owner has to pay. In 1967, RAI made $118.4 million in fees, while taking in $46.4 million in advertising revenue.

Three Die In Racing Accident

DARLINGTON, Wis. (AP) — Three pit crewmen at a county fair stock car race died Friday night and four more were injured when a racer collided with another car, skidded backward into the pits and overturned a wrecking truck.

Sheriff Ken Pratt said two of the dead victims were pinned under the overturned wrecker.

Pratt estimated the car, a late-model Chevelle, was traveling 90 miles an hour in the back straightaway on the half-mile dirt oval at the Lafayette County Fair when it collided with another car.

It skidded into the wrecker and bounced away, but was checked by cables and steel fencing before it could reach spectator areas. About 4,000 persons were watching the race.

The dead were identified as Robert W. Henn, 15; James R. Hardman, 30, and Laverne L. Meyers, 17.

Two pit workers were hospitalized, neither in critical condition. They are Ray Burkhalter, 23, of Rockford and William Cullen 35, of Darlington.

Two other pit members were treated for injuries at the hospital two blocks from the fairgrounds. Neither driver was injured seriously.

Officials said the race, being held on the second night of the 114th annual fair, had drawn an unexpectedly large number of competitors.

Pratt said there were about 40 entries in the race, and that there were at least 100 authorized persons in the pit area when the accident occurred.

Pentagon Budget Battle Opens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators critical of Pentagon expenditures have launched their attack on military spending in a battle over America's defense posture that is expected to continue throughout the summer.

The theme of the attack was sounded Friday when Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., declared $10 billion could easily be trimmed from President Nixon's $72 billion Pentagon budget without impairing the nation's defense.

The defenders, led by Armed Services Committee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said any further cuts could imperil the security of the nation.

The debate, expected to continue until Labor Day, came on a $19.2 billion military hardware bill—the first of several bills that comprise the total Pentagon budget.

Proxmire said Defense Department funds could be trimmed to $62 billion, perhaps as low as $58 billion, and vowed to introduce an amendment to the pending procurement bill to clamp a ceiling on military spending for the next fiscal year.

Proxmire, however, said no firm defense spending ceiling had been established.

Stennis urged quick passage of the military procurement bill for hardware such as the anti-ballistic missile system, offensive missiles, a new long-range bomber, fighter aircraft and tracked-vehicles such as tanks.

He noted his committee already cut $1.2 billion from the administration's recommendations and said further cuts in the hardware bill would endanger the nation.

"We are confronted with the grim fact of rapidly increasing Russian strategic forces which could place this country in jeopardy in the years ahead," Stennis said.

Proxmire replied that "we and the Soviet Union have enough to blow up the world many times over. Why do we need more to match each other in unneeded and excessive capacity?

On Opposite Sides

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., right, and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., pose together before a Senate session Friday. On the floor, Stennis, warning that the Russian nuclear threat grows "ever more serious," began the difficult campaign of winning Senate approval for an expansion of the antiballistics missile system. He was promptly challenged by Senator Proxmire. (UPI)

New Bedford Riot Was Senseless

By TOM TIEDE

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. — (NEA) — It began here on a breezy Wednesday evening in the West Side community known somewhat overdramatically as the black belt.

Nobody knows what really set it off. The most repeated explanation is that a white cop made a black arrest and the hotheads took it from there.

What is known is that the early mess of gunfire and window-breaking did not have the elements of real riot. There was no heart for real riot even among the rampaging leaders. Mostly, it was an exercise in muscle-flexing through Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Then came Saturday. Police say three white kids who swaggered into the black belt with a shotgun killed one 17-year-old and injured three others. That blew the lid off a street war in which 48 were injured, a half-dozen buildings were burned and a four-block area was seized and sealed off from the city. Most of 104,000 stunned townspeople were made sick and disgusted with fright.

And what did it all prove?

Nothing. Except, as one resident says, "what damn fools we all are."

The New Bedford riot, one of a dozen which have raged in similar towns this summer, is a classic example of the futility of such violence. While it may be argued that urban riots have collectively quickened the pace of racial reform, not even this solace can be had here. This riot was more of a gang action than a result of understandable social aggravation. Most New Bedford citizens, black and white, are thoroughly ashamed by the senselessness of the tragic affair.

Not that New Bedford can claim any unqualified pity. The 200-year-old town, once famed for its whaling fleet, has neglected its minorities for its entire history. There has never been a Negro in the city council. The unemployment rate in the black settlement is 33 per cent. The town's most prestigious club bans Negroes.

Yet even this is no just reason for riot. As a Negro at city hall puts it: "There are more white poor here than black poor, there are more Polish jokes than Negro, and the Jews can't get into some of the clubs either. So if the blacks got the right to riot, than anybody with a gripe can pick up a club and join them."

The point is this. New Bedford is smug and often insensitive. But its black residents are not at any strangulation stage of misery. There are no ghettos here, except in the mind. There is injustice, but as black poverty leader Jennie Horne says: "we got green grass and shade trees. This isn't Harlem, for sure."

So how did a riot happen?

"The same as they happen almost everywhere else," explains one sad local banker. "Because the town did nothing to prevent it."

For years blacks have failed time and again to win progress through calm negotiations, says Negro Urban Renewal Director Howard Baptiste. "I remember when we wanted to change the name of a local school — to that of a black civil war sergeant who won the Medal of Honor. We negotiated and pleaded and made a perfectly good case — peacefully; but the white administration wouldn't go along. Then some militant blacks began to pound the tables — not asking but demanding. The whites got scared to death and, sure enough, we finally got the name changed."

What Baptiste is saying is that New Bedford has burned out the effectiveness of responsible black leaders and forced irresponsible fear merchants to the fore.

This is precisely why the riot happened. Long standing, legitimate black demands (such as better police - black relationships, rezoning for lower income housing, lighting for playgrounds) have been snubbed so long the black community turned elsewhere to get quicker satisfaction.

As it happened, they turned to a group which the police chief here calls "mostly thugs" and which the mayor categorizes as "out-of-towners." Young men like Jimmy Magnott, who was arrested during the disturbance for assaulting a cop and who tells white newsmen: "Don't you come round me, man — or you gonna limp away."

"If these kids had the community at mind," a member of the black establishment, Al Rosario, says "I'd be for them, too. But they don't. I hear they're making plans now to kill 10 whites for the one black boy that got it. They're all for themselves, that's all. If you don't go along, regardless of your color, then they'll be beating you, too."

New Bedford's riot is over. One young man is dead, neighborhoods are broken, responsible black leaders are stilled. Housing isn't improved, there are no more jobs then before, wild delinquents prowl the streets.

TV Networks Sign With Musicians

NEW YORK (AP) — Television networks and the American Federation of Musicians have reached tentative agreement on a contract.

Announcement of the settlement, Friday in New York, was delayed because of the death of union president Herman Kenin Tuesday. A funeral was held in Portland Ore., Friday.

Critical Of Nixon On Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three black congressmen have accused the Nixon administration of showing "disrespect for our offices and callous disregard for our views."

Reps. William L. Clay, D-Mo., Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., and Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said Friday in a letter to President Nixon that his policies have tended to limit the rights of black Americans.

"When nine black members of Congress indicated five months ago our desire and willingness to bring black American concerns to you, we were turned away in a manner which showed disrespect for our offices and callous disregard for our views," the letter said.

"Your course of the past 18 months, in our opinion, is destined to destroy all possibilities of unity and brotherhood," the three charged.

They urged Nixon to make a firm commitment toward attaining racial equality.

"Since you assumed office, you have traveled to all corners of the earth emphasizing your concern for many problems and pledging American efforts towards solutions," the letter said. "But you have not come to black America."

The letter noted Nixon has issued 19 policy statements since April 18, "when we were advised your schedule would not permit your meeting with us."

But not one policy statement touched on race relations, they said.

They also noted the President has had "a record 30,600 personal guests at the White House.

"The time has come," they added "for you to invite discussion with the black elected officials and try to come up with answers to the number one problem confronting this country."

For Cautious Acceptance Of U.S. Mideast Proposals

TEL AVIV (AP) — Political figures in Israel called on the government today to accept the U.S. Middle East peace proposals in the wake of Egypt's assent but they cautioned against a hasty reply.

In a series of radio interviews, Israeli politicians warned that the nation must not allow itself to become isolated in the diplomatic arena.

But they advised Prime Minister Golda Meir's coalition regime to take time in framing its response to the Washington proposal.

Israel Galili, a close adviser to Mrs. Meir, declared Egypt's acceptance of the U.S. plan was "an attempt to prevent Israel from getting the arms necessary for its defense."

In Cairo, President Gamal Abdel Nasser said his acceptance was a tactic to keep Israel from obtaining additional arms.

Two members of the Israeli parliament, who stand on opposite sides of the political fence, agreed on the need to accept the proposals, despite Israeli's fear that a limited cease-fire—one of the plans major elements—would allow Nasser to strengthen his position along the Suez Canal prior to renewing the battle.

Avraham Offer, a dove, said the cease-fire should be accepted on condition that proper international supervision could be activated to guard against such a buildup.

Shmuel Tamir, a hawk, said Israel should agree on condition that the Russians move their thousands of troops and military advisers out of Egypt.

The Cabinet meets Sunday to consider the situation. Observers feel that the coalition make-up of Mrs. Meir's government will be put to a severe test in answering the Soviet and Egyptian challenge.

Fake Picasso Now Valuable Claims Owner

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit high school teacher says his fake Picasso pen-and-ink drawing is now valuable.

Pablo Picasso returned the drawing after scribbling the French word "Faux"—false—on it and putting an X over the forged signature, said Spiros Nicholas, an English teacher at Detroit Southeastern High School.

The teacher said it now could be worth from $3,000 to $8,000 as a novelty.

Nicholas said he inherited the drawing of a court jester from his late father four years ago and recently tried to get it verified as an authentic Picasso.

He said Detroit art dealer Les Arwin sent it to Picasso's agent in France since the Spanish artist now lives near Paris and that Madame Louise Leiris, sister-in-law of the agent, took it to the 89-year-old Picasso, who denounced it.

The forgery, with Picasso's scrawling, was returned by mail to Arwin, with a letter telling about the incident, Nicholas said.

Arwin had been suspicious of the drawing, noting "Picasso would never draw such tentative lines. His lines are very definite, not so shadowy."

Boeing Pulling Out, But Is Hurt By Economic 'Downdraft'

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Once high-flying Boeing, in an increasingly steep dive since hitting a downdraft two years ago, apparently is pulling out of it. But casualties have been heavy among the crew, support personnel, and shareholders.

Since 1968 the aerospace giant has shrunk in size by half, earnings have nosedived, stock values have plummeted and resulting shock waves have severely rocked the state of Washington's economic boat.

The lean-fat-lean syndrome is nothing new to Boeing in the volatile and cyclical aerospace business. The Seattle-First National Bank, in its 1970 annual review, blames Boeing ups and downs for the "state's wild economic gyrations" in the 1960-70 decade.

But never before has the company gone through such a retrenchment convulsion in terms of numbers because the work force was at an all-time high when the latest cutbacks began.

With a big backlog of orders for 707, 727 and 737 jetliners, a go-ahead given for 747 Jumbo Jet production, and Saturn V and Minutemen programs at full force, Boeing hit a peak of 148,000 employes nationwide in March 1968 and 101,400 in its home Puget Sound area in June 1968.

Since then, over-all employment has dropped 73,000 to a total of 75,000, with 33,000 of the decline occurring since last Jan. 1. The effect was felt acutely not only in Seattle, but in such places as Wichita, Kan., and New Orleans, where Boeing has major installations.

The company has reduced its work force in the Seattle metropolitan area by 46,000 since the peak and 25,600 this year, putting the payroll at 55,400 as of July 1.

In addition, 10,000 Seattle-area jobs were scheduled to be eliminated by Jan. 1, 1971, but 1,500 of those may be saved through Boeing's success in winning the Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) contract early this month.

At the height of the jet-age boom when Boeing was supplying more than 50 per cent of the free world's commercial transports, earnings were about $83 million in 1967 and 1968.

Boeing earnings plummeted in 1969 to $10.2 million, which reflected an actual $6.8 million operating loss offset by $17 million in investment-tax amortization. Profits were down more than 50 per cent for the first quarter of 1970.

Boeing stock followed the same pattern. From a high of $112.38 a share in September, 1967 the price skidded to a 10-year low of $12.12 early this month, and then rebounded slightly after the (AWACS) award. In the $12-$14 range, it was selling at approximately the same price as in mid-1954 with no adjustment for inflation.

The stock's 100-point drop in less than three years represented a paper loss of more than $2 billion to shareholders. The company has 21,683,000 shares of common stock outstanding.

Boeing cutbacks put the squeeze on the firm's local subcontractors, suppliers and vendors, with several having gone under. It spread with devastating effect through the entire Puget Sound area and to a lesser degree the rest of the state.

In the Seattle area summer unemployment reached 10 per cent, or more than twice the national average. Some 70,000 persons were out of work.

Real estate sales were off about 40 per cent, new car sales were down 35 per cent. Five dealers went out of business. Scores of department store clerks were laid off.

Apartment house vacancies ranged from 5-25 per cent, depending on areas with light or heavy concentrations of Boeing workers.

Residential construction was down 35 per cent, apartment house construction 93.4 per cent.

Some airlines, operating in the red, had trouble paying for the Boeing jets they had ordered. One canceled the four 747s it had on order. Others stretched out delivery dates.

Meantime, the company had gambled huge stakes on the 747 and, as often happens on any new program, ran into problems. Trouble with the new Pratt & Whitney engines delayed deliveries and costs of building the jumbo jet were higher than expected.

With huge sums of money tied up and the cash flow reduced until deliveries of the $23 million 747 eased the situation, Boeing borrowed heavily at high interest rates to tide itself over.

Boeing had no short-term debt at the end of 1968. At the end of 1969 it was $148 million, and the figure rose to $200 million early this year. Total long and short term debt at the end of 1969 was $820 million, equal to more than the company's net worth.

But Miner H. Baker, Seattle-First National Bank vice president and economist, has no misgivings.

"Boeing is not going broke," he said. "Don't worry about anything like that. The company has performed most of its major surgery and has the worst behind it. The effect on the community is unfortunate, but Boeing will emerge in a strong, competitive position."

Fifty 747s had been delivered as of July 8 with 151 more on order. Boeing deliveries of all types totaled 1,938 jetliners.

Winning the AWACS contract, with a potential value of $2 billion over the next five years, was a long-range shot in the arm and an immediate morale booster both for Boeing and the community.

During the first phase, in which Boeing will build and test two of the radar eye-in-the-sky Air Force surveillance and command planes, the number of employes in the program will grow only from 200 to 1,500, all from transfers within the company. But if full-scale production is ordered on the 42 planes programmed, peak employment will reach 9,000.

The supersonic transport program, for which Boeing is starting to build two prototypes, holds quicker promise of reversing the company's employment decline. A spokesman said that if the Senate completes congressional action in providing $290 million for SST in fiscal 1971, the number working on the project will grow from 4,000-plus now to 8,000-10,000 by next summer.

Asked what would happen if the Senate kills the appropriation, Boeing said:

"Without fiscal '71 funds, the SST program will be lost. The aerospace industry just does not have the resources to go it alone.

"Naturally, the loss of the SST contract would hurt the company seriously, and the nation's aerospace future. The SST is the airplane of the future, and it will be built by someone. If the United States drops out of the competition, we assuredly will see the foreign makers dominate the international air travel field-and the industry."

Boeing's backbone at this time is the 355-ton, 370-passenger 747. Of the 215 airliners it has on order, 151 are jumbo jets. They account for about $3.4 billion of the company's $4.2 billion backlog of commercial aircraft.

But 747 sales are slow, and Boeing is close to bumping up against the two-year lead time it figures for delivery to a new customer and 18 months to repeat orders. Unless sales pick up, the company could run into a no-delivery gap sometime in 1972.

To broaden its base, Boeing is trying vigorously to diversify.

The company moved into the housing - management field it signed a $2 million, two-year contract recently to manage, operate and maintain two Operation Breakthrough housing developments in the Seattle area for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Boeing gained expertise in this field with its site development and systems management in the Minuteman missile program.

O.C. Boileau, aerospace group vice president, said Boeing will make a major effort to expand its management role in such areas as rapid transit and airport-terminal construction.

In May, the company formed a computer services division made up of 3,000 employes at its Seattle, Wichita, Philadelphia and Huntsville, Ala., installations. The division will seek computer services business as well as support Boeing's own needs.

The company also has gone into electronics manufacture and says it expects to do about $30 million of electronics business this year.

Unlike other fluctuations in the company's payroll in the past 10 years, the present cutbacks have hit the middle-class, white-collar worker hard. Many were well-paid engineers and technicians.

Boeing said it had to make its cuts across-the-board to maintain a proper balance and avoid "the danger of retaining a work force so high in experience and pay that it possibly could place the company in a noncompetitive position."

Boeing's cost-cutting has gone far beyond trimming the size of the work force.

Can any benefits be seen from Boeing's illness? Economists think so. For years they have been preaching the need for greater diversification in the Puget Sound area and less reliance on a single industry.

Now it's being achieved the hard way.

Hiroshima Dedicated to Reminding the World of Atomic Destruction

Atomic Devastation

A photograph of Hiroshima on August 7, 1945, shows smoke still lingering over the appalling scene of destruction following the explosion of the atomic bomb on August 6. In the background is the ruin of the old Industrial Exhibition building now preserved as a memorial in new Hiroshima. (AP)

EDITOR'S NOTE — Twenty-five years ago, man crammed into a bomb the most deadly force yet known and dropped it on Hiroshima, Japan. Twenty-five years ago. Hiroshima remembers. And is dedicated to reminding the world.

By JOHN RODERICK I
Associated Press Writer

HIROSHIMA (AP) — A quarter century after the "pikadon" burst on Hiroshima, it has bandaged nearly all its wounds. But the scars which remain continue to evoke shock and sadness.

The pikadon, Japanese for "lightning bomb," was the first atomic weapon used against humans. In the closing days of World War II, on a clear Aug. 6, 1945, morning, it plummeted from a U.S. bomber into the heart of Hiroshima. In the wake of its blinding flash and mushroom-shaped cloud, it lef death, destruction and despair. The Japanese estimate more than 200,000 died; American reports put it at 66,000 Less disputed were the after-effects: terror at the unknown followed by 25 years of gnawing worry among the survivors.

Called "little boy," the Hiroshima bomb was followed three days later by a second, dubbed "fat man," on Nagasaki. In the years since, both cities have erected prospering, new communities on the charred rubble.

But though Nagasaki has officially forgotten, Hiroshima nurses the canker: in the center of a tranquil park it has built a museum housing the dismaying photographs of the keloid-scarred victims and the testimony of metal twisted into grotesque shapes. At the park's center stands a simple cenotaph, at its far end the skeleton dome of the sole building preserved from the holocaust, the old Industrial Exhibition Hall.

Why does Hiroshima remember? Because it had the dubious distinction of being the atom's first victim: Japan decided that it should become a "peace memorial city," dedicated to recalling the horrors of war.

Broad avenues cutting across the fingers of Hiroshima's six alluvial rivers, stone monuments scattered around the city center and river restaurants which specialize in Hiroshima oysters lend an atmosphere of tranquillity and space.

The avenues serve a double purpose, first as highways, second as fire breaks. The monuments are additional reminders of doctors and schoolchildrer who died under the bomb. Even the oyster restaurants conceal under their gay exteriors testimony to the summer tragedy 25 years ago.

Seated cross-legged on the straw mats of the oyster boat "Kakibune Hiroshima," a young American and his Hiroshima-born wife savor the food and speak of their stunned impressions.

She left Hiroshima with her father for California as a child of 13 after her grandfather had succumbed to leukemia. Her name then was Hiroko Takeuchi. Slight and wistfully beautiful, she met and married a boy of her own age, Robert McDonald, holder of a brown belt in karate and manager of a bank vault in Alhambra, Calif. Married two years, it was Hiroko's first voyage home, Robert's first glimpse of his wife's celebrated home town.

Both are 21, born four years after the holocaust. As they sit with Hiroko's relatives, he talks of what Hiroshima means to him.

"I got rather sick; it made me feel bad when I saw it," he said, recalling his visit to the museum. "It is one thing to hear about it, another to see it. I had no idea of the immensity of the destruction."

Blond, open-faced and fiercely antiwar, he says: "It made me ashamed to be an American. I am against war."

Elsewhere on the "Kakibune Hiroshima," Toshiaki Matsuoka putters quietly about his duties. Away on military duty in Southeast Asia when the bomb fell, he lost his wife and four children. Remarried, he now is the "Kakibune's master.

In the museum a few hundred yards away, hundreds of visitors from many countries daily file past the horrible exhibits, drawn yet repelled by the mute evidence of man's inhumanity to man.

Each Aug. 6, Hiroshima publicly remembers. Thousands bow their heads in prayers as the peace bell tolls; doves wheel into the air; at night thousands of tiny boats bearing candles are floated on the rivers in honor of the spirits of the dead.

Is there a lingering hatred of the United States in this city?

"Our anniversay is not a symbol of hate," says spare, energetic Mayor Setsuo Yamada. "It is a reminder that there should be no more Hiroshimas; we have the right and the obligation to appeal to the world for peace.

"Born after the war, the memories of the bombing are fading for the young. There is no hatred for Americans. Our Buddhist philosophy is quite different from the Christian: we believe in letting bygones be bygones."

Then he adds: "The American people helped our people after the war. If they had not supplied us with food, hundreds or thousands might have starved to death."

Yamada, 71, follows in the footsteps of a great Hiroshiman: Shinzo Hamai. Before he died two years ago, this stubbornly idealistic mayor was the symbol of Hiroshima's rebirth. Refusing to give up, he begged, borrowed and demanded the funds, enlisted the men to clean up the mess and set to work to create a new Hiroshima.

Yamada, oxford - educated, fluent in English, came to the mayoralty after a career in social service military government and law. Hehwas in Borneo when "little boy" fell. He is building a $2,778,000 social welfare center where the rehabilitation work for Hiroshima's citizens-among them some 100,000 bomb survivors-will be concentrated.

The Hiroshima of August, 1945, was a military center, with 80,000 troops stationed here. What it looked like two days after the explosion of "little boy" was recorded by Mitsugi Kishida, a civilian attached to the army.

"It was hell on earth," he recalls now. "When I saw the flash I was 50 kilometers away. But the countryside was lit up with lights of different colors. I thought there had been a gas explosion. Later, from Hijiyama Park I saw the vast panorama of destruction. Around me, civilians and soldiers were moving past in ghostly silence, their bodies swollen, the skin peeling off. Flames were everywhere. Never have I felt such hopeless despair."

At about the same time, Kishida was making his ground photos, Associated Press Photographer Max Desfor was recording the scene from a U.S. military plant.

A quarter century later-in 1970—Desfor made his first visit to Hiroshima and met Kishida, now a successful commercial photographer.

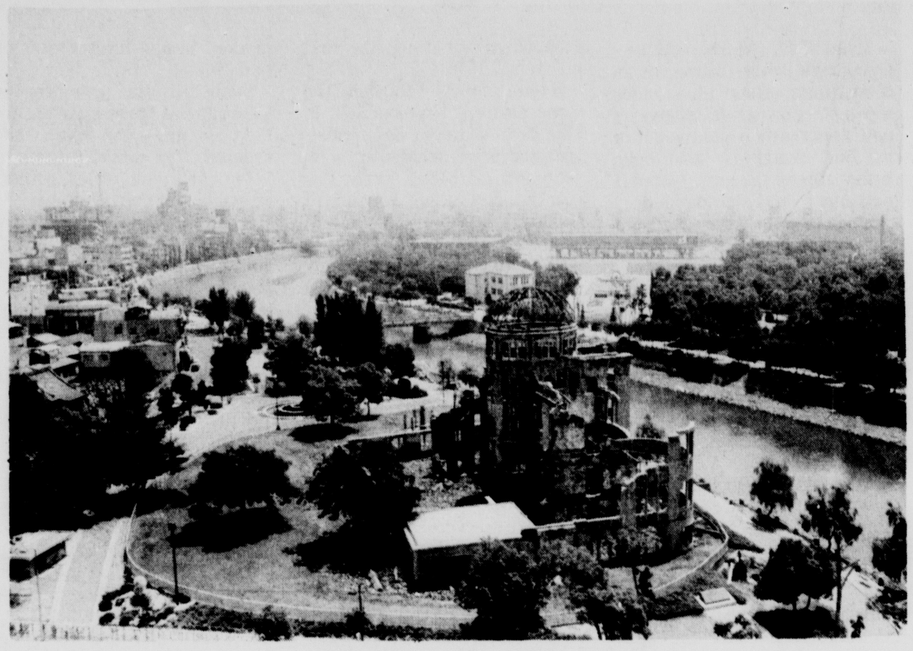
The wasteland they saw is remembered today as a bad dream.

Today's Hiroshima bustles with the business of living. Tall buildings line Hatchoboroi, the main business street. Behind the shattered dome rises the 11-story Chamber of Commerce and Industry building; beside it, bright lights silhouetting the dome at night, is the baseball stadium, home of the Hiroshima Carps.

Few uniforms now are seen on the streets. But a new kind of army has been let loose, the Hiroshima "Jet set," who spin their motorbikes in screeching circles around the peace museum.

The rising affluence is reflected in streams of automobiles clogging the avenues, well-dressed shoppers in the busy department stores and the Hon-Dori covered arcade. American movies are popular on Hatchobori.

Two of the mainstays of Hiroshima's industrial boom are the big Mitsubishi shipyards and the Toyo Kogyo automobile plant.



Healing And Scars

In the center of Hiroshima stands the skeleton dome (foreground) of the only building preserved from the holocaust which followed the dropping of the atomic bomb on August 6, 1945. Behind it extends Peace Memorial Park, containing monuments and museums, and the surrounding modern city which has been built over the ruins of the old one. (AP)

Toyo Kogyo employs 27,000 workers, many from Hiroshima, compared with 18,000 five years ago. Its sales in 1969 reached 566,667,000 almost double the $333,334,000 of 1965.

Toyo's president 74-year-old Koji Matsuda, was a manufacturer of guns before and during World War II. He joined with Mayor Hamai in seeing Hiroshima as a city with a future rather than abandoning it to a dead past.

His company owns the Carps and he has donated an art museum to the city. He thinks the United States should make a generous gesture and donate a much-needed convention hall.

Off in another part of Hiroshima, a group of 750 doctors, nurses, statisticians and administrators are engaged in studies which require even more concentration. They are the staffers of the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission (ABCC), set up in 1947 to study the long-range medical effects of atomic radiation on man.

Sponsored by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and the Japanese National Institute of Health, the program cost the United States $3.7 million in fiscal 1969; the Japanese financial contribution was small, only $10,000.

The ABCC is headed by Dr. George B. Darling, who took a year's leave of absence from Yale in 1957 and has been here ever since. From a pool of some 110,000 survivors who come voluntarily to the ABCC's quonsethut complex atop Kiji Mountain for periodic medical examinations, the staff has turned out hundreds of studies.

The studies show so far that there have been no genetic changes created by the bomb, though "the possibility is not excluded that some mutations were produced and transmitted to the offspring of survivors." Only time will tell.

ABCC's chief of medicine, young, pipe-smoking Dr. Joseph Belsky of Danbury, Conn., says most of the findings on after effects of both bombs have been "hopefully reassuring." Though leukemia incidence among survivors is high compared with other parts of Japan, there is no direct causal relationship to the blast. One of the more sobering findings, however, is that young people seem to have suffered more than their elders.

One interesting discovery, reported by Dr. Toranosuke Ishimaru, 43, is that leukemia occurred in Hiroshima survivors twice as frequently as in Nagasaki. He attributes this to the nature of the two bombs, uranium in Hiroshima, plutonium in Nagasaki.

The survivors who come for examination are a cross-section of Hiroshima's life. Many are bewildered, some still stunned; most are hopeful. Their emotions include neither outrage nor hatred but a somewhat poignant belief that in a small way they are contributing to easing the sufferings of others.

The tenacity of this idea lingers after death; many give permission for autopsies to be performed either by the ABCC or cooperating Japanese physicians.

Each year, Dr. Darling and his staff participate in memorial services at Buddhist temples for those who thus gave their bodies for research. The occasion is a solemn one, attended by the mayor, representatives of the grieving families and Buddhist priests.

"The grief of bereavement is one of the eight agonies of man. We must eventually part from our loved ones—a sorrow each of us will have to experience. Those who we honor today were unfortunately exposed to the atomic bomb, led a dismal life, and passed away. But with the hope that we might enjoy greater happiness, they offered their precious bodies for pathological studies.

"I can only clasp my hands in solemn prayer."

Now There Are Doves

Children feed the "peace pigeons" in Peace Memorial Park in Hiroshima, built near the hypocenter of the atomic bomb explosion in 1945. In the background are the curved Cenotaph and the skeleton dome of the old Industrial Exhibition building over which the bomb is believed to have actually burst. (AP)

New Look in Welcome Signs Sought

Plans are progressing for the establishment of permanent, attractive "Welcome to Sedalia" signs, according to Chuck Lawrence, executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce. The signs will replace the present signs at the four Sedalia approaches — North and South Highway 65 and East and West Highway 50.

At a Civic Club Council meeting held last January, a committee was appointed to look into the condition and possible rehabilitation of the welcoming signs at the four highway approaches. Members of this committee are Lawrence, W. A. Ball and J. O. Latimer, Jr., headed by John Mays, newly-elected council president.

Several informal discussions took place on how to make the signs more attractive, and the idea was presented to construct a new set of signs. After much consideration, a design was established that will consist of two brick columns connected by an archway on which the Chamber of Commerce welcome will be placed. Immediately below the arch will be the individual plaques from the various civic clubs of Sedalia.

One major problem, according to Lawrence is the financing of the project. Investigation revealed that each sign could cost $800. "My feeling is," said Lawrence "that we have enough Sedalia people in these related fields of construction who have enough civic pride in our town to assist us in this project by means of donating some of the material, or, if not, at least make available the material at cost.

"If the willingness to help does not exist cost of the project will be approximately $3,200 and, consequently, another means of financing will have to be developed."

Another major problem found by Lawrence and the committee is the location of the signs. "We will have to seek out those individuals who have property adjoining the four highways, who would be willing, again in respect to civic pride, to negotiate agreement with us for the space needed. In other towns, many times this agreement is a lifetime lease for $1 per sign to avoid legal problems that could arise," Lawrence said.

Lawrence added that he would like to see this project completed by November.

Farewell Is Danced To Briton

LONDON (AP) — Dame Margot Fonteyn, Rudolph Nureyev and other stars danced a nostaligic farewell Friday night to Britain's first knight of the ballet, Sir Frederick Ashton.

Ashton, 64, is retiring after 35 years as choreographer for Sadler's Wells Ballet and its successor, the Royal Ballet. In honor of the occasion, the Royal Ballet danced a glittering program of extracts from many of the more than 80 ballets Ashton has choreographed.

"There can never have been such a choreographic retrospective before, and I do not see how another of this kind and on this level is likely in our lifetime," wrote John Percival, ballet critic of the Times of London.

A brisk solo from "Rio Grande", a dance from "the Lord of Burleigh," a comic entry from "Harlequin in the Street" and a scene from "Le Baiser de la Fee" were featured.

The performance was "variously scintillating, witty or touching, compiled, presented and watched with affection and nostalgia," the Daily Telegraph said. "Its facets were a precious part of our national dance heritage."

Ashton plans to work in retirement on the choreography of a ballet to celebrate Beethoven's 200th centenary this year.

Labor Department Could Be Ally For Women's Lib

By ERNIE HOOD
Written for NEA

WASHINGTON — If the Women's Liberation Movement is looking for allies, it might well turn to the United States Department of Labor and the federal courts.

From the time the Equal Pay Act of 1963 was passed until May, 1970, litigation instigated by the Labor Department has recovered more than $2 million for women who had been discriminated against. Out-of-court settlements have resulted in more millions of earned but previously unpaid dollars.

Robert Moran, administrator of the Department's Wage and Hour Division, says that "the mandate of a pay rate for the job regardless of sex is beginning to be fulfilled."

The Wage and Hour Division's enforcement campaign has been bolstered this year by two landmark decisions in the U.S. Court of Appeals.

In one case, a New Jersey glass container manufacturer was ordered to pay back wages to 230 women selector-packers who had received lower wages than men doing work the court found to be equal under the act.

The decision, which the Supreme Court refused to review, established three principles: jobs need only be "substantially equal" and not "identical" to permit job comparison under the act; it is the employer's burden to provide explanation for any female-male wage differences on equal jobs; and the employer's past history can influence findings of whether or not the Act has been violated.

In the other decision, the court ruled against an employer who had paid all his women employes 10 cents an hour less than men. The employer contended that certain fringe benefits made women more expensive to employ, but the court said the Act does not permit wage discrimination on those grounds.

Moran says that "as the body of equal pay laws continues to grow, it is probable that many other jobs will be found to be equal."

A Dallas district court found the job of hospital orderly equal for pay purposes to that of nurse's aide, and Moran's office is investigating a wide range of other jobs.

Investigations have begun to determine whether the work of tellers and clerks in banks, insurance companies and similar institutions is equal.

Other questions have arisen in manufacturing, regarding inspectors, assemblers and other types of production line jobs; in retail trade, concerning sales clerks and cashiers, tailors and fitters; and in food service establishments, regarding cooks, chefs and other jobs.

Moran says he is carefully examining instances where men are paid more than women for doing the same job because, employers contend, the men are doing heavy lifting women can't do or because the men are undergoing special training.

Investigations often reveal that men are paid extra for heavy lifting but never do any and that training programs often exist only on paper, Moran charges.

The nonexistent training phenomenon in banks, Moran adds, "can probably be traced to the employer's stereotyped view that bank officers are traditionally men, hence, male tellers have promotional potential and should be paid more in order to keep them from going elsewhere."

There are still many employers who pay women less than men on equal jobs, Moran says, urging women to report any possible violation of the Equal Pay Act to the nearest field office of the Wage and Hour Division.

Bizarre Motive in Tate Slayings Recounted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a Beatles song spinning in his mind, Charles M. Manson ordered the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others in hopes of igniting a black-white war, the state says.

To Manson, "Helter Skelter," the title of one of the Beatles' songs, meant the black man rising up against the white establishment and murdering the entire white race," Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi said in an opening statement Friday at the trial of the hippie-type "family" leader and three followers on charges of conspiracy to commit murder.

He said Manson believed the race war would wipe out all whites except Manson and his clan who "intended to escape from Helter Skelter by going to the desert."

Bugliosi described Manson as "an avid follower of the Beatles" and said the shaggy-haired ex-convict believed the British quartet was "speaking to him across the ocean."

Manson interpreted their songs as supporting his philosophis and has "a fanatical obsession with 'Helter Skelter,'" the prosecutor said. The lyrics of the song do not mention race war.

"Helter Skelter" was scrawled in blood on a wall at the home of two of the victims along with "Rise" and "Death to Pigs." the words "Pigs" was written in blood at the Tate home.

Bugliosi said the scrawlings and other evidence were aimed at "making it look like the black people had murdered the five Tate victims and Mr. and Mrs. (Leno) La Bianca, thereby causing the white community to turn against the black man and ultimately lead to a civil war . . . a war Manson foresaw the black man winning."

The prosecutor said Manson believed the black-white war would be started spontaneously by blacks but "got impatient" and told his clan: "I'm going to show blackie how to do it." Then, said Bugliosi, he ordered the murders.

Manson's vision of the war's outcome, said the prosecutor, was that blacks "would be unable to handle the reins of power because of inexperience and would have to turn over the reins to those with people who had escaped from Helter Skelter, that is . . . Manson and his followers."

Miss Tate was slain at her home last Aug. 9 along with four visitors. The next night, 10 miles away, Mr. and Mrs. LaBianca, wealthy market owners, were stabbed to death.

Manson, 35, arrived at the trial Friday in jail denims, a cross slashed into his forehead, framed by his long tangled locks. A defense attorney said Manson cut the cross, himself with a razor blade.

Seated with him were the other defendants, Susan Atkins, 21, in a blue sleeveless pants suit; Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, in a green velvet pants suit, and Leslie Van Houten, 20, in a blue and white striped mini dress.

The prosecutor said the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, 21, will testify Monday that Manson's followers—including the three women defendants—were "slavishly obedient" to him and killed the seven victims at his command. He said Manson had "total domination" over his followers and described him as "a megalomaniac who coupled his insatiable thirst for power with a desire for violent death."

A defense attorney objected to the state's interjecting motive in its opening statement, and the judge ordered Bugliosi to make no further such references.

"Look at what you have done," it said in part, "and what you are doing. You make fun of God and have murdered the world in the name of Jesus Christ . . . I am not allowed to speak with words so I have spoken with a mark I will be wearing on my forehead."

Paul Fitzgerald, attorney for Miss Krenwinkel and spokesman for the defense team, said during a recess that the prosecution had "sown the seeds of its own destruction" with the opening statement. He called Bugliosi's comments "a melodramatic tirade against Manson" offered because "the prosecution lacks good evidence." He said some aspects of the remarks were so preposterous that the jury wouldn't believe them.

Bugliosi told the jury that many witnesses will testify to Manson's beliefs because "Manson's philosophies are so strange and so bizarre that if you heard them from the lips of only one person, you probably wouldn't believe it."

First on the stand was Miss Tate's father, retired Army Lt. Col. Paul J. Tate. He identified pictures of his daughter and said he last saw her at her home in July 1969.

Wilfred Parent, father of Steven Parent, 18, killed at the Tate home after visiting the caretaker, identified his son's picture and said the boy's hobby was tinkering with stereo sets.

Mondale Sees a Danger Of 'Ignoring' Migrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three days of testimony describing deplorable living and working conditions of migrant workers, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said, "If history is a guide, we won't do much about them."

The Minnesota Democrat, chairman of a Senate migratory labor subcommittee, said, "Our hearings have established beyond doubt the utterly deplorable condition of the migrant farm worker. Now, the question is whether the country is going to do anything about it."

But, he said, "We have been through this before. The nation was outraged and then forgot it."

He said he was pessimistic about passage of legislation to help migrant workers because they "are without political and economic power and without enough friends to get the legislation needed for a decent life."

Mondale made the statement Friday after the Coca-Cola Co. outlined a program to improve the salary, fringe benefits and housing for its migrant workers employed by the Minute Maid Co., a subsidiary.

Minute Maid is one of the largest orange juice processors, with 300 full-time and 1,000 seasonal migrant workers in its Florida orange groves.

J. Paul Austin, Coca Cola president, said he hopes to transform the migratory work force into a stable, year-round group with the same benefits given other Coca Cola employes.

All full-time grove workers will be given, effective Sept. 1, all benefits enjoyed by other Coca Cola employes, he added.

Austin also said his firm plans to build houses near the groves at prices which workers can afford and to establish social and childcare centers.

Austin told the subcommittee that an NBC documentary last week on migrants in Florida correctly portrayed the housing and working conditions of the migrants.

The documentary had mentioned Coca Cola's poor housing conditions but, at the firm's request, made note of its program to improve the conditions for migrants.

Get Drugs As Calmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A suburban Washington public health physician says nearly 800 elementary school children in the area are receiving drugs to calm their behavior.

Dr. Esther Robinson added, however, the total represents only one per cent of the elementary school pupils.

"About 150 of the children are under the care of public health department physicians," she said Friday. "The drugs are prescribed for over-active and non-goal directed children, but only with the parents' permission."

Dr. Robinson said the drugs, Dexedrine or Ritalin, have the opposite effect on children than they have on adults. Both drugs stimulate adults but, when administered to children between six and 10 years of age, they are calming and nonaddictive, she said.

The drugs are used only long enough to curb the disruptive behavior—usually from six months to three or four years, she said.

Dr. Robinson, a public health doctor in Montgomery County, Md., said the program is not directed by the school system. She said problem students are referred to the county health department by school nurses, who work for the health department.

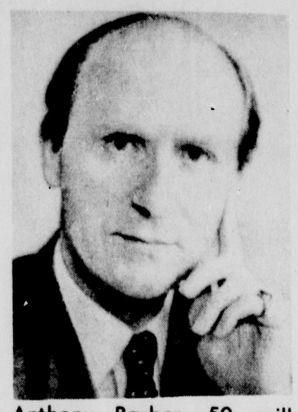
A Montgomery County school spokesman, Kenneth K. Muir, said that "under no circumstances do the schools prescribe drugs.

"County policy forbids use of drugs in schools unless with the specific advice and consent of the physician and parent," he said.

Muir said teachers and principals have the responsibility to note hyperactivity among students and report it to parents. He said the school then leaves the problem to the physician.

Past experience with the drugs indicates they are safe, Dr. Robinson said. However, she acknowledged there are few, if any, long-range studies on the effects on children.

Use of similar drugs in Omaha, Neb., recently sparked public protest from parents and teachers.



Anthony Barber, 50, will serve as chancellor of the exchequer, according to sources close to Prime Minister Edward Heath of Great Britain. Barber, now European affairs minister, will succeed Iain Macleod, 56, who died July 20 of a heart attack. (UPI)

Urban Synergistics, Inc., they explained Friday, will be sort of a consultant's consultant, advising organizations consulting with private industries that have dealings with cities.

The name of the firm, which will have offices in New York and Detroit, comes from synergetic, which means working together in such a way that the total effect exceeds the sum of its parts.

Tongyai's role as a police officer became public June 5 when he, other deputies and police conducted a drug raid at the Hobart Campus in Geneva. Student disorders followed.

This Week in Business

NEW YORK (AP) — Most government officials expressed some type of cautious optimism that the economy may at last be bottoming out as they testified before Congress' Joint Economic Committee this week.

But there was some concern about how quickly the upturn would occur and about the possibility of an excessive deficit in the federal budget.

"Let's not blow it" was the way George P. Shultz, newly appointed director of the Office of Management and Budget, said it as he warned Congress against excessive spending.

President Nixon himself voiced these same sentiments and said congressional appropriations beyond his budget requests could start the inflation cycle up again. He also added that the American people were tired of the "big spenders" philosophy.

In looking to the future, the President said the last half of 1970 would definitely see an economic upswing with continued cooling of inflation and that a return to full employment was likely at least by the beginning of the fiscal year starting next July. He set as his goal for the national economy a balanced budget at full employment.

Both Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and Shultz called for a slight budget deficit. They said it was desirable now in order to stimulate the economy. But they fell in line with the President's warning that outlays shouldn't exceed the potential yield of the tax system.

Two Democratic economists opposed the mildness of the administration's measures and urged Congress to increase the President's budget. They were Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Johnson, and Paul A. Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who advised former administrations and is a past president of the American Economic Association.

They said both the government's budget policy and the monetary policy regulated by the Federal Reserve Board should attempt to expand the economy to fight unemployment.

Samuelson said: "A Congressional Medal of Honor should be given by Congress to Congress. For it had not overcome Nixon administration resistance to increased Social Security benefits and to Government pay increases, then by the analysis of the Department of Commerce itself, we would not have had in the second quarter a razor-thin rise in the real gross national product."

Nixon administration economists seemed to be basing their optimism for the economy on last week's report that real output rose slightly in the second quarter and that prices rose far slower than earlier in the year. These slight real gains could set the scene for more significant gains in the second half of the year, they felt.

But all the leading economic indicators have been down somewhat in recent months and these indicators are expected to drift around the same levels in the figures for June to be reported next week. Economists said this didn't bode so well because a real economic upturn has never occurred without the indicators turning up first.

Almost all economists expressed concern over spiralling unemployment, but Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, offered some assurances in that direction.

Welfare Director Optimist

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare Secretary Elliot L. Richardson has described chances "better than even" for enactment of some Nixon administration welfare reform proposals.

Richardson said Thursday the Nixon administration bill might not be approved, but bills containing similar reform measures probably will be enacted this year.

Three days of hearings this week before a sometimes hostile Senate Finance Committee convinced him, he said, that the odds "are better than even for a bill recognizably similar" to win congressional approval.

"Members are beginning to grapple with the essential concept," he said, singling out Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, for particular praise.

The reform bill would replace current state centered welfare systems with a national family assistance plan of a guaranteed annual income. It has been stalled in the Senate committee since House passage last spring.

The measure would provide a family of four with minimum payments of $1,600 a year, plus $860 worth of food stamps. States also could provide cash supplements.

The measure would double the number of welfare recipients to about 24 million and add $4 billion to the present $5 billion federal welfare bill by allowing poor persons who work to receive benefits.

Administration strategists reportedly are concerned over the continuing opposition by the committee's senior Republican, Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware. Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., also remains critical, contending the measure would give welfare recipients "a big bonus for doing nothing."

Richardson indicated the administration planned to continue low key lobbying for the bill rather than going for the hard sell.

Sources close to the Finance Committee predicted some form of welfare reform probably will emerge this session but not necessarily the administration bill.

Disband Squad Probing Death Of Lawmaker

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Metro police squad has disbanded and turned over to Kansas City police its files on the Leon Jordan murder.

Maj. Eliza Hatfield, head of the Metro squad, said there still were many leads to pursue but the men were needed in their home departments.

The squad was mobilized shortly after Jordan, Negro political leader, was shot July 15. Sixty men were working at one time.

A Federal Bureau of Investigation agent said the FBI is still working on the case.

Work Release Means Precious Freedom For Convict

By TOM TIEDE

HARTFORD, Conn. — (NEA) — Most people more or less struggle through their 8-to-5 workday — looking forward to their night-hour or weekend leisure.

Not Jim Wilcox. It's just the opposite for him. He more or less struggles through his leisure time — looking forward to his 8-to-5 workday.

No wonder.

On the job Wilcox is a free man. Off it he's a prisoner in the local jail.

James Wilcox, age 35, serving three to eight years for a white-collar crime, is one of several thousand convicts in the nation enrolled in small but significant work-release programs. These men are pull-outs from normal, stifling prison walls who are allowed profitable employment, on their honor and on their own.

This means the convicts legally bust out of their jails for eight to 10 hours every day. To shoot grease into automobiles. To stamp sheet metal in factories. Or to ogle starchy but sexy secretaries in offices from Seattle to Schenectady.

Not a man in blue watches them work. Most employers scrupulously treat them as regular workers. They are unrecognizable as the felonious fellows they once were.

Take Jim Wilcox. For most of the last two years he has been housed in Connecticut's maximum security penitentiary. Where he had his mail censored and his razor blades counted. Where he ate, slept and agonized only by the regulations. And where he had to get permission to visit the latrine.

But now Wilcox has the ball by the chain. He is not only a part-time convict, he's a ranking member of the state corrections agency. He's executive assistant to the corrections commissioner, specializing in public relations.

As such, he's probably the only con anywhere people call "Sir."

Wilcox dresses nicely. Has well-groomed black hair, distinguished with flecks of gray. He's erect, steady, sophisticated. One would never guess that here's a man whose roommate has been convicted of hammering his father to death.

To be sure, Wilcox is somewhat atypical even in the atypical lineup of prison work-releasers. He's better educated than most enrolled inmates (three years of college), and he has former executive training (he was a mortgage broker until a jury of his peers found him guilty of a charge of conspiring to defraud).

He personifies the encouraging aspects of work-release: under an enlightened system, even time in prison can be spent to some gain.

Says Wilcox, with feeling:

"Two years ago my world as I knew it came to an end. I was making a substantial salary, had a normal and happy family (two kids). Then I was arrested. I fought with everything I had in court. But I lost — and everything just ended. This is the way it is going to prison. It seems like going to the end of the earth.

"But I was very lucky. Very lucky. I wasn't just a scared kid, not knowing which way to turn. I was 33 at the time, I still had my family responsibilities, and so rather than just give in, I decided to make the best of it. I plotted and planned every step to get on the work-release program. Like I say, I was very lucky."

Wilcox's luck was at least partially due to timing. His sentence began at the same time prison reform began in Connecticut. Intelligent energy and federal money started pouring into the state's reform houses, and Wilcox took advantage. He joined an inmate Jaycee group, he took some college correspondence, he attended prison classes. At the same time he kept his nose clean, avoided the homosexuals — and wound up with perhaps the highest work-release job in the United States.

However, prison work-release programs are notoriously controversial for the simple reason that periodically a working con will take off for the office and never return. And the headlines thereafter ("Businessman Convict Escapes; Police Say He May Be Dangerous") cause concern among a citizenry that prefers its convicts incarcerated.

Wilcox is also liable to special criticism because of his unique position. Some guards quite openly resent the fact that he makes more money than they do. Some fellow inmates resent the fact that he is not suffering the same as they. Some of his peers in the state civil service resent the fact that he has been given a job over them.

Yet, despite the criticism, Jim Wilcox remains, for progressive penologists and many other human beings, the hope of a new time in America's lockups. A time when men who come out of the penitentiaries will be better, rather than worse, than when they enter.

And Wilcox is well qualified to speak for this hope:

"Don't get me wrong. I'm not a Jesuslike flag-waver for prisoner's rights. But I've been on both sides of the bars now, and it's pretty clear to me that we must treat convicts as people rather than things. Not everybody in jail today is a murderer, or a violent maniac. They are just ordinary people. I venture to say that some of your newspaper readers will be in jail sometime. They may not believe that now. But, then, I never believed I would be here either."

EDUCATORS NEEDED TO BE INFORMED

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Initial "brainstorming" sessions involving Kentucky state officials and college professors and administrators were not as immediately beneficial to state government as was hoped.

Gov. Louie B. Nunn's staff planned the weekend retreats at isolated state parks to gain fresh ideas. But participants complained that too much time had to be spent informing the educators about state government and its programs.

HELLO!

In case I have not been able to contact each of you personally, as I work for Missouri Pacific Railroad in Kansas City most of the week, I want again to ask for your support in the August 4 primary. I would appreciate working in my community and area and knowing each of you personally. My sincere efforts to run an honest and efficient office of tax collection is my goal.

It has been my feeling for some time that public officials have a great advantage of leading our youth. Most youth look up and respect a man who cares for them and the spare time you have after fulfilling your duties should be spent leading our future citizens. Whether it be church, high school, league sports or any other area of communication we as leadership could so easily bridge the gap with our time. My door will always be open to aid in anyway that I can.

I am always remembering you are the employer and I am the employee.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR HERBERT THOMPSON, Press Secretary to Vice President Agnew

Mr. Agnew seems to be quite politically different from Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Yet he once was pushing Mr. Rockefeller for the Presidency. Why?— R.L., Utica, N.Y.

● Mr. Agnew never thought Governor Rockefeller was as "liberal" as some of his critics in the party did. He admired the Governor's administrative abilities, and when he (Agnew) was Governor of Maryland, he used some of the procedures Mr. Rockefeller had used in New York State.

FOR GEORGE P. CRESSMAN, director, U.S. Weather Bureau

Where and when was the heaviest rainfall recorded in the U.S.? —George H. Bowen, Nokomis, Fla.

● During an extraordinary cloudburst at Unionville, Md., July 4, 1956, 1.23 inches of rain was recorded in one minute (3:23 p.m. 3:24 p.m.). This set a new world record for rainfall intensity.

FOR DR. MARIE A. HINRICHS, American Medical Association

During the summer months, many articles warn against prolonged exposure to the sun and its harmful results. Just how much exposure is too much?—Karen Morris, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

● We could not answer your question because the limits of safety for prolonged exposure to sunlight must take into account some other factors such as the time of year, altitude, time of day, and skin characteristics. We suggest that this would be best determined by conference with your physician.

FOR LOUIS R. BRUCE, Commissioner of Indian Affairs

Do we have a statue of an Indian on top of our national Capitol? —Irene Rohr, Devils Lake, N. D.

FOR CURT GOWDY, network sportscaster

FOR MAE WEST

If a movie is made of your life, and you do not star in it, whom could you imagine for the title role?—R.D., Lancaster, Pa.

● In order that it be done properly I would have to do it myself. My millions of fans have always demanded the Mae West!

FOR ALDEN BARBER, Chief Scout Executive, Boy Scouts of America

Has a former Boy Scout ever become a President of the United States?—Mrs. Betty Barbera, Pueblo, Colo.

● Yes. John F. Kennedy was a Boy Scout in Troop 2, Bronxville, New York, from 1929 to 1931. Although many other Presidents have been active adult Scout leaders, President Kennedy is the only one to have had scouting experience.

FOR JIM NABORS

Is it true that you call your mother in Alabama every night?—Lou McDonald, Tuscumbia, Ala.

● We don't have any special arrangement. I call her to tell her something or ask her something, and she does the same. So do my two sisters who have families of their own in Alabama.

Fly In/Camp Out Camping enthusiasts can now camp out in areas as distant as Alaska, Hawaii, and Canada—or in previously inaccessible areas of the U.S. The Fly In/Camp Out program of Camp America has a new program which combines air travel and fully equipped camper rentals. Pioneered by Eastern Air Lines, a reservation can now be placed with any major airline or travel agent for the combination. Arriving at their destination-airport, the camping families have the option of following a preplanned itinerary or going off on their own. The campers, ranging from $250-per-week motor homes to $135 - mini-vans, are all equipped with built-in stoves, ovens, sinks, water supply, refrigerator, dinette, storage areas, and toilet facilities. And for the adventurous folk who don't want to be burdened with their own gear, Camp America will even supply bedding, utensils, and maps and guides.

Create a Time Island Do you come home from work "dead tired?" It may not be more rest you need but more exercise. As psychoanalyst Dr. Erika Freeman reminded a gathering of the Family Fitness Council (in cooperation with Sears), "Motivation to keep fit is necessary to start but insufficient to keep going. It must become a recuperating habit." One of the best and fastest ways to establish the habit is to give exercise a "time island" of its own (meaning a time interval devoted to a specific activity such as a coffee break—which has the psychological effect of getting away from it all). Another aid is having a 'gadget' such as an exercise machine because it reminds you to start. Then the habit takes over. Once it is established, physical fitness produces a look of "totally infectious radiance," thus making the exercise habit very hard to break.

Home bicycle is exercise reminder.

Closet Tips When putting a seldom-worn hat away on the closet shelf, turn the brim up all the way around to keep the hat in better shape for the next wearing. And for the wrinkled suits hanging therein, try a dampened turkish towel, wrung out and draped over a hanger overnight. It can supply enough moisture to help remove some of the wrinkles.

Peaceful Shoot-Out Some 700 shotgun marksmen from throughout the U.S., Canada, and parts of Europe will begin gathering in Savannah, Ga., this week for the opening on Saturday, Aug. 1, of the World Championship Skeet Shoot. In skeet, participants fire from eight different stations around a semi-circle at clay targets propelled across their line of vision. At Savannah, male, female, junior, and senior contestants will compete in events for .410, 28, 20, and 12-gauge shotguns. Some $20,000 in prize money will be distributed. Officials say this one may be the biggest world skeet event yet held.

NEW CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT CHIEFS DECLARES:

By WILLIAM O'NEILL

Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, 58, became Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on July 2. He is the second Navy man to hold this position. The other was Admiral Arthur W. Radford, who retired in 1957. Admiral Moorer granted FAMILY WEEKLY this exclusive interview shortly after his appointment to his important new post.

Q: What do you see as the greatest problem facing you as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff?

A: I'm very much concerned with a problem facing our country which has a great bearing on the morale of our young people in the armed forces. I'm disturbed by the general attitude of some persons—particularly as expressed in the press in terms of cartoons and so on—that has the effect of degrading the serviceman. There are roughly three million young Americans in uniform today—a uniform that is a new-found target for groups that deal in discredit. This concerns me deeply.

Q: Is this something that has to be tackled by the Joint Chiefs, the government, or by the press?

A: It confronts us all, for it poses difficulties and dangers for everyone in the United States. The biggest danger is the effect it can have on our young people, who see these slurs on military service and start to wonder whether they want a career in the military. And if this reaches the point where we do not get the very highest type young men, the best-qualified young men, to seek military careers, then by 1980, 1990, and 2000, we're going to be faced with a "leadership gap," which will significantly weaken our country.

Q: Why do you think ths situation has arisen? Isn't it because of disagreement over the war in Indochina?

A: That's a big part of it, of course. This conflict against a ruthless foe in Southeast Asia has been described as immoral, unnecessary, and unjust. I happen to believe that these descriptions are more appropriately applied to militant communism—the militant communism our servicemen overseas are facing and coping with. The objective of our Government in this conflict is simple: to stop the aggressive spread of communism.

Q: Do you feel that the press is being unfair?

A: Not intentionally, no. It's always been the nature of things that something bad that happens, because it is the exception, is more likely to be deemed newsworthy than something good. Unfortunately, this means that the good things that happen, and the progress brought about by good people who work hard, observe the law, and raise God-fearing families, are being given short shrift in favor of a small minority who advocate, and sometimes produce, dissention and destruction. They aren't typical of the American people, and it's important to keep this in mind. Pessimism has a bad characteristic, even a dangerous characteristic, in that it can be self-defeating. It would be a tragedy if the United States were to sell its capability and determination short in these crucial times through negative thinking.

Q: Do you think that this might happen?

A: There is always that risk, but let me make it clear that I personally am not a pessimist. I've worn the uniform for 41 years, and because I know that the sort of attitude we are seeing today is a kind of recurring cycle, I'm pretty thick-skinned. It goes on all the time with our country's military forces. At some point, everyone is for you, then everyone seems to be against you. It has been a part of our history.

Q: Then I gather you feel the critical mood will pass. What do you think will have to be done to bring about a change?

A: Well, I hope and believe that it is a passing phase because we have much more going for us than many people seem to realize or appreciate. We hear a lot just now about demonstrations and noisy protesters. I think it's time we made some noise of our own about what I like to call the Quiet Generation—which includes members of our armed forces—who are not prone to seizing the stage, an act that has become the hallmark of some of their contemporaries.

The youth of this country are holding the line against a determined foe, and they are containing the spread of communism. They are meeting it head-on in Vietnam, and they are the heart of the deterrent forces we have elsewhere. By any standard of history, no soldier, sailor, or airman ever faced more of a challenge.

In spite of what I would define as a negative minority attitude, our servicemen overseas have performed with courage and a great professionalism, and I'd like to see them receive some of the recognition and attention that is being misdirected elsewhere.

QUIZ

Adm. Moorer says protest marches degrade GIs, but morale is still high.

ting only a distorted image that needs to be corrected. And I think it's time we stopped calling the Government "they" all the time, as though it were our enemy, and remembered that we—the people—are the Government and quit berating the alleged existence of a so-called evil military-industrial complex.

Q: But it was former President Eisenhower, back in 1961, who warned of the danger that might arise from a military-industrial complex. Do you think we have, in fact, such a complex today?

A: President Eisenhower's fine speech, which enjoined us to remain strong against a hostile and determined enemy has been quoted entirely out of context. As a result, the phrase "military-industrial complex" has become so loaded with warped connotations that it has become a semantic trap. In my opinion, if we didn't have close cooperation between industry and Government, we would not have the capability we now possess to use the advancements of science for the over-all benefit of our country. An outstanding example of this is our successful landing of men on the moon.

Q: Is the dissent at home and the difficulties of the war in Southeast Asia having an adverse effect on morale among servicemen?

A: They are concerned, of course. A man in uniform wants and needs the support of the people at home. But I have visited our servicemen in Vietnam, in Europe, and at bases in the United States, and their morale remains high. They know that although bad news and controversy may attract the headlines, the majority are behind them.

As I've said before, I know that "good news is no news" on many of the mass media's events yardstick, since it may not capture the public's attention. But though we have seen a number of stories about American servicemen who choose to absent themselves without leave, giving the impression that our military morale is suspect, here are some facts that didn't make the news: less than five percent of American servicemen ever go absent without leave—or A.W.O.L. —less than one-tenth of one percent of our men in uniform have sought asylum in Sweden; yet more than 73,000 military personnel have volunteered for second or subsequent duty tours in Vietnam.

Q: You are taking office when the United States is engaged in essentially a land war, which the President has pledged will be scaled down. Do you foresee a smaller role for the Navy?

A: No, for a number of reasons. The United States is an island that sits between two oceans. This makes us a maritime nation. During our lifetime, we have had free use of the seas for so long that the average American citizen takes it for granted. But this is not the case. The Russians have seen how use of the sea by the United States and her allies has facilitated our military, economic, and political viability. They know that in four major wars and on several lesser occasions we have projected U.S. power through the seas.

These lessons have not been lost. The Soviet Union has set out to build the world's largest and best navy. They see it as a means of exerting economic pressure and establishing a worldwide presence.

We are embarked on an overdue program of shipbuilding to modernize our Navy—many of our vessels have been active since World War II. We are moving more of our nuclear deterrent to sea, aboard nuclear submarines for wider dispersal.

Q: Defense costs have been the subject of growing criticism, in Congress and out. Do you think you will get from the Congress the funds you need, or will there be some belt-tightening?

A: There already has been substantial belt-tightening. For instance, the Navy has inactivated many ships and aircraft squadrons and curtailed several modernization programs. Large numbers of reservists have been granted early discharges as an economy measure. Similar steps have been taken in the other services. Also, the number of military bases here and abroad is being reduced.

It's worth bearing in mind that the $71.8 billion Department of Defense budget for fiscal 1971 represents 34.6 of Federal spending, while in 1960 it was $43 billion—which was 46 percent of Government spending. So despite a costly war and the increasing costs of more technically advanced weapons systems, our investment in national security today is actually 11.4 percent smaller than it was during a time of relative peace.

Proposed defense spending will take seven percent of our Gross National Product in fiscal 1971—or about three percent less than the percentage Americans spend annually on all forms of insurance. So despite the hue and cry, we are making very major cuts, and I believe Congress is aware of this.

Q: There is speculation that the decision to enter Cambodia was a high-water mark for the Joint Chiefs, and that their influence in decision-making may never be as strong again. Do you think this is the case?

A: I do not. You should remember that the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommend various courses of action to our civilian superiors. We do not make policy, approve budgets, or approve force levels. I confess to being less than happy when I read accounts that the military has done this wrong or that wrong. It shouldn't be necessary to say it again, but we are advisers; we make the recommendations, not the decisions.

Under the U.S. Constitution we have civilian control of our military forces, and, consequently, decisions are made by the civilian leaders in the executive and legislative branches of our Government. Speaking for myself and the other members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, we fully support this concept which is inherent in a democracy. We wouldn't have it any other way. ◆

How Sharp a Shopper Are You?

This true-false quiz might separate the savers from the losers when it comes to shopping

Most of us shop for something every day. And we probably consider ourselves fairly knowledgeable in the fine art of tracking down a bargain or reading a label or getting a good buy on certain products. This true-false quiz will test your skill in what every keen-eyed shopper knows—or ought to know.

1. All cuts of meat are graded.

2. If an advertisement gives a "list price" or the manufacturer's "suggested price," you can be sure that this is the actual price of the item.

3. A sweater that is labeled "full-fashioned" means that the garment was knitted in a special way.

4. When buying kitchen pots and pans, it's better to purchase them in sets rather than individually.

6. You can't judge a transistor radio by the number of transistors it has.

7. Lower grades of meat have more fat to the pound than the expensive cuts.

8. A good shopper always buys large or economy-size cans and packages of food.

9. The words "League" or "Professional" on a piece of sports equipment mean that the equipment was made according to official rules of the sport.

10. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) specifies that white eggs and brown eggs must be cartoned separately because of the difference in their nutritional value.

ANSWERS

1. False. Meat grading is a voluntary service provided by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service to meat packers and others who request and pay for the grading.

2. False. Some manufacturers set high "list" or "suggested" prices on their merchandise so that retailers can offer greater "bargains" by selling items for less.

3. True. Full-fashioned means that the sweater was knit to shape.

4. False. Every pot and pan has its own uses, and your best bet is to purchase each one separately according to your requirements.

5. True. A child with a picky appetite has more interest in food if he's allowed to make some of his own selections at the market.

6. True. Some big sets have only 10 transistors, and smaller sets, claiming many transistors, may have dummy connections.

7. False. The more expensive cuts have a higher proportion of fat to the pound, which makes them taste better, although there is less lean meat.

8. True. For the large family, this is definitely true, although a single person or couple may save by buying the smaller cans or packages.

9. False. The word "Official," not "Professional," means the equipment was made according to official rules of the sport.

10. False. The color of an egg has nothing to do with its nutritional value. In some sections of the country, brown eggs are valued over white eggs or vice versa.

The Promise of Skin Beauty —from Lemons

The beautifying properties of lemons have been recognized for centuries. Women knew even way back in ancient times that the pure juices of the lemon could accomplish wonders in softening, smoothing and clearing their complexions, and could bring the golden-bright look of shimmery sunshine to their hair when used as a rinse.

Today, women are rediscovering this most valuable of nature's gifts to feminine loveliness and utilizing all the remarkable beautifying properties of lemons in the easy-to-use form of a skin freshener.

Lemon Jelvyn Skin Freshener is exceptional in its ability to promote a smooth, fine-grained texture because it stimulates the circulation and helps melt out clogging grime and impurities that cause blemishes and sallow complexions. This unique lemon lotion encourages the natural "flaking" processes of skin cells at the most propitious time, when they outgrow their usefulness. The old, clinging, complexion-dulling particles of scarf skin are gently coaxed away by the mild, tingling lemon freshener, so that new cells can take their place and the wonderful beauty of a fresh, radiantly clear complexion can be fully admired.

The natural toning and invigorating qualities of lemons become immediately appreciable when Lemon Jelvyn Freshener is applied to your skin with a cotton pad, for the complexion benefits in every way from these clearing, bracing properties that bring a soft, fine bloom to your skin.

Because this luxury freshener helps discourage an over-zealous oil flow and aids also in clearing the skin of blemish-inducing impurities, it is invaluable to the teenage complexion as well as those complexions with an inherent tendency to be oily in character.

Lemon Jelvyn Freshener is used by the world's most beautiful women for skin beauty and is ideal for quick cleansing or to prevent a greasy shine developing on the nose. In America it is obtainable from druggists.

MICHAEL COLE:
Out of Tune and Outspoken

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

Michael Cole, one of the three youthful stars of "Mod Squad," is a paradox. He's Establishment and anti-Establishment at the same time. He's young and he's old—at 28. He's been married, divorced, starved, jailed, loved, and neglected. Yet he holds no one but himself responsible for what he was, what he is, and what he will become.

Along with Peggy Lipton and Clarence Williams, Michael helps policeman Tige Andrews solve all sorts of problems on the weekly ABC-tv show. Yet he points out heatedly, "We don't work for the Los Angeles Police Department! The series has nothing to do with that. The moment I feel like a cop, I'll quit. In the show, Peggy, Clarence, and I are working with a man who is in the police department. I'm not 'Dudley Doright.' I hate it when ABC says we're three cops—one white, one black, one girl. The main reason for the success of the show is the relationship among us."

His feelings were so strong that he almost talked himself out of getting the part in the first place. "Originally the inclusion of guns, cop cars, and all that nonsense was discussed. When I had this first interview with Aaron Spelling, the producer of the show, I ranted and raved and did a lot of screaming against such a concept—and probably made quite a fool of myself—until he explained what he felt the show was really about."

Cole could have some reason for disliking the law. "When I was 15, I ran away from home, and got into trouble. (He wouldn't explain what the trouble was.) The police picked me up. I got in trouble with the police a couple of other times, too. But I was never put away for any length of time."

Cole thinks he ran away from home because of a terrible insecurity within himself. "I simply wasn't comfortable with whatever I did because I didn't contribute anything worthwhile to anybody, including myself. Yet I can't blame anyone for what happened. Not my mother who loved me. Not my brother. Not my teacher. Not even my stepfather, although we didn't get along at first. We did eventually. I simply felt unfulfilled and without purpose. But I'll never forget the day my mother came all the way from home in Madison, Wis., to get me out of jail. She cried. I knew then that what I'd done was very wrong."

Michael didn't like school, although his grades were quite good, and he excelled in competitive sports. "I quit when I was 15. It was the worst decision I ever made. Education is everything. I wish I had more of it." Michael never caught up with his schooling. "I was too busy running around at night, drinking, and going out with the chicks."

He worked in a pizza parlor, as a dishwasher. He was a bartender and handy man in a theatre workshop. The job he liked best was in a bookstore. "I would read periodically," he recalled, "and I still do. Except my tastes have changed. For a while, I was interested in nothing but comics. After a while, I learned to enjoy poetry. I'd read it primarily to see whether I could understand it. When I did, I felt I'd accomplished something."

When he was 19, Michael left home with a friend and headed for the West Coast. "We wound up in San Francisco, but not until after this ding-a-ling friend of mine blew all the money we had gambling in Las Vegas. Luckily, I had a little stashed away in my shoe. When we got to San Francisco, we had the names of some cats who we could stay with until I got a job in a bookstore again, and my buddy started to work for an insurance company."

Michael became interested in acting after he moved to Los Angeles and attended a Little Theatre performance. He felt he could do as well as the actors he watched and enrolled at Estelle Harmon's workshop, which he still attends once in a while. He studied with her for two years before he tried out for his first acting job. He survived during this time in a vagabond existence of odd jobs.

"Miss Harmon helped me get an agent and my first job," Michael recalled—"A featured role in the pilot film for ABC's 'The Felony Squad.'" Although the original format was canceled, casting directors saw it, and before long Michael had his chance to play in "Gunsmoke," "Run For Your Life," and two motion pictures—Arch Oboler's "The Bubble" and "Chuka," with Rod Taylor, before becoming Pete Cochran of "The Mod Squad."

When conversing with Michael, you have to be careful because he can fly off the handle rather easily. Certain subjects are tabu, even though once in a while he slips into them of his own accord. Among them is his own father, whom he can't remember, and his stepfather, whom he hated at first but then learned to like.

He also won't discuss the woman he married at a very young age, nor his two children, a boy and a girl he no longer sees, and to whose support he doesn't contribute for reasons known best to himself. He does admit, however, that he supports his mother and two sisters (he also has an older brother), for whom he bought a house in the San Fernando Valley, while he remains in a small apartment in Laurel Canyon.

Michael insists he has no idea about money. He has a business manager and an agent to invest for him. "If it weren't for them, I'd probably put any extra money in an old shoe box. I was so broke for so long, I simply couldn't hold on to money once I got it. And I trust these people."

He claims money doesn't matter to him as long as he can live fairly comfortably, which includes his one luxury, a silver-gray Jaguar. Yet a few days before we met, he'd gone to Hawaii to look after three parcels of real estate he owns there, including one that contains a successful hotel.

Michael's constant tension is apparent in the way he walks, talks, and thinks. But he doesn't believe in drugs. Nor does he believe in rebellion for the sake of rebellion or, in spite of his earlier outburst about playing a cop on tv, of hating cops simply because they are cops. "You can't lock them all up in one group. I hate some of them, but I also know a lot of honest-to-goodness cops who devote their lives to their work."

Michael is both aware and disturbed by what's going on today. "There are too many problems which seem to have no solution. I am scared because I don't have an understanding of so many things that are going on."

What does Michael want out of life? "To be involved," he says. On the other hand, asked about his personal future, he insists, "I never think about it. Sometimes I don't even care. It all depends upon the mood I am in." ◆

Cool Foods for Summer

MELANIE DE PROFT
Food Editor

■ When sultry summer days cause appetites to lag, perk up your meals with the appetite-stimulating magic of something cool.

Crab Parfait Salad

1 can (7½ oz.) Alaska King crab or ½ pound frozen Alaska King crab
2 cups tomato juice
1 env. unflavored gelatin
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
2 teaspoons grated onion
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon lemon juice
⅓ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon capers
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery

1. Drain crab and chill thoroughly. Sprinkle gelatin over tomato juice in a saucepan and stir over low heat until dissolved. Remove from heat. Blend in sugar, Worcestershire, horseradish, onion, lemon peel, and juice. Chill until set.

2. Meanwhile, combine the mayonnaise, sour cream, capers, green pepper, and celery. Slice chilled crab, reserving 4 pieces for garnish; mix remainder with the mayonnaise. Chill.

3. Spoon ¼ cup of the tomato aspic into each of four 6- to 7-oz. parfait or cocktail glasses. Layer ¼ cup crab mixture over each; then another ¼ cup tomato aspic. Garnish with reserved crab pieces and parsley.

4. Serve with Watercress Sandwiches. Or for a hot roll accompaniment, see recipe for Bacon-Flavored Cheddar Crescent Rolls July 19 FAMILY WEEKLY food page. 4 servings

Note: For appetizers, divide crab and aspic to fill about eight small glasses.

Watercress Sandwiches

⅔ cup butter or margarine, whipped
⅔ cup watercress, snipped
Few drops lemon juice
Few grains seasoned salt
Few grains seasoned pepper

1. Blend butter, watercress, lemon juice, seasoned salt, and pepper thoroughly in a bowl.

2. Trim crusts from white and whole wheat bread and spread with the watercress butter; sandwich together and cut diagonally. About 1¼ cups spread

French Apricot Tart

1½ teaspoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 to 3 tablespoons cold water
2 cans (29 oz. or 30 oz. each) peeled whole apricots, well drained (reserve syrup), pitted, and chilled
¼ cup strawberry or other red jelly
2 drops red food coloring
2 drops almond extract
1 cup apricot preserve

1. Prepare pastry, blending the flour, sugar, and salt in a bowl. Cut in butter or margarine with a pastry blender or two knives until the particles formed are the size of small peas.

2. Sprinkle water over mixture, one tablespoon at a time, tossing with a fork after each addition until dough holds together; shape into a ball.

3. Roll out pastry on a lightly floured surface, keeping shape round to about 1½ in. larger than over-all size of pan. Fit pastry loosely into a 9-in. tart or pie pan. Fold pastry edge under and flute. Thoroughly prick bottom and sides with a fork.

4. Bake at 450°F. 10 to 12 min., or until pastry is a light golden brown. Set on rack to cool.

5. Combine 1 tablespoon of the reserved apricot syrup with red jelly and food coloring in a saucepan; heat, stirring occasionally, until jelly is melted. Remove from heat; cool. Stir in extract.

6. Spoon apricot preserves into bottom of cooled pastry shell; spread evenly over bottom. Arrange whole apricots over preserve; spoon red glaze over apricots. Chill thoroughly. One 9-in. tart

Arthritis Cholesterol

New Discovery Reveals A Common Cause

TASTY FRESH FOOD DIET BRINGS HELP FOR BOTH

New scientific studies show how cholesterol and fat choke the arteries only when eaten in aged and stored form as in bacon or ham, but are harmless when FRESH as in beef or shell eggs. Cholesterol and fat slowly dry and harden like paint when aged in many stored foods, and can form deposits only when changed in this way. This tested research finding comes as a welcome surprise, at last solving the agonizing riddle of choked arteries and cholesterol.

Recently published in booklet form, these findings also cast new light on the arthritis problem. A network of fine arteries in the membrane and porous bone around the joint nourishes the moving parts. When these arteries are choked by hardened fatty materials from stored foods, the joints are starved and arthritis develops. Fully explained in the new booklet (third edition) with large clear drawing. Shows the beautiful self-repairing natural design of our joints, and how we hurt them with the wrong food and drink.

Best of all, it is shown that powerful natural forces in our bodies gradually attack and remove non-living matter. It has long been known that these natural cleaning forces cleared fatty deposits from choked arteries in prisoners fed scanty diets in wartime Europe. Now we have the bountiful and tasty fresh food diet to obtain the same natural cleaning action without hardship, by avoiding only the deposit-forming stored foods. Far from a hardship diet, people are saying they have never eaten so well, or cooked so easily.

Now you can read all about it in a new easily understood booklet through which thousands have found relief. It explains wonderful findings in simple words. Tells how to use the tasty FRESH FOOD DIET to stop this internal pollution and help the body heal itself. For example, Mr. John Landridge said with a happy smile: "Sixty days ago I needed plastic arteries. But I went on the new diet instead, and now I mow my whole yard without resting. My heart and leg pains are gone. Blood pressure and cholesterol dropped to normal. And those fatty yellow lumps in my eyelids faded away!"

This booklet gives clear instructions on the delicious FRESH FOOD DIET. How to relieve suffering, save on food, and reduce kitchen work. Effects of better food on face and figure. New easy ways to cook well for one or two. Diabetes control. Real sweets for diabetics. Ear noises, deafness, and dizziness. Indigestion, acid stomach, and general health aids. Pictures of arteries and joints. A new practical approach that really works. Fully guaranteed: may be returned for refund if you are not satisfied. Over 35,000 satisfied customers. Very popular, now in a new third edition with four pages added. Special prices on quantity orders.

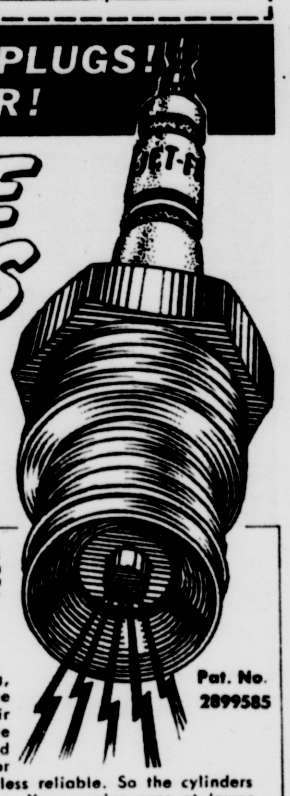
NEW JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS



Pat. No. 2899585

can spark your engine up to 30 more horse power and 5 more miles per gallon! using only your regular gas!

AND–THEY'RE GUARANTEED FOR THE LIFE OF YOUR CAR!

JET-FIRE IGNITERS KEEP ENGINES YOUNG AND STRONG!

Instead of the weak, unreliable spark that accompanies the aging of ordinary spark plugs . . . Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters "walk" a strong, sure swath of flame from one electrode to another, across a semi-conductor bridge — to fire each cylinder with absolute reliability, even under the most rugged conditions of temperature and speed. Built-in "scavenging" action keeps the Jet Fuel Igniter clean . . . prevents fouling . . . assures perfect combustion every time! And, because there is no spark gap, carbon deposits don't foul up performance, but actually improve by heightening conductivity! That's why you never have to adjust or replace Jet-Fire Igniters.

WHY CONVENTIONAL SPARK PLUGS ARE OBSOLETE!

Even after only 100 miles of driving, conventional spark plugs start to become eroded and caked with carbon. Their electrodes begin to burn away. The spark has to jump across a wider and wider gap to explode the gasoline vapor in the cylinder — becomes less and less reliable. So the cylinders "miss" and the plugs foul even more. Your engine runs at lower and lower efficiency. You wonder where the car's pep and pick-up have gone. You can't understand why your gas mileage is so poor. Before you know it, your mechanic tells you you need a new set of plugs. And your engine has grown old long before its time!

When you install JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS, you say "goodbye" forever to spark plug problems! They deliver sure-fire performance conventional spark plugs can't match — for more efficient, more economical performance . . . mile after mile . . . month after month . . . year after year — in any kind of weather . . . and any kind of driving! It's all a matter of design!

By their very design, conventional spark plugs must deteriorate in use. Each time your cylinders fire, they erode the electrode of your spark plug, and cake it with carbon. Because the spark then has to jump across a continuously wider gap, it weakens and becomes less efficient. So your cylinders often misfire, and foul the plug even more. Especially with today's "hot" high-compression engines, plugs often "conk out" in a few months of hard use.

Designed for Sure-Fire Ignition!

JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITER'S patented design eliminates this problem before it starts! The electrodes are solid, not wire — so they don't burn away! The firing tip is a semiconductor — so carbon can't foul it! There is no gap to adjust — so the spark is a strong, constant swath of flame! You get the same reliable ignition every time — for easier, faster starts . . . even in the coldest weather! Your battery won't be drained and run-down by slow starting — and you won't have to turn the key and pray, whenever the temperature drops! What's more, JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS make your engine run more powerfully and efficiently — and on less gas — than the conventional spark plugs you have in your car right now. And you can prove it for yourself . . . on your car.

"On-the-level" Driving Test Proves Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters Get up to 30 More Horsepower out of Your Engine!

When you receive your set of JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS, make this "before-and-after" test yourself . . . on your car.

1. Run your car until the engine is fully warmed up.
2. Stop on a perfectly level stretch of road.
3. Put the car in Drive (1st gear with manual transmission) and see exactly what speed the car rolls at with your foot off the gas (idling speed).
4. Turn off your engine, remove the plugs, and screw Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters into the plug sockets, following the simple directions (a 10-minute job).
5. Start the engine, warm it for a minute, put the car in Drive again, with your foot off the gas. Now see how much faster it rolls at idling speed — probably 4 to 6 miles per hour faster without touching the gas pedal! In-use proof that Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters increase engine RPMs by 100 to 120 with no increase in gas consumption. (At high speeds, the increase will actually be 300 to 350 RPMs!)

Right then and there, you can adjust the idling screw to cut down on your gas flow and your gas consumption. Now your JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS have started to save you money before you've even driven a single mile!

How to Get Even More Savings!

Want even greater efficiency and economy? Make your air-to-gas mixture leaner. With JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS, your engine can perform at full power and efficiency on a 15:1 ratio instead of the conventional 9:1. You or your mechanic can make this simple adjustment in a minute. Then watch how you can get 10 . . . 20 . . . 30 . . . even 50 extra miles on a tankful of gas!

Your engine is finally able to produce all the horsepower it was designed for! Up to 30 more horsepower of acceleration power, climbing power, and passing power! And — it uses less gas than ever while producing this extra power!

Forget About Replacement or Adjustments!

JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS have no spark gap — so they never need adjustment! They "scavenge" themselves every time they fire a cylinder. So they never need cleaning or servicing! Because they have a semiconductor glass-enclosed tip, carbon build-up actually improves conductivity . . . carries even more of the jet flame into the cylinder — for even more sure-fire performance! They can't foul up, burn out, or blow out — the way conventional plugs do. That's why they're guaranteed for the life of your car! (or 30,000 miles). Guaranteed to keep right on saving you money by running your engine at maximum power, on a minimum of gasoline!

Spark Your Car into the Jet Age!

Both the Navy and the Air Force have already approved Fuel Igniters for jet engine use. It's only logical to expect that sooner or later, some alert automotive designer will borrow a good idea from the aerospace industry . . . and equip his most advanced engines with Fuel Igniters like these. But you needn't wait — because you can install a set in your car right now. Simply mail the coupon with the make and model of your car, and we'll rush you a set with full instructions.

ONLY JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS PROTECT YOU WITH THIS EXCLUSIVE

4-WAY GUARANTEE!

1. GUARANTEED to perform for the life of your car (or 30,000 miles) without cleaning, servicing, or replacing!
2. GUARANTEED to increase miles-per-gallon of gas on your regular gas!
3. GUARANTEED to increase your working horsepower, increase engine RPMs!
4. GUARANTEED to improve ease and reliability of starting and acceleration!

Selected Picture and Story Books for Little Listeners and Beginning Readers

Most mothers and fathers frankly acknowledge that they haven't either the time or the perspective to choose precisely the right books for children not yet ready to read or who are just beginning to read. That is why parents are happily turning this problem over to the highly qualified editors of Parents' Magazine... by enrolling their youngsters in the Read Aloud and Easy Reading Program for Little Listeners and Beginning Readers.

Membership brings to your home each month an outstanding, carefully selected book which you may read to or along with your little one. Each book will charm and captivate your child — from its bright, colorful cover through its gaily illustrated pages, with a story appealing and understandable to even the youngest mind.

Save up to 50% — and more!

Besides the assurance of good entertainment, and the wonderful read-together sessions each selection provides for you and your child, you will be pleased by the savings on every book. Member's price is only $1.59 each (plus small mailing charge) for books regularly priced up to $3.95.

DEAR POLLY—I find naturally curly hair is a problem. After washing mine, I put a stocking over my head. It takes longer for the hair to dry but it certainly helps to straighten it.—M. J.

DEAR POLLY—To give myself a more professional-looking manicure with nice cuticles, I soak my fingers in a small amount of warmed olive oil (can be an inexpensive brand) for about five minutes once daily for a week. It really works.—RANDA

DEAR POLLY—Mix some sand in the paint when painting your front and back porches, and you are not so likely to slip when it rains.—D. S.

DEAR POLLY—File with your winter footwear: When sidewalks are very slippery, pull a pair of thick socks over boots. Traction is marvelous, and is almost comparable to suction cups.—ROSE

DEAR POLLY—An empty egg carton is wonderful for keeping pins, needles, thimbles and other small sewing items separated, yet together.—CHERYL

DEAR POLLY—I find it very handy to slip the legs of my boys' pants on a sleeve board when mending. The patches can be conveniently pinned and then ironed on, stitched by hand, or basted for machine sewing.—DORIS

DEAR POLLY—I had a problem with the newspaper being exposed to rain before it was brought in. I made a holder for it by removing both ends from a large fruit juice can, painted it to match the house and fastened it to the porch railing with heavy cord. Have had many comments on my invention.—M. R. D.

DEAR POLLY—Fill a jar with cotton balls, pour baby oil over them and let soak thoroughly. They're excellent for removing stubborn eye make-up.—MISS L. K.
